SELECTED AND IMPORTED BY SEAGRAM-DISTILLERS COMPANY, N.Y.C. • BLENDED SCOTCH WHISKY • 86 PROOF

100 Pipers from Scotland

How Seagram combined the best of the world's great Scotches. It took almost a generation to get this idea into a bottle. But then, it was a pretty ambitious idea.

Every great Scotch is built around a few very rare whiskies, with perhaps 20 others in "supporting roles."

What if we could get these key whiskies (the heart of the world's best Scotches) and combine them in one new Scotch?

We started after the war. And it took until now to get everything we wanted for 100 Pipers.

Rich. Islay whiskies. Smooth whiskies from Falkirk and Campbeltown. Mellow Keith whisky, and the fragile whisky of Speyside.

We built a library of 50 whiskies and then tried them in 517 different blends. The last blend used 30 of these and became 100 Pipers.

So if you've ever wondered what the best of Scotland would be like, all in one bottle, you're about to find out.

Hundreds see Miss Fowler, Ensign Reason exchange vows

By LULA JONES GARRETT

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The beautiful United States Naval Academy Chapel, here, was filled with fashionable guests, Saturday, for the wedding of Miss Diane Lillian Fowler and Ensign Joseph Paul Reason.

The ceremony, at 8:30 p.m. was preceded by a half hour or organ music by Professor Donald C. Gilley, director of musical activities at the chapel.

Lt. Lowell W. Van Tassell, chaplain, U.S.N., officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The chapel altar was decored with white gladiol.

MISS FOWLER, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. James Daniel Fowler, was escorted by her father. She wore a gown of silk organza and Alencon lace over taffeta. The gown was fashioned along empire lines. The closely fitted high rising bodice of lace in wild rose pattern was designed with a portrait neck line and long sleeves with calla - lily points at the wrists.

The organza skirt which featured a band of matching lace above the hem line, drifted softly to the floor and cascaded from the empire line into a sweeping train.

Her pure silk illusion veil was held by a double crown of pearls. Her flowers were a cascade of white blossoms.

• • •

MRS. THOMAS CRAIG of Washington was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Misses Leslie I. Hill of Detroit, Jean M. Davison and Joan K. Martin of Washington, and Brenda Bryan of this city.

The honor attendant wore a floor-length taffeta gown of heart beat blue. The empire style was defined with a band of cerucite blue and featured a floating panel attached at the shoulders.

Bridesmaids wore gowns of the same design in nector with parfait trim. Matching shoes and head pieces, and bouquet in milti-colors completed their costumes.

• • •

ENSIGN REASON, who graduated during the June Week commencement at the Academy, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Reason of Washington.

He had as best man, William Cornish of Washington.

Ushers were Cadet James D. Fowler, Jr. of the U.S. Military Academy, West Point; Ensign Floyd Grayson, USN; Ensign Stanley Carter, USN; Lt. Dennis F. Hightower, USA; Patrick Butler, Arthur Weiseger and Thomas C. Marshall, all of Washington; and Midshipman Calvin Huey (U.S. Naval Academy) of Los Angeles, Calif.

• • •

SEVERAL HUNDRED guests attended the reception in the Officers' Club of the Academy, where they lingered for more than two hours over champagne and fruit punch and dined from a sidebard buffet tables placed at three vantage points about the large auditorium.

Mrs. Reason, a graduate of Wayne State University, Detroit Mich., is on the faculty of School No. 13, Baltimore.

Her husband studied at Swarthmore and Howard University before being appointed to the Naval Academy. His immediate assignment is the Philadelphia Navy Yard. In September he will go to Bainbridge, Md., and in February, 1966 to Schenectady, N.Y. Most of this will be for specialized studies.

• • •

FOR HER DAUGHTER'S wedding and reception, Mrs. Fowler was gowned in blue peau de soie, with matching accessories, mis. Reason wore a gown designed from a sari in royal purple and silver.

MR. AND MRS. Howard S. Lewis were married in Saint James Episcopal Church, Saturday. The bride is the former Miriam Andrea Brown.

(See story on Page A-10)

Miss Williams bride of Charles E. Dutton

The Metropolitan Methodist Church was the setting, Saturday, for the marriage of Miss Adele E. Williams, daughter of Mrs. Rosetta Bourne Williams, and Charles E. Dutton.

Mr. Dutton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Dutton of New Orleans, La.

The Rev. Frank L. Williams officiated at the ceremony. Miss Myrtle Mack was soloist and A. Maurice Murphy was organist.

• • •

MISS WILLIAMS was given in marriage by her uncle, William N. Britt. Her fitted gown of silk organza was made with long sleeves and featured a large bow of the material at the back, from which floated a brief train. Panels of hand embroidered lace enhanced the entire front of the gown.

Her finger-tip length veil was attached to a heart - shaped tiara of pearls and rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

• • •

MISS PHYLISS THOMAS was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Pauselie Sewell, Michelle Pinn and Gayle Clark.

They wore identical street-length dresses of silk shantung, featuring slight bustles held by bows at the back. The bow theme was carried over in the attendants head pieces, each of whom wore small bows to which veils matching the color of their dresses were attached.

Miss Thomas wore yellow and carried an arm bouquet of yellow carnations. The bridesmaids, in aqua, carried hand bouquets of aqua tinted carnations.

Yvette Britt, cousin of the bride, and flower girl, was dressed in white cotton lace. The hem of the dress being entwined with a band of green velvet.

• • •

MELVIN WALLACE of Washington was best man. Ushers were John Dutton of Chicago, Ill., cousin of the bridegroom; John Giles and George Reed. With the exception of the best man, the ushers are Omega Phi Psi Fraternity brothers of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Williams, mother of the bride, wore a princess line silk serge street-length dress, white accessories and an orchid corsage. Her ensemble was topped with a bouffant pink organdy hat which ended in a self material flower at the back with hanging stems.

Mrs. Dutton wore pale blue cotton lace over tan taffeta, tan accessories and a white orchid. Mrs. M. Franres Bourne of Lusby, Md., maternal grandmother of the bride, wore eggshell crepe with navy accessories and a natural orchid.

• • •

MR. DUTTON is employed by the Westinghouse Corporation and is studying electrical engineering at Johns Hopkins University. Mrs. Dutton is a student at Morgan State College. After a brief honeymoon in Atlantic City, they will reside in Baltimore where both will continue their studies.

A reception followed at which hostesses assisting included Misses Peggy Jones Jill Hardy and Patricia Chase and Mrs. Dotcemia Phears. Mrs. Dorothy McGowan directed the wedding.

• • •

AMONG OUT-OF-TOWN guests were:

W. Austin Bourne, paternal grandfather of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Earle A. Bourne, aunt and uncle of the bride, all of Lusby, Md.; Mrs. Sarah Richardson of Cincinnati, Ohio, sister of the bridegroom; and Mrs. Linda Wallace of Washington.

MR. AND MRS. William L. Robinson were married in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson of Bernice Ave., Baltimore. The bride is the former Miss Dora Ann Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Jones of Creedmoore, N.C.

METROPOLITAN METHODIST CHURCH Baltimore, was the setting, Saturday, for the wedding of Miss Adele Eugenia Williams and Charles Edward Dutton.

MARIONE CROXTON, who, Thursday, flies off for a trip around the world, was the center of the gay group which Margaret Buck gathered at her Catonsville place, Saturday.

Mrs. Buck tucked round tables 'neath gaily colored umbrellas on her beautiful back lawn . . . spread a lavish buffet, also on the lawn, and then did what the smartest hostess would do so, allowed her guests to follow their inclinations.

Some, of course, settled in the Bucks' elegant living room for cocktails and chatter, ere meandering to the lawn . . . which, of course, all finally reached.

Marione looked lovely in a straight - line frock in two shades of pink, the vertical stripes alternating in dull and bright stripes. The hostess was equally charming in flower - splashed white, and the guests added up the high fashion note in chic summer silks, linens, and what - have - you.

They included Hattie Hilten, Ethel Payne, Rachel Smith, Lillie Matthews, Verda Welcome, Jeanette Jeudey, Marie Murphy, Mae Williams, Audrey Norris, Gertrude Urquhart, Leona Carpenter, Carolyn Boston, Mae Fortune, Olga Parker, Lula Patterson, Elizabeth Brooks and Christine Moore.

I STARTED to say that the most relaxing and satisfying picnic of the myrid given during this season is that by that small and intimate group, the Couples' Club . . . but then when I recollect those who tucked themselves around those tables for several hours, I do not know how relaxed they were.

But I can say much for relaxing around those picnic tables where the sippables flowed and the snacks were plentiful.

I can go on with that satisfaction idea, too.

For the Deshields filled a buffet to the groaning point with picnic fare from the proverbial ribs, baked beans, fried chicken to the several sorts of sands, breads, etc. . . . and where the guests were not shy about filling those tray sized plates.

Yvette Murphy had arranged the affair, which was held at Olga Chambers' country estate. The hosts were Messrs. and Mesdames J. Hiram Butler John Rich, William Stanford, Ben Forbman, Medford Reynolds,
