Graham-Tucker wedding held

Miss Pauline Tucker and Nathaniel Graham Jr., exchanged wedding vows in a double - ring ceremony in the St. James AUMP Church, Towson, recently.

The Rev. J. A. McManus officiated. A program of music was provided by Mrs. Vergie Lewis, organist; and Mrs. Barbara Bell, soloist.

* * *

THE BRIDE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Tucker, was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white chiffon and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Attending her was Miss Ruth Goodwyn of Washington, who wore pink chiffon and carried pink carnations.

At the reception, held in the home of the bride's parents, 2028 Cecil Ave., the guests included:

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Graham Sr., parents of the bridegroom; Marshall W. Jones Jr., Arthur Spencer, Roosevelt Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. William Backus, Warren and Miss Ernestine Wingate.

Mesdames Iona Hughes, Arlene Smith, Ida Diggs, Geraldine Harris; Messrs. Charles Adams, Russell Ross, J. C. Jones, Willie Clark;

Messrs. and Mesdames Charles Adams, Cal Robinson, Sylvester Tucker, Robert Williams, Mrs. Jesse Green; Mrs. Mary Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rodgers, Mrs. Maggie Gardner, Miss Myrtle Graham.

Edward S. Ailor, 3rd., Edward Powell, Frank M. Conaway,

Messrs. and Mesdames Herbert Gardner, Walter H. Cook, Norman Chapman, James Wormley, Edward Cooper,

Mesdames Shirley Parker, Elizabeth Gibson, Rita Cooper, James T. Lewis, Marjorie Watkins, Lelia Powell, Florence Cosby, Mesdames Delores Trypland, Elva Newton, LILLIE Hopkins, George Blackwell, Jessie J. Morris, Arthur J. Harris, Mirian Cook, Ronnie Locke, Marjorie Campbell, Grace Powell, Evelyn Addison, Carol J. Hayes, Sweetie Shorter.

Misses Alma Barnes, Janet Yates, Linda Vernon, Jeri Ann Gill, Karen Hughes, Barbara Green, Mary Gannon, Lois Hayes, Tillie Hagler,

Misses Lynn Bennett, Martha Lonsdale, Linda Schaninger, Rose McGill, Sis, Ruth Small, Elia Harris, June Newton, Sarah Redmond;

Irvin Gray, James Barnes, Lester Groupp, G. Lee Hunt, Ernest Gaiser.

PROVIDENT'S NEW LOOK, but not the new Provident. The hospital has undergone some modernization in the admitting office and the emergency admitting offices. Although expenses were not great because of plans for the new Provident, officials felt that the hospital and employees would benefit, if they were given some practical experience in areas similar to those to be in the new Provident. As a result, a recovery room, (which is an innovation) and an intensive care program are being set up to familiarize employees with the proposed new facilities.

Mrs. Irene Lightner, Washington.

Among the Baltimoreans attending were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Robert Bailey, John W. Richardson, Harry Cohen, Bennett Pulliter, M. Andrew, E. Parham, Wesley Stubbs, Elmer Blackwell, Messrs. and Mesdames Clifton C. Christian, Martin Duncan, Cecil Cooper, Daniel May, Clarence Frazier, M. W. Dorsey, Norman Brooks, Vernon Dawkins, Jesse Meyers.

Messrs. and Mesdames Clarence Harris, John Parrott, Daniel Ringgold.

Gary-Lee wedding in Enon Baptist Church

The flower bedecked Enon Baptist Church was the scene recently of the wedding of Miss Mamie Idella Lee and Gilbert Bernard Gray of this city.

The bride was radiant in an unusual bouffant ice blue gown which was fashioned with an apron-like white Chantilly lace front heavily encrusted with seed pearls. A lengthy train hung from a bustle effect i seed pearls. A lengthy train hung from a bustle effect in the back.

Her matching headpiece and veil were of sheer illusion. Miss Lee carried a trailing bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis. Her jewelry, a gift from the bridegroom, was a delicate necklace and earring set fashioned of pearls and diamonds.

* * *

FOR HIS best man, the bridegroom selected Meredith Addison. Miss Geraldine Jackson, in pale green, served as maid of honor.

The bridal attendants were: Mrs. Agnes Draper, Mrs. Francine Ailor, Miss Delores Stanley, Mrs. Doris Washington and Mrs. Queen Jones.

Ushers were Edgar Powell, Frank Conaway, Charles Duggins, Edward Ailor and the bridegroom's brother, Ronald Gray.

* * *

MISS LEE'S bridesmaids were attired in pale apricot adorned with trailing back panels while Robert Draper, 2. ringbearer, and Denise Tate, 5, the flower girl wore white.

After the ceremony, performed by the Rev. A. J. Payne, the guests proceeded to the Fiesta Room in the Alcazar where they greeted the bridal party, had luncheon, and danced to the music of a chamber music trio.

* * *

THE MOTHER of the bride, Mrs. George Lewis of Petersburg, Va. was attired in a floor length coral crepe gown made with a V neckline, and matching hat and shoes.

Mrs. Mildred Carter, the bridegroom's mother, was fetchingly garbed in an emerald green and pale beige gown fashioned with scoop neckline and long sleeves. With it, she wore a beige head piece and emerald shoes.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. GRAY are at home at Kennedy - North Apartments on Rossiter Avenue.

Several parties preceded the ceremony. Miss Linda Vernon was hostess at a lingerie shower, and Mrs. Tillie Hagler and Mrs. Agnes Draper were co - hostesses at a miscellaneous shower given for the petite bride.

Out - of - town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis Jr., Miss Juanita Lewis, Kenneth Lewis, Miss Audrey Lewis, Mrs. Emma Parham, Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt Lewis, Mrs. Lucille Goode, all of Petersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stubbs, Mr. and Mrs. Stapleton Tabb Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Stapleton Jr. of Gloucester, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Irving Gray of New York City and

Methodist exhibit begins

Churches, personalities and institutions of the Methodist Church Washington Conference will be depicted in a special exhibit to open in Baltimore's Lovely Lane Museum on Monday, June 28 at 3:30 p.m.

Retired Bishop Edgar A. Love of Baltimore will be the speaker and the Rev. N. B. Carrington, Washington Conference historian, will unveil the display which is entitled, "A Century With the Washington Conference 1864 - 1964."

The Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church last week merged with the Washington Conference churches and pastors within its territory to end a century of separate church organization for colored Methodists in Maryland.

The public is invited to view the display at Lovely Lane Museum, 2200 St. Paul St. weekdays 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday after church. The Museum will also be open Saturdays 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dangerous 'cracker ball' firecrackers discovered

The Baltimore City Health Department and the Baltimore Police Department have announced that they have found one wholesaler and several retailers selling a dangerous "cracker ball" type firecracker in Baltimore City. The dealers were ordered to withhold the fire crackers from sale since it is unlawful to sell such fire works in the State.

The City Health Department was alerted to this danger by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration when 9 small children residing in Ohio and the District of Columbia were injured when they bit into them.

Sold under the name "Cracker Balls," they are wrapped in small glassene-type envelopes which contain about 10 firecrackers each, and are labeled as having been manufactured in Taiwan or Japan.

Parents are warned to be on the lookout for these small, but dangerous, spherical, colored firecrackers that are about the same size as small chocolate coated peanuts because a number of boxes of the firecrackers were sold before being taken from sale. If firecrackers are found, they should be handled with caution and the Police Department notified so they can investigate the source of sale of the firecrackers.

AFRO's Williams journalist of year

By BAKER E. MORTEN

Attorney General Nicholas deB. Katzenbach committed the "full energies and resources" of the Justice Department to an all out attack on public school segregation Saturday night.

Then he settled down to hear from such people as United Nations President Alex Quaison - Sackey, of Ghana, Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R. Calif.), R. Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps and the nation's anti-poverty program, and Clarence Mitchell, Jr., director of Washington's NAACP Bureau.

The Attorney General, as the main speaker for the 22nd anniversary celebration of the Capital Press Club, told some 1,500 persons that "we are now enabled and must devote our full time and energies to the remaining legal battle on the first frontier of Liberty."

There is no more field of battle, he said, than School desegregation. The nation's top lawyer described today as the "second frontier of liberty and pointed out that "officially sanctioned segregation—bigotry frozen into law—is in its death throes."

PASSAGE OF the voting rights bill is imminent and will free the Justice Department for a broadside on school segregation.

"Only two percent of colored children in the South attend integrated classes," Katzenbach explained, "and 11 years have passed since the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed segregation in the public schools."

On hand to hear the Attorney General at the Washington Hotel and to be honored themselves by the press club were retired nurse Mable K. Staupers, actor Ossie Davis, Mississippi NAACP chief Aaron Henry, actress Abbey Lincoln, columnist Art Buchwald, editors Herbert Nipson and Ernest Dunbar, and columnist Eric Sevareid.

* * *

JAMES D. WILLIAMS, editor of the Washington AFRO-AMERICAN, was named "Journalist of the Year" by the club, with Wallace Terry of Time Magazine and Larry Still of Jet Magazine capturing second and third place prizes, respectively.

Photographer Maurice Sorrell of the Johnson Publishing Company won top honors in the field of photo journalism, and 17 year - old Curtis Smalls, a June graduate of Dunbar High School here, received the club's John F. Kennedy Memorial Scholarship Award for the study of journalism in college.

District Commissioner John B. Duncan, Undersecretary for African Affairs G. Mennen Williams, and U.S. Ambassador to the UN Franklin H. Williams were also in attendance.

"OUR DIRECT efforts against segregated schools are already accelerating," Katzenbach disclosed. "Just this week we intervened in five school cases in the South—four in Mississippi and one in Virginia.

"I hope that our efforts will complement those of the NAACP," he said, because "we are committed to the goal of complete school desegregation for the same reasons that the Civil rights movement itself began with that goal: for the importance of education."

UN President Quaison-Sackey, Sen. Kuchel, Mr. Shriver and Mr. Mitchell were cited by the club for distinguished achievement.

* * *

THE UN president, first colored man to serve as head of the world organization, announced that "your struggle (the colored American) is our struggle (the African)."

"The colored American must achieve if black men are to be accepted," he said, while urging all men of color to strive for excellence.

Sen. Kuchel, whose fight for civil rights dates back 12 years, counseled Americans to "stand up and fight bigotry, intolerance and hatred. "We need to continue to be united for decency, justice and equality," he appealed.

* * *

MR. SHRIVER predicted that "more colored children will attend integrated classrooms this year than ever before in history." He said some 596,000 four and five - year olds are headed toward desegregated situations under a school program called "Operation Headstart."

"We are going to win the war on poverty at home and the war for freedom in the world," he declared.

Clarence Mitchell, the NAACP's veteran congressional lobbyist for human dignity, saluted a bevy of politicians for their roles in bringing about passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

He cited the late President John F. Kennedy, President Johnson, Chief Justice Earl Warren, and many others for their aid and participation in the bill.

* * *

THE REMARKS of actor Ossie Davis fell on the audience like a bomb.

"I am appalled by the mess and junk in which I am included in television and movie roles. I stand on the principal that I have some talent, and I prefer to think that I have something inside which they (white actors) may have lost.

"I want to see integrated cowboys riding integrated horses, coming down integrated streets fighting integrated villains."

Davis said "no law or poverty program can reach the people in the street who are broken of spirit, and this is where the problem lies."

BUCHWALD, who has achieved eminence at the art of making people laugh through his column, did it again Saturday.

"I am surprised at getting this award," he said, "because I have not been as concerned with civil rights as I have been with protecting southern mayors who come to D.C.

"I have founded the United Mayors Organization which is designed to provide southern mayors who come where to go to keep them out of trouble."

Buchwald lamented the fact that Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was not present for an award. "Without his stupidity, there would be no civil rights problem," he quipped.

Editors Nipson (Ebony Magazine) and Dunbar (Look Magazine) pointed out the increasing opportunities for aspiring young journalists in the magazne field of communication.

Columnist Sevareid described colored Americans as "the cutting edge of history, representing the greatest cause this country has faced in 50 years."

He said non - whites have their hands on the tools for change in America. "And I am certain they will use them proficiently."

A dance followed the anniversary banquet.

Which was 18th century England's favourite pastime: Rugby or Gordon's?

Sporting Englishmen first played Rugby around 1870. Which means Gordon's had the field to itself for over a century. Since 1769, to be precise. The year Mr. Gordon made his silky-smooth, icy-dry discovery. The gin that's still England's biggest seller. Not to mention America. And all the rest of the fun-loving world. Next time you're in a sporting mood, try Gordon's. Every bit as exhilarating as Rugby. But not so exhausting.

Howard law dean named to institute

WASHINGTON

Dean C. Clyde Ferguson, Jr. of Howard University School of Law has been elected a member of the Institute of Judicial Administration, retired chief Judge Emory H. Niles of Baltimore, president of the Institute, has announced.

The Institute, which serves as a national clearing house to assist all organizations interested in the courts, was established in 1952, with headquarters at the New York University School of Law.

* * *

A NON-PROFIT organization, the Institute promotes improvements in federal and state courts, conducts studies on problems of court congestion and modernization, offers education programs for judges and administrators, and publishes the results of research in judicial administration.

Dean Ferguson assumed his current position in October, 1963. He previously served as general counsel to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights from 1962 to 1963.

In 1963, he served as United States Alternate on th U.N. Subcommittee on the Prevention of Discrimination against Minorities, and as a special legal advisor to the U. S. Mission to the U.N.

Dean Ferguson was a member of the Rutgers Law School faculty from 1955 to 1962. He is presently a member of the ABA Advisory committee on sntencing and review in the project to formulate minimum standards committee on sentencing and of Criminal Justice, administered by the Institute of Judicial Administration.
