Prize Fund needs boost, campaign ends Aug. 22

Contributions are still being sought for the Clean Block Prize Fund which now stands at $1,418.25.

To date over 275 blocks have enrolled in this year's drive representing thousands of workers — sweeping, painting and fixing up blocks throughout the city.

Contributions to the prize fund may be made by mailing checks to AFRO Clean Block, 628 North Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. 21201.

All contributions are used to reward youngsters at the end of the campaign. No contribution is too small.

Soon hard - working youngsters will be looking forward to token rewards for jobs well done. These awards come in the form of cash prizes, gifts and war bonds.

If you have not mailed your contribution yet, please do so now.

COOKING IS FUN

It takes experience to do a good job at food shopping

Shopping for you food can be fun, too!

Shopping for produce is a summertime challenge that most homemakers thoroughly enjoy. It's fun to pick and choose the items you want . . . to be sure you get the most for your money and best foods for your family.

Unfortunately, it takes a lot of experience to make the proper selections. There are no set rules or easy - to - learn instructions for the uninitiated.

• • •

IN BUYING fresh fruits and vegetables, the customer should always ask herself "Is this the best for me, for what I want to use it?" If not, it isn't a good buy no matter how cheap it is.

Generally speaking, the excessive waste in preparation and interior taste of wilted, immature, overripe make the best quality ac- or deteriorated products make the best quality actually your best buy.

For example, bananas, ready to eat and flecked with brown, may sell for only five cents a pound. But if you can't use them within a day, they aren't worth any - thing to you.

A low price might, however, mean that there's a lot of this item available. Then the advantage is yours. Look for items in season. Look also for fruits and vegetables that are grown in your area. With no shipping charges, these should be less expensive.

But don't buy more than you need. A waste of food is a waste of money.

• • •

GET SOME sweet corn if you are out driving through the countryside or if you are shopping today.

When burying corn, look for fresh, green ears and bright, plump, milky kernels that are just firm enough to offer slight resistance to pressure. If the kernels look too small, soft and undeveloped, the corn may be immature and lack flavor when cooked. Large, overly firm kernels may be overmature.

• • •

SHOULD YOU have prepared more corn than needed, there's no reason for waste. You can use the extra corn in many ways — for corn fritters, puffs, waffles or pancakes, or for quick bread batter, baked corn pudding or corn relish using the kernels. Cut the corn off the cob using a sharp knife, and cutting downward, and the kernels will be ready for use.

Outdoor corn cookery can be quite easy. For a SIMPLE - DO CORN . . . Husk each ear of corn and remove the silk. Brush with melted butter or margarine and lightly wrap in heavy - weight aluminum foil. Grill over hot coals, turning occasionally, for 15 to 20 minutes or until tender.

To make Steamin' Good Corn . . . Peel the husks like you'd peel a banana without detaching the husks from the cob, and remove the silk. Quickly dip the ears in water.

Roll the husks back over the kernels, securing the ends tightly with a piece of the husks or string. Submerge the ears in water and soak about 30 minutes. Grill over hot coals, turning occasionally for 15 to 20 minutes until tender.

• • •

EVERYONE likes Surprise Corn . . . Peel the husks like you'd peel a banana without detaching the husk from the cob, and remove the silk. Soak the ears in water for 30 minutes, then drain. Brush with melted butter or margarine, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and wrap with bacon strips.

Roll the husks back over the kernels, smoothing down the ends, and wrap each ear in heavy - weight aluminum foil. Cook on the hot coals, turning once, for 10 to 15 minutes until tender.

Chocolate Mousse, made in minutes

Chocolate Mini - Mousse is a made in a - minute, practically fail - proof and truly luscious dessert.

It is every bit as smooth, as tenderly light and fluffy as its European forerunner. Yet, the mousse that requires no cooking or setting time is swift and easy-to prepare.

True convenience foods like quick melting chocolate pieces, pre - measured unflavored gelatine and instantly dissolving non - fat dry milk are the magic potion. The wonder worker, that combines the whole with lightning speed, is your electric blender.

• • •

WITH CONTROLLED speeds, the blender shaves the chocolate bits to hasten their melting in hot water. It whips in air, so that non-fat dry milk goodness is incorporated in light - as - air mounds. A must — for a mousse.

Then the blender crushes in the ice so completely that it cools the gelatine base dessert in a jiffy. No waiting for dessert here. Spoon the mousse into crystal sherbets to serve immediately or mold it in an impressive bomb.

• • •

CHOCOLATE MINI-MOUSSE requires one-fourth cup cold water, two pkgs. unflavored Gelatin, three-fourth cup boiling water, one - third cup Pet Instant Nonfat Dry Milk (in dry form), one - fourth cup sugar, 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) Semi-Sweet Chocolate pieces, and two cups crushed ice.

Soften gelatin in cold water in Osterizer container. Add boiling water. Cover and process at Lo until gelatin is dissolved. Add nonfat ry milk, sugar an chocolate pieces.

Process at Hi until chips are melted. Add crushed ice and process until mixture begins to thicken, about 1 minute. Pour immediately into 4 dessert dishes.

Food Economist

As the summer season progresses shoppers can almost make out their market lists by using seasonal produce and be assured that they have provided a colorful variety for the table.

There are ways to use the same vegetables and fruits in different combinations and recipes to make them acceptable as family tastefars in close repetition.

Pay attention to textures. Serve a crunchy food with soft; a crisp food with creamed or mashed foods or a raw food with cooked foods. Use different methods of cooking. Do not serve all boiled or all fried foods at the same meal.

Pay attention to color combinations of foods served on the same plate. Have contrasts of hot and cold foods for variety.

• • •

NOW, FOR the market list of buys at the produce counter look for Maryland grown vegetables for freshness and quality. The best values will be found in sweet corn, tomatoes, snap beans and cabbage. Good buys are also to be found in summer squash, cucumbers and green peppers. For salads, the supply of celery is greater than last year at this time and the quality of eastern head lettuce is good and reasonably priced.

The tomato season is in full swing. It is possible to obtain field ripened tomatoes that have fine flavor. Look for firm, uniformily colored tomatoes. Cracks and green shoulders mean waste but the tomato may be used for slicing or cooking where appearance is not important.

Ripen tomatoes at room temperature then chill or hold in the refrigerator after ripening. Stuff tomatoes with a seafood, egg or meat salad for a main course tosimplify preparation. Serve them with one or two hot cooked vegetables to complete the meal.

• • •

THE BEST fruit buys are peaches and watermelon from Maryland. The orchards of Maryland and West Virginia are shipping more peaches to market as the varieties ripen. If you buy peaches in quantity make sure the flavor and texture are what you like for the desired use for the table or preserving.

Charleston Grey and Sugar Baby (ice box size) watermelon harvest began last week on the Eastern Shore and a good crop is indicated. Harvest of Cantaloupes is about at peak level in Maryland. The variety grown is mostly Edistos which is an elongated melon in contrast to the round ball like varieties shipped in from the west and south.

Early apples, Lodi and Starr varieties, are available for sauce and pie making.

Create your own Thirst-Quenchers

Sweltering summer days invite all to take a mid-afternoon break in the shade of the porch or patio with a cool, refreshing beverage to perk up lagging spirits.

Instead of merely opening a soft drink bottle or a canned beverage, why not coaxcool something distinctive? For example, a Foamy Ginger Fizz, a Lemony Fruit Cooler, or a Strawberry Frost will provide a special treat for everyone. Each is quite simple to prepare, as well.

• • •

YOU'LL PARTICULARLY have fun with Foamy Ginger Fizz. First you mix bottled lemon juice, simple syrup and egg white. Then, as you add gingerale and shake, the whole drink foams up before your eyes. Pour it into tall glasses and serve immediately.

The lemony fruit cooler is an easy way to dress up a canned or frozen fruit drink. A scoop of cool sherbet floats on top. And, if you have a blender, icy Strawberry Frost will prove delightful.

• • •

AFTER THIS start toward more creative thirst quenchers, just use your imagination and invent your own combinations.

For Lemony Fruit Cooler use two tables, ons lemon juice, one tablespoon simple syrup, two - third cup canned or frozen fruit drink and one scoop sherbet.

Combine bottled lemon juice, simple syrup and fruit drink in low glass. Top with sherbet. 1 serving.

If unsweetened fruit juice is used, increase simple syrup to two tablespoons.

• • •

STRAWBERRY FROST is made with two tablespoons lemon juice, two tablespoons simple syrup, one - fourth cup sliced fresh or frozen strawberries and one cup crushed ice.

Combine all ingredients in blender until slushy. Serve in small, stemmed glasses and garnish with mint leaves. 1 or 2 servings.
