—Rev. Johnson

35 years. A noted orator and a scholar with an earned doctor of philosophy degree, he had recently been appointed a delegate to the World Methodist Conference to be held in London, England Aug. 19 - 26, 1966, and had been making plans to attend along with his wife.

• • •

THE REV. Dr. Johnson was buried in his ecclesiastical robes. The floral blanket that covered the bronze, half - coach casket was of giant white mums and red roses.

The quiet, order and dignity of his life dominated the last rites. Hundreds of persons filed through the church Tuesday night and the morning before the funeral.

Testimonies of his work in Methodism and in the community came from those who spoke Wednesday.

Representing the Bishop's Cabinet, the Rev. Edward Porter, Baltimore Northeast District superintendent said, "The members of the newly integrated Cabinet had close association since last June.

"Calendar days and white men were discarded to become God's men serving Him who created us all.

"We never discovered Dr. Johnson longing for the past. He played a role that was a great contribution to the new conference."

The Rev. James D. Foy, minister, said: "He was a man valued for his loyalty to the church and his family. He promoted the welfare of Methodism. He was a lover of his family and a loyal friend."

The Rev. Carroll Yingling, pastor of Baltimore's St. Marks Methodist Church, represented the pastors of the Northwest District over which the Rev. Dr. Johnson presided as superintendent.

He stated, "The passing of our leader leaves sorrow and the pain of the separation by death's dark visit in his family and in the church. His loss leaves a void in the District.

"But we are thankful, filled with gratitude for the unselfish Christian compassion he showed, and with joy because he shares eternal life."

• • •

THURMAN DODSON, Washington attorney, speaking on behalf of Conference Laymen, said, "There was no person more sensitive to the wants and needs of laymen. He never lost the common touch."

Harry Batchelor, said on behalf of the District Laymen's organization, "The people of the Northwest Baltimore District were honored by the Rev. Mr. Johnson's appointment. He was known as a man of deep spiritual dedication. He passed his faith on to the men of the District."

DR. LILLIE M. JACKSON, president of the Baltimore NAACP branch, reviewed the minister's contribution to the NAACP through his organization of the St. Marys pastorate.

He was pastor of the area's seven churches, 1942-48.

Her talk, followed by audible approval from the audience, said, in essence, "He was not only interested in spiritual life of his own people and the future of their souls, but he also knew his people had to earn and to live.

"While serving their souls in the church, he also worked in the NAACP, God's other workshop. He is able now to report to God as to our love for one another."

Bishop Lord's words of comfort reassured the family that the life of a Christian is eternal with death merely a sailing forth as the soul exploring in 'daring joy.'

Bishop Love, in the eulogy, recalled the Rev. Dr. Johnson as a lifelong friend he had taught at old Morgan College.

He stated, "He was committed to tell the world God is Love. In the St. Marys rural churches, in seeming obscurity, he served so well those 17 years, that he alone was cited at the Greensboro, N.C. Conference.

The audience chuckled audibly when the Rt. Rev. Mr. Love outlined the pastor's devotion to his family and reviewed how he named his sons after great ministers including himself, Bishop Love.

The retired bishop marked Sunday, Jan. 2 as the Rev. Dr. Johnson's "coronation day," saying, "He achieved to the end. He is now crowned in glory."

In the burial service ritual, the Rev. Hilton Parker gave invocation. The New Testament reading was by the Rev. Kelly L. Jackson, pastor of Sharp Street Church. The Rev. Robert Current read from the Psalms. The Rev. Leslie Dyson gave the Prayer of Thanksgiving. The Rev. Howard Cornish, the obituary; the Rev. O. St. Clair Franklin, acknowledgements and the Rev. J. B. A. Dyson, benediction.

• • •

THE REV. Dr. Johnson was born Sept. 8, 1903, the son of the late Charles Albert and Mrs. Elizabeth Hanson Johnson of Baltimore.

He received early education in Baltimore County Schools and later received his bachelor of arts, bachelor of theology and master of arts from Howard University. In 1939, he was awarded the degree of doctor of divinity from Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Ga.

His early church life was spent at Harry Street Church. He began his ministry in October, 1930, at Pleasant View Methodist Church, Quince Orchard, Md.

In subsequent years he served in the following capacities:

Pastor of Ebenezer Church, Washington, 1954 to 1964.

District Superintendent of the North Baltimore District of the Washington Conference from 1964 to 1965.

He served on many boards and committees of his church and was member of the General Board of Pensions and the General Board of Chaplains, chairman of the Board of Ministerial Training and Qualifications of the Washington Conference. He was also a member of the delegation to Jurisdictional Conferences held in 1944, 1948 and 1952.

He was a member of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity and organized the first chapter at Ohio State University.

He organized the first chapter of the National Association for the Advancements of Colored People of St. Marys County in 194 and remained a member ever since.

He also served on the Board of Trustees of Morgan College.

HIS FATHER, the late Charles Albert Johnson, was a member of the Washington Conference and for eighteen years a professor at Morgan College.

In August, 1934, the Rev. Dr. Johnson was married to Miss Julia Louise Taylor of Dayton, Ohio. From this union were born seven children.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Johnson; four sons, Richard Jr., Charles, Alexander and Edgar Johnson; three daughters, Mrs. Beverly Kelley, Mrs. Betty Ray and Miss Joan Johnson; seven grandchildren, Cheryl and Charles Kelley; Charles Albert III, Charlynne and Caron Johnson; Kimberly Ray; and Christopher Johnson. JAN. 8

Chief Inspector George J. Murphy, when asked to comment on the incident of which Mrs. Smith said she will lodge a compalint with the Police Complaint Evaluation Board and the NAACP, declined.

Inspector Murphy, who is acting commissioner in the absence of Commissioner Bernard J. Schmidt, said he will assign Inspector Clarence German to conduct an investigation.

Inspector German is responsible for the Raiders Squad.

An effort to locate a copy of the warrant proved futile. Assistant City Attorney, assistant state's attorney, who handles lottery cases, said police keep possession of all lottery warrants and none are left on file with the judge who signs them.

"They keep the original and all other copies. Only the police know where they are," Miss Garvey told the AFRO.

MRS. SMITH, a native Baltimorean who has lived at the Rutom Ave. address for 16 years, Miss Forrester, and another niece, Miss Claudia Thomas, a sophomore at Morgan, are the only persons living at the house.

Nobody is home from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Mrs. Smith said, "because I'm the last to leave and the first one to return."

Mrs. Smith was told that search warrants are based on surveillance and observation. She said:

"It is impossible for anybody to make any observations here because nobody is home during the day," the teacher declared.

Asked does she have any knowledge of how the lottery racket works, Mrs. Smith answered:

"I have never seen any to my knowledge. I'm afraid to even go outside when I'm home, so what on earth would I do with lottery?"

Mrs. Smith said she had three locks put on her door because of her fear of burglars, and added:

"I never dreamed that the police would be the ones who would break into my house. Since the locks didn't stop them, I know they won't stop criminals."

• • •

WELL-KNOWN for her kindness and generosity, Mrs. Smith is a lifetime member of Trinity AME Church, where she has been active in many areas.

In addition to her duties she is widely known as the senior member of an old and respected Baltimore family.

When her parents died, it was Mrs. Smith who reared the younger brothers and sisters.

Says Appeals Bd. can't halt sheet metal shop

Despite strong opposition from immediate residents in the area, the operation of a sheet metal shop at 1913 - 15 Ashland Ave. was approved by the Board of Municipal and Zoning Appeals.

Walter E. Black Jr., board chairman, after listening to testimony that the premises had been in non-conforming use as a shop prior to the board's establishment in 1930 said the board had no choice.

"If we ruled in your favor," he told the protestants, "the court would reverse us on appeal."

The board does not have jurisdiction over non - conforming use establishments set up as such before its existence.

The protestants, represented by Joe Thomas and supplemented by Julian L. Lapides, 2nd District House of Delegates member, pointed out that this is an anti-poverty area of the Community Action Agency.

The shop, they said, will downgrade their neighborhood, serving in opposition to CAA effort's to upgrade it.

In another controversial case, the proposed erection of a four - story 64-unit apartment at 3915 - 17 Liberty Heights Ave., action was postponed at request of the builders.

4 Naylor youngsters shed their tonsils 'together'

BEFORE — The "after" picture would show them without their tonsils, but it would be almost the same (maybe slightly unhappier) as this shot of the Naylor children, who had their tonsils removed Thursday within minutes of each other at Bon Secours Hospital. The children, smiling happily in their hospital room before the operations, are (from left) Lorraine, 12, Donnalle, 5, Jacqueline, 7, and Renee, 5.

By ROGER J. NISSLY

The four Naylor children, who are almost never separated from each other, woke up Thursday afternoon separated from a part of themselves — four set of tonsils.

Ranging in age from five to 12 years, the children — three daughters and a son of Mrs. Colethia Naylor, 2123 Vine St. — are the epitome of togetherness.

Lorraine, 12-years-old and the alert spokesman for the group, said, "We do everything together, so naturally we had our tonsils out together."

• • •

SHE POINTED out that she and her sisters, Jacqueline, 7, and Renee, 5, and brother, Donnaile, 8, even attend the same school, Bentalou Elemenary School 150 at Saratoga and Bentalou Sts. She is in sixth grade. Her brother and sisters range down through the third and second grades to kindergarten — the domain of Renee, the youngest and most fearless, a least on Wednesday when the quartet was admitted to Bon Secours Hospital — the day before the multiple operations.

On Thursday, beginning at noon, the four sets of tonsils were removed at staggered operating times under the direction of saff Dr. T. A. Wartz, starting with Renee of course, and ending with the oldest child.

The operations successfully completed, the children were scheduled to leave the hospital today (Friday).

WEDNESDAY, they excitedly talked with the AFRO as they looked forward to their brief stay in the hospital.

Jacqueline exhibited her new slippers, given especially for the occasion. Renee proudly showed off the identification tag around her wrist — bearing the name of Dr. Swartz — and smiled happily for the camera.

Donnaile said he liked the hospital "fine."

Lorraine explained that the decision for all four to go to the hospital at the same time was made because both hers and Renee's tonsils needed to come out "and the other two came along just to be safe."

The bright youngster said that Jacqueline, Donnaile and Renee like to work with her around the house, and in turn she helps them with their homework.

• • •

MRS. NAYLOR was sure that "Renee, the youngest, would not have stayed in the hospital without her brother and sisters around her."

She said that all four — first cousins of the Johnson triplets, who have often been featured in AFRO stories — do exceptionally well in school.

The Naylor children have two more sisters, aged 18 and one year, who stayed at home. They didn't need their tonsils out.

VFW calls for more local memberships

John H. Carter, national deputy chief of staff of the VFW and head of Baltimore's new Dorie Miller Post, has issued a call inviting all veterans to join one of the posts in Maryland and lamented the small number of colored veterans currently members of the state VFW.

Stating that he was "disappointed" with the results colored veterans have shown in Baltimore Mr. Carter pointed out that the number of these ex-servicemen VFW in the city and the state as a whole does not exceed 300.

He said that the qualifications for membership are that the veteran must have served overseas during time of war and must have received an honorable discharge.

Three active Baltimore posts include: the new Dorie Miller Post, meeting at Sharp Street Community House, 1206 Etting St. on the second and fourth Sunday; the Thompson and Miller Post, meeting at 1313 Madison Ave. on the first and third Saturday.

And the John and Samuel Tyson Post, meeting at the Alpine Pleasure Club, 1223 Preston St. on the second Monday and fourth Sunday.
