FDP to contest Congress seats

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party has announced five of its members will oppose the state's Congressional delegation and U.S. Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., in the 1966 Democratic primary.

Lawrence Guyot, of Pass Christian, state chairman of the civil rights oriented FDP, said he would seek the Congressional nomination from the Fifth District.

He identified the other proposed candidates as Ralthus Hayes, of Lexington, Second District; the Rev. Ed King, a minister from Tougaloo college and the only white member of the FDP candidates, Third District; and the Rev. Clint Collins, of Philadelphia, Fourth District.

Guyot told a news conference the FDP had no candidate for the first district race but that the Rev. C. L. Whitley Jr., of Holly Springs, would oppose Eastland in the Senatorial race.

TOUGALOO, Miss — Tougaloo College has received a grant of $14,970 from the National Science Foundation to conduct a six-week Summer Science Training Program for secondary school students in chemistry and physics during June 6-July 27.

HOUSING, JURIES, TERRORISM

3-pronged rights attack spelled out by President

WASHINGTON — Congressmen who felt that the bulk of the civil rights had been resolved in the unprecedented far - reaching rights legislation passed in the past two years got something of a jolt Wednesday when President Johnson announced further broad - ranging attacks on racial barriers.

Included in the President's State of the Union message was a three - pronged civil rights package proposing laws against racial discrimination in the sale or rental of private housing, the selection of juries, and stronger penalties for terroism against civil rights workers in the South.

The message effectively spelled out the major demands of civil rights groups during the past year and is widely considered a gratifying follow - up to the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

• • •

EXPECTED TO be the first new civil rights recommendation to go before Congress —probably next week — is a proposal for unbiased jury selection. President Johnson announced in November that he would seek such legislatio as soon as Congress convened.

The announcement followed the acquittal of the accused — slayers of the Rev. James Reeb in Selma, Ala. and the Rev. Jonathan Daniels, in nearby Lowndes County, Ala. The acquittals sparked a "winter campaign for equal justice" in the state by the Rev. Martin Luther King.

The president asked for legislation to "establish unavoidable requirements for non-discriminatory jury selection in federal and state courts — and to give the power to enforce the requirements."

• • •

JOHNSON'S MOST spectacular rights recommendation is a ban on racial discrimination in the sale and rental of private housing, and seems likely to spark the biggest Congressional battle of all.

He called for "legislation, resting on the fullest constitutional authority of the federal government to prohibit racial discrimination in the sale or rental of housing."

The proposal goes beyond what was asked for my civil rights group who had lobbied for a broadening of the 1962 Executive Order signed by President Kennedy involving federal - aided public housing and that financed by the federal government. The ban covers less than 20 per cent of the nation's housing.

Congressional action gives greater weight and scope to a ban on segregated housing administration sources said.

• • •

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S third proposal—stronger federal legislation governing the punishment of those who attack civil rights workers—is expected to await the conclusion of a case now before the Supreme Court. The Justice Department is asking the court to broaden existing hard - to enforce post - Civil War laws.

Murder is not a federal crime and efforts to get convictions in state courts have not been encouraging. Current rights legislation provides a maximum of ten years in prison for "interfering with the civil rights of a citizen of the United States."

"Justice, along with economic growth and liberation of genius was one of the roads to the Great Society," the President said.

"Simply defined, Justice means a man's hope should not be limited by the color of his skin."

The president called for legislation to "strengthen the authority of our courts to try those who murder, attack or intimidate either civil rights workers or others exercising their constitutional rights and to increase penalties to a level equal to the nature of the crime."

FAMILY WINNINGS in the AFRO's Social Security game are held by Mr. and Mrs. James Williams Jr., only husband and wife winners, who show their $10 prizes. The Williams, 2129 W. Lexington St., feel that the dual winning is proof of the luck they brought each other in marriage.

GOING MY WAY — One of the millions of persons made happy by Thursday's end of the New York transit strike, was Maury Wills, star shortstop of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers. Maury, in Gotham with his bango for a night club engagement at Basin Street East, went through the motions of a hitch kiker on numerous occasions during the 12-day subway-bus dilemma.

Packers star set to visit Vietnam

Green Bay Packers defensive captain Willie Davis is one of three National Football League players scheduled to fly to Vietnam for a visit with U. S. troops stationed there.

An NFL spokesman said the tour group also will include quarterback Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts, linebacker Sam Huff of the Washington Redskins, and former New York Giants Halfback Fran Gifford, now a television announcer.

The spokesman said the trip will be under the auspices of the Defense Department.

The group will leave from Los Angeles on Tuesday, and spend two weeks in Vietnam.

High court to hear Dixie vote talkathon on vote bill

(UPI)

THE SUPREME COURT returns to the bench Monday to hear a massive southern challenge of the validity of the 1965 Voting Rights Act. The nine justices have been in recess for five weeks.

After handing down opinions and taking other cases under advisement, the court will launch an eight-hour voting rights legal extravaganza pitting two northern states and the Department of Justice against six southern states. Eight hours is a long argument by court standards. Most cases get two, many only get one hour.

The arguments will run through Tuesday, and possibly Wednesday. Leading participants are David W. Robinson II, special counsel for South Carolina which filed the first challenge, and U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach.

• • •

THE TALL AND BALDING Katzenbach has argued only one other case before the court since succeeding Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., as Attorney General on Feb. 23, 1965. Attorneys general usually leave Supreme Court appearance to the U.S. Solicitor General. But Katzenbach elected to take on this crucial test himself.

Robinson, a native of Raleigh, and a graduate of Harvard Law School, made one of the losing arguments on behalf of the city of Columbia, S. C. in a celebrated series of sit-in cases during the 1963-64 Supreme Court term.

When the court agreed last Nov. 5 to hear South Carolina's voting rights complaint, it said any other state wishing to do so might participate. Virginia, Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia elected to support South Carolina. Their state legal officials will be heard.

IN THE CASE ALABAMA, the views of Gov. George C. Wallace will be stated separately from those of State Atty. Gen. Richmond M. Flowers. The two are political rivals in their home state, with Flowers taking a more lenient attitude toward racial matters.

Massachusetts and New Jersey will be on Katzenbach's side. Numerous other states outside the South backed Katzenbach in printed briefs but will not argue orally.

"The right of all citizens to vote on equal terms, without reference to race or color, is much an ingrained, accepted part of the system of values under which modern Americans live that it is incomprehensible, in the year 1965, to realize that in a few states this right is still not acknowledged," said Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Edward W. Brooke, in his brief.

THE VOTING RIGHTS ACT, suspends literacy and other voter qualification tests in states or counties where less than 50 per cent of the voting age population was registered on Nov. 1, 1964, or voted in the 1964 presidential election.

This 50 per cent "triggering" provision allows federal registrars to go into a state to help would-be voters get their names on the rolls.

The statute provides that if persons registered by a federal examiner are not allowed to vote election results can be frozen pending a federal proceeding aimed at getting the votes recorded.

Katzenbach has sent of examiners into the South. His aim is to clear the way for all to cast ballots in the 1966 state and federal elections.

• • •

THE BASIC SOUTHERN argument is that Congress has unconstitutionally pre-empted the states' role in determining voter qualifications. The Justice department counters with the 15th Amendment which forbids denial of voting rights because of race or color.

South Carolina maintains that the act unconstitutionally prejudges the conduct of certain states and automatically suspends their valid laws; and constitutes a legislative trial forbidden in the constitution.

South Carolina said that failure of 50 per cent of South Carolinians to vote is due to economic and political factors having nothing to do with race.

It said that sending federal registrars into the state usurps the powers of South Carolina's legislative and executive departments.
