
WADE H. HORSEY II

Praises Congressman who took him 'under his wing'

Wade H. Horsey II, who lives with his parents, Mrs. Lillian McDonald and Lloyd G. McDonald and his sister, Kim McDonald, 8, at 3806 Dennlyn Rd., was graduated from Johns Hopkins University in June with a bachelor's degree in Engineering Science. He was also commissioned second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Before serving his commitment, however, he will attend graduate school at Rutgers University to study for a master's degree.

Meantime, he has accepted a summer post at Western Electric Co. where he is an assistant on the Production Engineering Staff.

Mr. Horsey has had an interesting career as a student and for four years as an industrious young man, working as he studied, he gives credit to Maryland's U.S. Congressman Samuel N. Friedel (D., 7th D) and to his parents.

• • •

IN A letter to Congressman Friedel after young Horsey finished Hopkins and viewed the bright year ahead, he expressed gratitude and did a bit of reminising.

Saying "I would like to express my sincere gratitude for the opportunity you afforded me," Lt. Horsey recalled:

In 1961 he was chosen as Cong. Friedel's principal Nominee to the U.S. Naval Academy. When he could not attend because of the Navy's stringent vision requirements and decided to go to Hopkins his benefactor again aided with a $1,000 a year scholarship.

In addition, Congressman Friedel supplied the young student with summer work in his Congressional offices.

About this, Lt. Horsey states, "Thus I was able to pay most of my tuition, lab and book fees and other incidentals necessary for college life."

Highlighting the letter is the notation: "From first - hand experience I know that you go out of your way to assist those who come to you for help and I am happy that you were able to be of assistance to me."

Mr. Horsey expressed gratitude to many of his former teachers at all levels of his public school career and to others who encouraged him and assisted him along the way, including his father, Wade I, who is a resident of Washington.

Young scientists get inside view of bank

Seventeen members of Tomorrow's Scientists and Technicians' Club, sponsored by the Baltimore Urban League, recently visited the head office of Maryland National Bank.

The purpose of the tour was to learn something of the operations of the state's largest bank.

Accompanying the club members was Lloyd C. Mitchner, associate director of Education and Youth Incentives of the Baltimore Urban League.

Prior to the tour, the group met in the bank's board room and heard discussions on commercial banking, training and development, and education, from bank trainers, Eugene Bosley and Brice Davis. Coordinator was Donald W. DeHaven, assistant personnel officer of the bank.

INSIDE STORY — Maryland National Bank visitors, members of the Tomorrow's Scientists and Technicians Club, are shown the check collection process with Miss Carolyn Jacobs, center, operating the proof machine and Alan E. Hepding (right), manager of the proof department, explaining the process with the aid of Brice Davis (behind him), a bank trainee.

Queen Anne's youths get Social Security jobs

As a result of an American Federation of Government Employees No. 1923 Social Security Administration Union official's vacation in Centreville, last year, nine Eastern Shore youngsters are working at SS headquarters this summer.

Last year, the visitor, Count Thomas, vice president of the AFGE Local, was guest of the Rev. John M. Day, the Centreville Wesley Methodist pastor, and learned first - hand of lack of youth job and training opportunities in Queen Anne's County.

To "do 'something about it," Mr. Thomas was aided by Miss Esther Sholl, chief of the SS Employment Branch, who, arranged with Mrs. Velma Kennedy, counselor at Kennard High School to give civil service examinations to county high school youngsters.

This week, nine who qualified went to work at SS headquarters under President Johnson's Summer Youth Opportunity Program.

The Rev. Mr. Day has instituted a Wednesday recreational night for the young people at his church as "something to look forward to, to break up the week."

JAMES CHASE (right) Social Security personnel staffing specialist, was on hand early this week to greet the first of the group of Eastern Shore youngsters hired through joint union - management effort spearheaded by Count Thomas, vice president, AFRG No. 1923. Left to right, Thomas M. Shortall, Anna Marie Maddox, Mary Evelyn Wilmer, Charlene G. Anthony, Sylvia Rochester, and Ethlyn Jones.
