A BYRD CATCHES A 'COON - Although raccoons are not in season, Roger Byrd of the 2300 block Reisterstown Rd. ended his visit with a friend to chase and capture the furry intruder who had earlier chased an old woman and a young girl in the 1800 block of Clifton St. The captured 'coon was placed in a garbage can and taken to the zoo. Bears eye 6th win Saturday

DOVER, Del. — Morgan State College basketers, a win and a loss showing for their 2 - game stand in Virginia early in the week, are hoping to rack their sixth victory in eight starts against CIAA competition here tomorrow (Saturday).

Coach Brutus Wilson's charges take on Delaware State College in the nest of the Hornets, and the Bears' whole season may hinge on the outcome.

* * *

A WIN for the Wilsonmen will give them a 6-2 mark and their best start in recent years toward a berth in the conference tournament next month. A loss will drop Morgan to just two games over the .500 plateau, and pose a real handicap to overcome when play is resumed after the semester break.

On their annual trek to Virginia, the Bears dropped a 93-74 decision to Virginia State, but came back the following night to score a 90-74 triumph over Union at Richmond.

Bobby Gordon's 20 points were top for the Bears at Petersburg, while Jeff O'Neal and Gilbert Moore hit 24 and 21, respectively, in the winner at Richmond.

Wilt, Big O, company too strong

CINCINNATI —An East squad, coached by Boston Celtics tutor Red Auerbach and featuring an all - powerful lineuy, romped to easy victory over the West in the annual NBA All - Star basketball game here Tuesday night.

Wilt Chamberlain, Oscar (Big O) Robertson, Sam Jones, Bill Russell, William Reed were among the seven tan stars on the 10-man East roster. Chamberlain tallied 21 points and Robertson 17, but MVP honors went to the Cincinnati Royals' Adrian Smith, who counted 24.

* * *

ON THE West side, Eddie Miles hit for 17 points, one more than Baltimore's Don Ohl. Four colored players were included in the 10-man losing lineup.

Guy Rodgers, perhaps the top performer among the four, managed only 8 points but contributed 11 assists.

BOXING

CORE, union to fight for workers' back pay

Legal plans are being advanced to seek back pay for hundreds of workers now covered by the city's minimum wage law, who have been late in receiving the $1 an hour minimum.

James Griffin, chairman, Baltimore Congress of Racial Equality, is urging that all such persons contact his office with such complaints at: 669-6034 or 233-8229.

The $1 an hour minimum wage law went in effect in Dec. 1964, but many establishments did not start to comply until late last year.

* * *

CORE IS seeking to contact such employees, in order to represent them in legally collecting due back wages in view of the lawful minimum, retroactive to the Dec. 1964 period of effect.

Many workers have already contacted CORE and more are coming in each day, Mr. Griffin stated.

In some cases several hundreds of dollars are involved.

Meanwhile, the hotel workers union is moving to help protect the rights of hotel workers in filing their back pay claims.

A spokesman for the AFL-CIO union admitted Monday that the union had signed for below the minimum wage scale though the new law was in effect.

This action was publicly criticized by another labor leader, Troy Brailley, who questioned why a union would sign such a contract in the first place.

* * *

JOSEPH A. BUSH, director, the city's Minimum Wage Commission; Richard Andrews, aide to Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, and a representative of the city solicitor's office held a closed meeting Wednesday afternoon to determine a course of action.

At a stormy commission meeting Monday afternoon with representatives of CORE and the hotel union in attendance, the commission admitted no attempt has been made to collect retroactive pay for employees tardy in receiving minimum wages.

The findings at the Wednesday meeting in the mayor's office have not been disclosed.

Mr. Griffin, meanwhile, has charged the Minimum Wage Commission with being "irresponsible, dictatorial and unwilling to grant the common courtesy needed for a calm and objective hearing of an issue."

He charged further:

"Their behavior and their record of surrender for the rights of the citizens of Baltimore to be heard ing the workers' back wages show a callous disregard and to the workers to be protected by the law's guarantees."

NAACP LIFE membership check was presented to Dr. William Watts, NAACP official, at the Caballerros Civic and Social Club cabaret party, Saturday night. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bennett, left, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garner, guests, along with some 800 others attending the affair.

Tan councilman wins in Detroit

DETROIT — The Rev. Nicholas Hood was sworn in as common council member early this week.

Hood, 42, who was defeated in a City Council race in 1964, became Detroit's first colored councilman since William T. Patrick, Jr. resigned two years ago to become an attorney for the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

Hood, after accepting the $17,500 - job, said he would take leave of absence as pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church and would resign as executive director of the Plymouth Housing Corp., a non-profit organization he founded to build housing for middle income groups on urban renewal land in the Medical Center area.

PLEDGE ALL-OUT EFFORT

Miss. officials seek bombers

HATTIESBURG, MISS. (UPI) — Two local officials told the U. S. Attorney General Tuesday that an "all - out effort" was underway to find those responsible in the firebomb death of a civil rights leader.

Dist. Atty. James Finch and County Prosecuting Attorney James K. Dukes sent a telegram to Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach saying that local law enforcement agencies "are making an all-out effort to apprehend the person or persons guilty of arson of Vernon Dahmer's property resulting in his death."

Additionally, Gov. Paul Johnson, expressing dismay at the killing in the governor's home county, promised the support of his office in bringing "these vicious and morally corrupt criminals to justice."

HATTIESBURG MAYOR Paul Grady and the Forrest County Board of Supervisors announced that a trust fund had been established for Dahmer's family. The Delta Ministry also announced a similar fund for two school - aged Dahmer children.

Dahmer died late Monday afternoon from burns received when night riders hurled "Molotov cocktails" into his two-story home and grocery in the Kelly Community near here.

Civil rights forces staged another protest march to the County Courthouse Tuesday night to protest his death. About 300 marched a mile to the building, sang for less than an hour then departed.

A PETITION of racial grievances was drawn up at a mass rally before the march for presentation to city officials. It was similar to petitions used in desegregation drives last fall at Natchez and Fayette, Miss.

It called for the hiring of two colored deputy sheriffs, appointment of colored persons to the school board, desegregation of public facilities and hospitals and improvements of streets and sidewalks in colored areas.

A boycott against local merchants was proposed a few hours after Dahmer's death Monday night but it was placed in abeyance by colored leaders Tuesday to give local officials an opportunity to track down the nightriders.

AFTERMATH OF A FIRE — Following a nightrider attack this week in Hattiesburg, Miss., the home and grocery store of a colored civil rights leader, Vernon Dahmer, was destroyed by fire. Authorities said at least four "Molotov cocktails" were thrown into the home, shown here, and grocery.

Move to draft rights leader

MONTGOMERY, ALA. (UPI) — The "conscientious objector" draft deferment given to civil rights leader John Lewis before he criticized U. S. policy in Vietnam as "aggression" may be vestudied.

Lewis, chairman of SNCC issued a statement earlier this week in Atlanta criticizing the American role in Vietnam and expressing admiration for persons who burn their draft cards.

Gen. Hugh Cullen, Alabama state selective service director, said Tuesday he was considering a review of the 1-O (conscientious objector) classification given Lewis last November by the board of appeals. Lewis has been classified 1-A (available for service) prior to that time.

Durke said he was "studying the case with the possibility of asking the board of appeals to reconsider their decision."

Lewis is registered with the draft from Pike County, Ala.

WASHINGTON — Dr. Burleigh C. Webb, dean of the school of Agriculture at A and T College, has been appointed to the National Rural Area Development Advisory Committee of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The 30-member committee, appointed by Orville Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, advises and assists in programs aimed at the full development of human, natural and economic resources in America's rural communities.
