has always fallen asleep easily and sleeps soundly.

He remembers he stayed awake most of the night before, Sunday, visiting friends.

On his way home from Whitmore Ave., he took the usual short - cup across the tracks. Since it was hot, he said, he sat down on the rails to rest, almost in a direct line from his home.

Having lived at the Ellicott Dr. residence 13 years, he had grown accustomed to train noise and it did not awaken him, he said. He fell asleep near a curve and the train was evidently up on him before it could stop or he realized it.

Williams told the AFRO he remembers the impact, was conscious of being dragged and then things happened so fast he became numb.

Although the engine was on his lower limbs, he said he felt no pain, could see his left leg caught in a hook and could feel the heat from the engine.

Until he reached the hospital he said his thoughts came and went in a daze and time had little meaning.

Young Williams is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. George W. Williams. His father has pastored the United House of Prayer Church, where the family belongs, for 10 years.

The Rev. Mr. Williams is also a welder, first - class, at Maryland Dry Dock, employed there 15 years. The couple has seven childrn.

The mother, Mrs. Alice Williams, told the AFRO she was at home when passers-by said a young man was trapped under the train.

She said, "When I heard it, my son popped in my mind. I know he's easy to go to sleep. All his life he's been a great one to sleep."

With the same knowing "mothers have" she added that her son would be all right soon and said, "The Lord was with him. He is the only one who could have saved him."

TWO OF Williams' sisters were spectators at the scene of the accident but did not know the victim was their brother.

Miss Geraldine Williams, 17, a June honor graduate of Edmondson High who enters St. Agnes Hospital School of Nursing in September, told the AFRO she and a younger sister were at the home of another sister who lives in the next block of Ellicott Dr.

She said, "we heard the train blow and blow and we said, "Wonder what's going on".

Seeing the rrowd going toward the train embankment, Geraldine and Doretha, 14, an 8th grader at Calverton High, went to look but could not get close enough to see who was trapped under the engine.

"I was just about to go and tell my mother to call the police."

"I asked him what for?" said Sgt. Schultz, "And he said, 'The man is bothering me.' I asked him 'what man?' and he said, 'the man I shot.'"

Robinson's statement claims that he and two other youths charged in the homicide, Marshall G. Martin, 18 and Robert B. Parker, 24, went to the funeral establishment after meeting in a house in the 1000 block W. Mulberry St.

BEFORE THEY left the house, Robinson's confession read, "I picked up a crowbar from a closet in the dining room and gave it to Marshall. I had the gun in my back pocket.

"When we got across the street from the funeral parlor . . . Marshall asked me where I was going. I told him I was going in the funeral parlor to get $10 a man in there owed me.

"I started up the steps and I told Marshall to watch out on the corner.

"I walked up to the steps, to the top and wrapped at the door. Lineberg (Parker) came up behind me. He wrapped at the door and when nobody answered he said, 'ring the bell.'

"I rang the bell and a man opened a window on the second floor. Lineberg said something to him and he said 'wait a minute I'll be down.'

"HE CAME down and opened the door about four inches. I hit the door with my shoulder and pushed the man back behind the door.

"Lineberg ran upstairs and I fired two shots into the woodwork. Lineberg came down and then the man pushed me and took a swing at Lineberg and started out of the door to the street.

"That's when I fired a shot at the man and kept firing until the gun was empty except one bullet.

"The man ran down the steps and fell at the bottom. When he fell I ran into the place and started to move the Hi Fi (set) to the door . . . I saw the man next door looking out the window and ran out of the house."

ROBINSON said that it had been another of the charged youth's idea to go to the funeral home at 519 N. Schroeder St.

He said they expected to get at least $125 and that he had lied to Marshall because

THE CONTEST just started June 25, so there is still plenty of time to get in on the ground floor, while the vote-collecting is easy.

You will have all summer to collect votes for these exciting prizes, because the contest doesn't end until August 14.

To be eligible for the contest, here's all you have to do:

1. Be sure you are registered as a member of the regular Clean Block Campaign.

2. Be a boy or girl under the age of 19.

3. Send in five coupons to

However, from the hill they could see the rescue team working, jarking the engine up and then removing the man.

"After that," Geraldine said, "we went on home. Later when the police came to tell us it was Milton, mother said she felt it. She feels things before they happen, sometimes."

Miss Williams also said her brother falls asleep easily, at the table or reading.

"There's nothing wrong with him but he just sleeps soundly," she added.

THE OTHER Williams children are: Mrs. Mildred Mason, 2730 Ellicott Dr., a former Cortez Peters Business School student, now a toll collector at the Harbor Tunnel; George Williams, 21, an upholsterer; Miss Rebecca Williams, 18, a Coppin State College sophomore; Charles, 15, a Carver Vocational High student.

were drifting back in a column to their district of the papermill city under a steady rain.

Police charged that Henry Austin, 21, and Milton Johnson, 26, both of Bogalusa, jumped from a car at the end of the column and that Austin fired three shots at Crowe. One bullet missed.

STATE POLICE said there was no fighting. They barged in and kept back a crowd that gathered.

A sheriff's patrol car dispersed a group of white bystanders that had fallen in behind the marchers.

Whites have heckled and tooted car horns at the demonstrators for two consecutive days.

Police said the two accused men were riding in a car owned by A. Z. Young, president of the Bogalusa Civic and Voters League, a civil rights organization.

As the marchers came to the Pine Tree Plaza Shopping Center two blocks from city hall, a colored girl jumped screaming from the line of the march with a bleeding nose. At this point, police said, Austin and Johnson leaped from the car.

The marchers faltered when the shooting occurred but parade leaders kept them going.

Earlier, three colored persons sought service in a restaurant at the plaza. They were turned away.

PETERSBURG, Va. — Dr. Harry A. Johnson, professor of education and director of the Virginia State College Audio - Visual Center, will deliver a series of lectures and conduct seminars on "Education and Technology" in Norway next month. Dr. Johnson as guest of the Norwegian Government will go to Scandinavia to serve as Visiting Professor at the University of Oslo, University of Bergen, and the Technical University at Trondheim.

AF sergeant shot by policeman is critical

"We don't know what happened there except what we read in the newspapers. All we're interested in now is for Frank to live."

William Samuels, 727 Reservoir St., was talking to the AFRO Thursday about his son, Frank Jerry Samuels, 24, who is in critical condition in Provident Hospital after he was shot in the chest early Tuesday by a police officer.

Samuels, an Air Force sergeant, was home on leave from the Andrews Air Force Base Hospital where he was under going psychiatric evaluation, according to police.

PATROLMAN Dominic Mastromattee, of the Western District reported the shooting occurred at about 1:25 a.m., at Hoffman St. and Pennsylvania Ave.

He stated he was using the call box at this location when he noticed an argument between two men in front of a nearby tavern.

Officer Mastromattee said he broke the two men up and went into the tavern with one of them, Bernard Brown, the bar manager.

Mr. Brown told him that he and the man got into an argument when he asked him to leave the tavern because he was disturbing the band, the officer said.

FRANK J. SAMUELS

As they were talking the man returned, said something to Brown, then sat at the bar, officer Mastromattee reported.

• • •

MR. BROWN then instructed the officer to place Samuels under arrest and, according to Patrolman Mastromattee, as he was arresting the man an altercation developed.

He stated that Samuels went for his gun.

The officer reported he managed to keep possession of the weapon and fired at Samuels who stepped back, then came at him again only to collapse into his arms.

Samuels was taken to the hospital where he was admitted in critical condition.

Hospital authorities told the AFRO late Thursday the young man's condition had not changed.

"It is really hard to believe it happened the way the police say. But since we weren't there we'll just have to wait for the trial," said Mr. Samuels.

Mr. Samuels is a maintance man at Police Headquarters.

Cherry Hill will honor five leaders

The Cherry Hill Coordinating Council will honor five leaders for superior service to the Cherry Hill community during a dinner meeting at the Mohawk Motor Inn, 1701 Russell St., on Monday evening, July 12.

To be honored are:

John A. Schmid, Jr., principal of School No. 160.

Mrs. Viola Wright, principal of School No. 159.

Rev. John H. Clarke, pastor of Cherry Hill First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Elizabeth Greer, community leader and retired employee of the Baltimore Schools.

Shephard H. Burge, Jr., executive secretary of the Cherry Hill Coordinating Council.

THE COUNCIL will culminate its activities for the year with this dinner meeting. Reservations can be made through Sunday, July 11, by contacting the council president, Mrs. Sarah J. Bundy, at Elgin 5-5790.

Mrs. Eva Jefferies, chairman of the program, will serve as master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Isolene Ceo will perform her duties as historian.

How Lt. Judd interprets search law

"We're making an exception of this case. We couldn't let the AFRO write a big headline story like that, misinforming the public and not do anything about it."

Speaking was Western District's Lt. Joseph Judd.

He was referring to the grand jury indictment Wednesday of Garnett (TV Tank) Budd, 38, 2500 block Arunah Ave., on charges of maintaining a disorderly house and disturbing the peace.

Mr. Budd had been acquitted June 19, on similar charges in Western Municipal Court when Judge I. Sewell Lamdin ruled that Lt. Judd had no authority to amend a warrant issued by the court.

THE WARRANT, which resulted in the raid on Mr. Budd's home, according to the court, directed Lt. Judd to carry out the search.

Instead, Lt. Judd designated subordinate officers, Patrolmen Joseph Graham and William Howard to make the raid while he attended a seminar designed to bring law enforcement officials up to date on search and seizure laws.

Of this Lt. Judd declared Wednesday, "I did what I thought and still think was correct according to my interpretation of the law."

Sixteen other person who had been arrested at the Arunah St. house also were released.
