Foley urges the business-minded

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Small Business Administrator Eugene P. Foley last week urged colored citizens to become more business - minded as a step toward assuming a stronger role in the nation's economy.

Foley spoke at a ceremony dedicating the opening of the Watson Meat Company's new plant in Los Angeles, Calif. The plant received a $206,200 loan from the Small Business Administration to expand meat packing operations — the largest SBA loan ever to a colored firm.

Sharp St. piano students put on enjoyable program

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Mrs. Florence C. Carter presented her students in their annual piano recital at Sharp Street Methodist Church. The program ranged from a number of delightfully imaginative study compositions to standard works by Bach, Schubert, Massanet Grieg, Tschaikowsky Moussorgsky and Brams.

Appearing were: Donna Harris, Melaine Shaw, Mitra Pitts, Corene Hairston, Carla Bailey, Barbara Harris, Cathy Craig Harrish, Melissa Benmaiden, Angela Harrington, Craig Harrish, Melissa Benett, George Maddox, George Parrish, Rhonda Ogletha and Portia Pinkney (in a piano trio)

Warren Russell, Veronela Hopkins, Kay Davis, Larry Morton, Darlene Menzies, Gloda Lee, Shirley Alexander, Janice Bowie, Kim Bailey, Marcia Lewis, Jeffry Miller, Hardenia Rose, Veronica Beason, Muriel Price, Jacquelyn McGuire, Larry Lewis, Carolyn Bates, Gale Parker, Permelia Webb, Sylvia Williams and Linda and Diana Wharton (in a duet).

Among the midsummer musical events was a concert by the Rev. Robert C. Smith, baritone soloist, of New York, who was presented at St. Martin's Church of Christ, 408 Orchard Street.

Richard G. Richardson Jr. was featured also in three original instrumental works. W. Sherman Smith was accompanist.

MALL - BOX: Noted in the Baltimore Symphony "Overture" (newsletter) Maestro Herman Adler, music director, announcement of the coming season.

Rudolf Firkusny, pianist will play the opening concerts, on Oct. 30 and 31. On Nov. 3rd, the international figure, Van Cliburn will play the Rachmaninoff Concerto, No. 3 which "rested - o fame in Moscow."

During the spring Reta Tebaldi, soprano (on March 13) and Andre Watts, the widely acclaimed young pianist, (on April 6) will be the attraction. Glen Gould, who is on sabbatical to devote a year to recording and composing has surcharged his manager to book one single date, April 19 and in Baltimore.

Principal players in the symphony who will be soloists are: Guillermo Petrich, violist Oct. 27 and 28; Ignatius Gennaro, Clarinetist, Jan. 12 and 13; Brittan Johnson, flutist, March 4 and Mindy Virginy, cellist, on Mar. 30.

Our own Jeanette Walters, who won a scholarship to study at the Met this summer, and Fague Springmann, will be the soloists in the Brahms "requiem."

The premiere performance of "Soldier Songs" for baritone and orchestra, by the former Baltimorean, Hugo Weisgall, is programmed for this season also.

Aaron Copland is listed as guest conductor of his symphonic work "Connotations," written for the opening of the Lincoln Center.

Oleg Lobanov, former manager of the Hartford and Columbus (Ohio) Symphonies, will be the new manager of the local orchestra.

The Chamber music Society announces five concerts, to be held on Sunday afternoons at 3:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Baltimore Museum of Art.

At the opening event on November 7, three works by Ernest Krenek will be featured "Alpach Quintet for Woodwinds and Percussion," with the Baltimore Symphony Woodwind players, "Suite for Violoncello," with Mihaly Virlaisy, first "cellist of the local symphony; and "Six Motets" (A Cappella) to be sung by the Bach Society of Baltimore, conducted by George Woodhead.

As is the custom of the Chamber Music Society, the composer will speak to the audience on his compositions.

James Starker, cellist, will present sonatas by Vercoulie, Beethoven and Heiden, with piano. Mr. Heiden will be the composer - speaker of the afternoon.

On January 9, Sylvia Marlowe, harpsichordist, is scheduled in 17 to 20th century works.

David Diamond will be the composer - speaker on February 6 in a performance of his "Piano Trio" and his new song cycle, with Carolyn Beyer, soprano. The program will include a Beethoven trio (instrumental) and songs by Brahms, Wolfe and Strauss.

The series will close on Feb. 20 with the Kohon String Quartet and Iain Hamilton, Composer - speaker, who will speak on the world premiere performance of his new string quartet.

Subscriptions may be placed thru Randolph Rothschild, president of the Society, at 100 E. Redwood Street, or bought singly at the box office.

Concert - goers would do well to arrange their time so as not to include these excellent series, or, if preferable, single concerts. Some may prefer the grandeur of the Symphony at the Lyric and others may choose the intimate charm of the chamber music in the Museum auditorium.

Woman held for jury in assault on police

A 31 - year - old woman, described by her family as having a record of mental illness, was held for action of the grand jury Tuesday on charges of assaulting two police officers and a policewoman.

Bail was set at $7,000 for Mrs. Virine Tinsley, of the 1320 block Lanvale Ave.

Judge Albert H. Blum, at the preliminary hearing in Eastern Municipal Court, said there was "more than enough" evidence to hold the woman for the jury.

Two Eastern District patrolmen, Charles Keiner and Arthur Kline told the court that Mrs. Tinsley bit them as they were placing her under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct Monday afternoon.

Policewoman Carol L. Newbourne testified that she was also bitten by Mrs. Tinsley as she was searching her at Pine Street Station.

BOTH OFFICERS, Keiner and Kline, were treated at Mercy Hospital and returned to duty.

"When we arrived at 1330 Lucerne Ave.," said Patrolman Keiner, "Mrs. Tinsley was arguing with the people who live on the first floor.

"They were arguing about some money Mrs. Tinsley was supposed to give them, or something like that. Anyhow I told Virine to go on aside, I would talk to her later.

"When I went outside to talk with her she started yelling at us and using abusive language. So I told her she was under arrest."

THE OFFICER stated that Mrs. Tinsley said, "No police is going to lock me up. If he tries I'll be his last try."

A scuffle developed during which he and the woman fell to the ground, the officer testified. It was during this time the officer said he was bitten.

Officer Kline told the court that he was bitten by the accused woman as he came to the aid of his fellow patrolman.

Prior to the scuffle, the patrolmen testified, the woman's husband, Bernard Tinsley, 45, came up to them and declared they had no right to arrest his wife.

MR. TINLEY was placed under arrest and charged with interfering with an office in the performance of his duty and disorderly conduct.

Judge Blum set bail for the man at $1,100.

Unidentified members of Mrs. Tinsley's family told Judge Blum that she had been released recently from Crownsville State Hospital.

Cong. referendum

the present case a moot matter.

There would be insufficient lawful time to petition such a new plan to referendum, the deadlines of June 1 and July 1 having passed.

The petition campaign was launched to save, for the time being, the seat of Congressman Edward A. Garmatz, whose Baltimore Third District was scrapped by the new setup.

Baltimore was split into Fourth and Seventh Districts, and Mr. Garmatz was put in the Fourth with Congressman George H. Fallon, dean of Maryland congressmen.

Mr. Garmatz, thus left without a district, would have little to lose in an at-large contest.

bedroom window, from which her husband jumped to safety minutes before, she called, "Katherine, Katherine!"

"I heard her answer me. She said, 'Please help, somebody please help me.'"

Firemen, when they were able to get into the flaming two-story brick dwelling, reported they found Mrs. Broadas' body curled up on the floor beneath the window, which was probably her only exit to safety.

Mr. Broadas told investigators that he and his wife were asleep when he was aroused by the smoke and the crackling sound of fire.

He said he and his wife, holding hands, tried to make it from their bedroom, but the flames drove them back.

Mr. Broadas told police that he then jumped from the window, and was convincing his wife to follow him when she suddenly retreated.

Miss Tyson, police said, made it to safety by coming down the front steps. She substained first, second and third degree burns of both arms and hands.

Mr. Broadas injured his head as a result of the desperate leap from the second story window.

Mrs. Broadas and Pauletta were buried this morning (Friday) in the Baltimore National Cemetery.

Funeral services were held at the Arlington S. Phillips Funeral Home.

League backs property bill

The League of Women Voters announced its support this week of City Council Ordinance 1136, which tightens restrictions on the sale and upkeep of properties, particularly those vacant over lengthy periods.

In a statement to the Council's Judiciary Committee, the organization said in part:

"Three principles incorporated in No. 1136 interest us very much:

"1. The prevention of fraudulent conveyances to non - existent owners.

"2. The recording of names and addresses of new owners under affidavit.

"3. The legal responsibility required of former owners notified of code violations prior to sale.

"We believe that Ordinance 1136 incorporates legal deterrents which will conserve existing neighborhoods.

"We recommend the early passage of this bill."

The Council returns from summer recess in late September.
