La. church fires under FBI probe

SLIDELL, La. (UPI) — Federal agents and the State fire marshal are searching for clues in the remains of two churches burned to the ground by nightriders.

Pastors of the churches said they were puzzled because they had conducted no civil rights activities.

The Providence Baptist Church, five miles west of Slidell, and the Martzell Community Center Church, five miles to the East, were leveled by gasoline fires early Tuesday.

The home of Joe Reynaud, near the Providence Church, was the object of a similar attempt, but the fire was quickly put out. Only a porch support was burned.

The State police, mobile crime laboratory, investigators from the state fire marshal's office and FBI agents were unable to comb through the ruins of the churches. The Ashes were still smouldering.

SHERIFF GEORGE BROOM of St. Tammany Parish, said gasoline was used in all three fires. He said the churches were not used for any civil rights meetings as were two churches in North Louisiana which were burned last winter.

Slidell is 40 miles south of Bogalusa, hot spot of recent disturbances.

Already the congregation at the Baptist church was preparing to rebuild. They got offers of help from colored and white residents of this quiet, cosmopolitan town.

The Rev. C. C. Edgerson, pastor of the church, said he could not explain the burnings.

"There's been no racial things, no political things in our churches," he said "Just good religious services." He said residents of the area have good relations.

THE FIRST REPORT of the burnings was turned in by two white youths who salvaged some furniture from the burning Methodist church. A neighbor told deputies he saw a grey car stop at the church.

The sheriff's office found tire tracks at both locations and made plaster casts.

National Gospel Convention draws 15,000 delegates from 28 states

CHICAGO (NNPA) — Fifteen thousand delegates — one from the British West Indies — converged on Chicago this week for the 33rd annual session of the National Convention of Gospel Choirs and Choruses, Inc., at Pilgrim Baptist Church.

Prof. Thomas A. Dorsey, president of the organization since its inception 33 years ago in Chicago, was honored at the opening session at an appreciation service. Prof. Dorsey is the only living founder. The others are the late Magnolia Lewis Butts and Theodore R. Frye.

Travelling the farthest distance to convention sessions was Larry Kaiser, Trinidad, B.W.I. The oldest in attendance was Mrs. Bertha Gardner, 80, of Chicago.

ONE THOUSAND singers paid tribute in song and words to the internationally renowned Mr. Dorsey. The groups were under the direction of Mesdames Sally Martin of Chicago; Fannie Foster, St. Louis, and Miss Grace Bonner, Cincinnati.

The convention represented 28 states, and the District of Columbia last week. President Dorsey revealed. The theme of his address Monday morning was "Rejoice in the Strength of Your Song."

Among the highlights of Sunday's sessions was the Supervisors' Guild March, which represented 1,000 youth under the supervision of Mrs. Beatrice Brown, Indianapolis. During that session the winner of the Supervisors' Guild March contest, Mrs. Alvenia Montgomery, Cincinnati, Ohio, was presented.

ON MONDAY morning, 2,200—in attendance for the consecreation Service, came to the altar to rededicate and reconsecrate themselves to "their songs and their service." The Rev. E. R. Williams, St. Louis, was speaker. Mrs. Rosella Burks, St. Louis, was soloist.

At noon the Soloist Bureau was in charge, with Evangelist Willa Mae Ford Smith, St. Louis, principal honoree. Mrs. Smith is the bureau's national supervisor.

Monday night, the Chicago Choral Union, Inc., under the presidency of Mrs. Marion Paris, presented the Grand Pre - Convention Musicale.

THE MUSICAL featured a 100 - voice chorus, including the Pilgrim Senior Choir, the Shekina (Glory) Trio and J. E. Gaines, musical saw artist.

President Dorsey delivered his address, "A Risen Christ to Serve," with the Illinois and Michigan Unions presenting a program of music.

The convention's host pastor, the Rev. J. C. Austin, delivered the Dedicatory Sermon Tuesday morning. The session also included the Christian Education Workshop, directed by Dean Earl Preston, Cleveland.

WEDNESDAY, Artists' Night, under the supervision of Mrs. Jeanette J. Sims, Detroit, and the Annual State Pageant Rally, Mrs. Emma Stewart, St. Louis, were spotlighted. The Artists Night program presented as principal artists Miss Melva Williams, dramatic reader and the Melva Williams Singers. Miss Williams was a scholarship winner 16 years ago.

Wednesday's sessions also presented as principal speaker during the Profiles of Great Leaders program, the Rev. S. B. Fuller, prominent Chicago businessman and cosmetics magnate.

During the same session the "Outer Space Tea," sponsored by the Soloist Bureau, drew huge throngs of delegates and visitors.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS included the New Talent presentation under Mrs. Smith.

A 200 - voiced choir from St. Louis was featured. On Thursday, Judge Ernest L. Greene was principal speaker.

An "All - Star Youth Musical," Mrs. Beatrice Brown, Indianapolis, supervisor in charge, formally closed convention sessions Friday night.

Headstart holds field, library triss in county

The 1,330 pre-school age children enrolled in Prince George's County's 37 Headstart Centers have been treated to a full round of activities designed to encourage interest in the library.

In the two weeks before the program closed today (Friday), a total of 42 visits were made to the seven branches of the Prince George's County Memorial Library.

The library visits are part of the enrichment portion of the program which includes field trips away from the centers as well as pre-school activities at each center.

After returning from the trips, the children discussed what they saw and worked with art materials to describe what they saw according to John Lynch, principal of Tayac Elementary School and coordinator of the project. Movies, read books, and act for the summer.

During each visit, they saw movies read books, and listened to story tellings.

Like other Headstart projects around the county, each class was limited to 15 pupils, and included the services of a psychologist, speech therapists and pupil personnel workers.

Each teacher had an aide, so that she can give individual attention to the children.

THE COUNTY program included some prominent visitors. Recently Mrs. Carlton Sickles, wife of Congressman - at - large Sickles, dropped in to chat with the pre - schoolers visiting the Bladensburg branch of the library.

Mrs. Sickles, whose home is near Bladensburg, is a member of the National Committee and the County Committee which helped organize Project Headstart.

The Prince George's program is sponsored by the County Board of Education.

ers for his nightly forays into Daley's all-white neighborhood.

The CCCO also made a formal offer to meet with Daley and discuss civil rights issues. A spokesman for the group said the offer was a direct response to a plea by clergymen yesterday that such talks be arranged.

In its resolution on Gregory, the CCCO said it was concerned "as the nation's outstanding civil rights leaders whose counsel and advice have always been welcome and will continue to be so. As a member of our march committee he has been of invaluable service and we feel privileged that he has chosen to devote so much of his time and energy to our movement here in Chicago."

DEMONSTRATIONS are continuing "in the central city as well as in the residential areas of our city," according to the group. On Monday night, Negro leaders demanded that the federal government send marshalls to protect them from angry neighbors of Mayor Richard J. Daley.

More than 65 demonstrators were arrested Monday evening when they refused to obey police orders to disperse. Gregory was among them.

Capt. Howard Pierson, who ordered the arrest, said that he had followed the policy of arresting the cause and not the mob." He did not prevent this mob from throwing eggs, tomatoes, and an occasional rock at the demonstrators.

There were also chants such as "Go, n . . . r, go" and lawn sprinklers were turned on the pickets. Mrs. Jean Williams, attorney for the marchers, complained about lack of police protection. Capt. Pierson said, "If I had arrested the mob, I would have had a riot on my hands."

The next day Magistrate Ben Edelstein set bonds ranging from $100 to $500. Mrs. Williams burst into tears protesting the amounts required. Gregory said afterwards, "Men cried when they realized what we are up against. Daley's flunkies (apparently referring to Edelstein) come in black, white and yellow."

GREGORY LED those free on bond back to the lakefront Grant Park, where they ate sandwiches before joining the rest of the demonstrators for Tuesday's march on Daley's home. "They got the law, the guns and the power structure on their side. All we've got is our feet," he said.

Tuesday night's march was marked by the good behavior of the white bystanders. About 125 marchers plodded through the rush hour rain to the home of Mayor Daley. Wednesday night's marchers merely walked past Daley's home twice and then disbanded.

A group of 18 religious leaders met with police Supt. O. W. Wilson, who urged them to do everything in their power to "lessen the potential of a riot in Chicago."

One of the clergymen who attended was quoted as saying Wilson "apparently wanted us to ask for an end to demonstrations in Bridgeport," which is Daley's neighborhood.

"The clergy didn't give him what he wanted," he said.

After the meeting, the Clergymen called for a meeting between Daley and the CCCO and said the right to peaceful demonstrations should be protected.

"Citizens who interfere with such peaceful demonstrations must be admonished, restrained and helped to understand their duty," they said in a statement.

available to give that agency's reaction to the 'stall-in' bid.

SRC officials also reported the loss of $2000 due to the traffic tie-up.

A Pennsylvania National Guard convoy and 500 cars were unable to cross, it was reported.

He also declined to say how many persons would take part, although he admitted that representatives of both the CIG and county chapters of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee will take part.

Selassie and Kuanda discuss Viet Nam

LUSAKA, Zambia, (UPI) — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia met Saturday with President Kenneth Kuanda in the hope of taking a new African peace intiative in the Viet Nam War.

ASKED HOW many cars would be involved in the proposed bottle-neck operation, Mr. Sorrell answered: "I do not wish to discuss that phase of the plan."
