Prayer Of The Week

For Thou, O God, art my strength, why has Thou forsaken me. And why do I go about in sadness, while the enemy afflicts me? Amen.

A Fair Housing Crusade

Every language has been tried on the Baltimore City Council in an effort to have an open occupancy ordinance passed except the one that politicians understand best.

A dejected Council President Thomas D'Alesandro put it best on Monday night during the wake before the funeral for the third fair housing ordinance when he allowed as how the majority group's voting power would tell the tale.

Demonstrations against the City Council will not get the job done.

Warnings concerning riots and other violence cannot be used by any sane person as a weapon in this fight — but that does not exclude warnings meant to appraise the blind of the dangers such denials of basic rights entail.

Mr. D'Alesandro, who at one time seemed to think he could do a lot more than Mayor McKeldin about getting an ordinance through the City Council, probably was right again Monday night when he openly doubted the present Council ever will pass a fair housing bill.

The Council itself has to be changed.

We must have 11 members in the Council who will vote for fair housing.

Bluntly, Reuben Caplan of the Fifth District, and Clement Prucha and Charles Panuska of the Second District have to be replaced.

We may wish others could be booted, too, but as Thurgood Marshall is fond of saying, it's time to stop simply getting made and get smart.

The 40 percent of the city's population which was slapped in the face by the City Council on Monday night can replace Caplan, Prucha and Panuska.

It can stop any of the City Council members who voted against the housing ordinance from being elected to any citywide or state office.

The first councilman to be stopped is James J. Duffy of the First District, who wants to be sheriff of Baltimore City. The election is this year.

To make sure the kind of language that politicians understand is being used, it is necessary to say we not only must be against those City Council members who flaunt their bigotry in our faces but against any ticket which includes them at election time.

We think the vote in City Council must be the spark behind new, all-out registration campaigns in every city district and specifically in the Second and Fifth.

"Caplan, Prucha and Panuska Must Go," can become the battle cry of a new crusade.

What the Baltimore City Council has to have after the 1967 election — at the very least — are four councilmen from the Fifth, three from the Second and three from the Fourth, plus the president (that means Frank X. Gallagher won't do) who will vote for fair housing.

Those are the 11 votes we must have.

No matter the costs, we must have them in the next election.

"Caplan, Prucha and Panuska Must Go."

And when they have been defeated, the other anti-housing councilmen will be as helpless as the pro-housing members were on Monday night.

Police Commissioner

If the steps being taken by Gov. Tawes and Atty. Gen. Thomas Finan are overlooked, there is reason for concern over what is being done or said as a result of the critical report on the police department by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Of immediate concern are the expressions from the city's legislators which suggest they still favor selection of a police commissioner from Baltimore, or from the state.

The city committee to study the matter was packed with those who hold to this position.

Meanwhile, Gov. Tawes and Atty. Gen. Finan, showing more insight and willingness to get on with the business of building in Baltimore an effective police department, have the FBI and the IACP compiling a list of suitable candidates from around the country.

It would be unfortunate if Baltimore should be forced to settle for a run-of-the-mill commissioner when a topflight man might be available to the city.

Maybe Mayor McKeldin will be able to help influence the legislators to join with Gov. Tawes and Atty. Gen. Finan to do a critically important job for the city and state.

Tomorrow's Policemen

Surprise was expressed this week when Judge Carter slapped an 11-month jail term on a man found guilty of handling numbers.

We are not surprised or astonished.

We have always wondered,

(1) Why the city takes the numbers game so lightly,

(2) Why it cannot halt the juveniles who break out $50,000 worth of school windows every year,

(3) Why we cannot shut off the flow of narcotics most especially to school children,

(4) Why we cannot make the streets safer at nights and stop the snatching of pocketbooks,

(5) Why we could not have an end to what the NAACP has called police brutality.

However, now that the committee of International Police Chiefs has made its report, we find some part of the answers.

Some immediate resignations followed. Others are urgently needed.

Immediate need: A new Police Commissioner of the stature of Henry Barnes, former traffic commissioner and Lawrence Paquin, superintendent of schools.

The police department needs the application of a new broom.

We urge the governor to clean it up.

Pickets For Mrs. Molofsky

The Cherry Hill Coordinating Council is not about to throw in the towel on the fight to prevent a liquor store from being operated successfully in their shopping center.

In addition to trying to get Judge James K. Cullen, who granted the license over a denial by the liquor board, to reopen the case, they have moved also to appeal Judge Cullen's controversial decision to a higher tribunal.

Now, Mrs. Sarah Bundy, president of the council, and its members, backed by Baltimore CORE, will take their fight to the home of the licensee, Mrs. Leah Molofsky.

They intend to take picket lines out to Mrs. Molofsky's home.

They hope the signs expressing fears of liquor stores so near homes where they have to raise their children, will impress Mrs. Molofsky.

It may be that when the pickets start showing up regularly in Mrs. Molofsky's pleasant little neighborhood, far from where she wants to put up her liquor store, more understanding of the feelings of the Cherry Hill families will develop.

Things have reached the point now where there is little chance that a liquor store in Cherry Hill is going to be a success.

The New Society

In a crowded East Room in the White House and at the direction of President Lyndon B. Johnson, Mrs. Robert Weaver held the Bible while her husband was sworn in as our first full member of the Cabinet.

The President praised Dr. Weaver as the man who knows most about urban affairs and then gave him as an assistant, Robert Wood, whom he said was second most knowledgeable on the subject.

That was Tuesday morning.

Tuesday afternoon U.S. Solicitor Thurgood Marshall, another Johnson appointee, sat by the side of U.S. Attorney General Katzenbach in the U.S. Supreme Court.

General Katzenbach argued that the U.S. Civil Rights Bill is constitutional and the U.S. Government opposes those Southern states who do not enforce it.

Almost a century ago the High Court declared the Civil Rights Bill of 1870 unlawful and in 1890 crippled the enforcement of the 14th Amendment with its separate but-equal decision.

Beginning in the 1950's the new court made an about face and in its decisions has sought to restore full citizenship to all people.

It is inconceivable, therefore, that today's High Court will declare Congress wrong in passing the new Civil Rights Act of 1965.

But it is significant that on the day the President was again declaring the equality of all citizens by appointing Dr. Weaver to his cabinet, 6 Southern states were still seeking to bar colored citizens from the polls by the discriminatory use of literacy tests.

How Long Absent?

There seems to be no fixed rule applied to absenteeism of persons holding public office or who are appointed to state or city boards and commissions.

The decision has been left up to the individuals themselves.

But it shouldn't be.

There are two situations under which such public trustees and commissioners should be removed.

(1) When they do not make a contribution to the body to which they are appointed.

(2) When they are not able to attend over a period of such length as to make any contribution negligible.

A resignation is preferable, but removal from office should follow when it is not forthcoming.

Our Readers Say:

Not Surprised

Dear AFRO:

After reading "4th D. problem: 2 seats, 3 bids," by Max Johnson, AFRO political analyst (Jan. 15), I had to write this letter.

The adverse repercussions that are growing within the city's Fourth District Democratic Organization do not surprise me. In my judgment they are to be expected, and more will occur in other places sooner or later. The past type of political organizations is becoming obsolete because of the new type of politicians, like Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd and myself.

Sen. Verda F. Welcome won her elections because she represented not a certain type of a political organization, but a free thinking individual, leaning on her own convictions.

I think that the key to the victory of Hyman Pressman was that he was playing the role of the "Lone Ranger."

Joseph Tydings bucked the old organization machine, and he had the sweet smell of success.

Del. Mitchell is a member of the "New Breed," and the main thing wrong with the old political set-up, is that one must become some what of a "yes man," which threatens free original, individual thinking and action. "United we stand, divided we fall," has its time and place.

I have never forgotten the great, free-thinking, original individuals like Edison, Fulton, and the Wright brothers who were called fools by many.

I have never forgotten the words, "it is ironic, but often, greatness comes out of loneliness." — REV. GAYWOOD S. McGUIRE

Waited Too Long

Dear AFRO:

The noise and catcalls that greeted Archbishop Shehan, Bishop Doll and others during the City Council open occupancy hearing proved beyond a doubt that white leaders, educators and the church have waited too long to educate their own.

It also proved that more colored people should be present when they are hot, to speak for a bill which will benefit them as well as the total community.

V. M. MATTHEWS

We Shall Overcome

Dear AFRO:

The defeat of the Fair Housing Ordinance by the City Council Monday night compels this letter. This defeat shows to all that the city government is controlled by racists.

I challenge the 13 councilmen who voted against the ordinance to explain to Baltimore's colored citizens who are in South Vietnam, and to those destined to go, what freedom they are defending.

The racism of those 13 councilmen has been written indelibly in the minds of well - thinking voters, and in time, they will pay the price of their misdeeds.

Baltimore, with its growing non-white population; its growing number of whites, who prefer democracy and justice to racism, and oppression, will not be shackled by the irrational prejudices and purposeful exploitations of evil and minute mentalities.

Nor will the oppressed, both black and white, continue to be victimized by the ignorant actions of the oppressors, with whom those 13 councilmen are most certainly in league.

I AM sure that as each Baltimorean weighs the action of the City Council against his conscience, his religion, and any valid concept of morality, he will find the means by which WE SHALL OVERCOME.

EDWARD A. CHANCE

President Praised

Dear AFRO:

Whatever misgivings that I had about President Johnson have been dissolved or erased. Our President has made it clear that there is no other alternative than freedom, justice and equality without fear of reprisal, without fear of intimidation.

There is no place in our society for the Klans or the ultra - Conservatives. There is no refuge for the bully or the bigot. There is no hiding place for the war-monger and the feeble - minded hate group.

We have troops and bombs and money, but the signers of the Declaration of Independence would be proud of the leadership our President exhibited. He has reached the plateau of greatness = the summit of integrity.

I am proud of him as a fellow human, as a brother, as a leader of the greatest nation that now exists. There may be a touch of Texas in his talk, but he stands real tall. —

Little Men With Absolute Power

By GEORGE W. COLLINS

The unforgettable lesson learned by this man Monday night while witnessing the City Hall lynching, led by chief hatchet man, John A. Pica, is this:

The ruthless use of absolute power by men of small minds is an awesome sight.

It is in this context that an attempt to examine the forces now at work in the City Council is being made.

To understand how a duly - elected body of men —who shoulder the responsibility of legislating and regulating the lives of a big city and its estimated one million inhabitants —can act without weighing the consequences of their action, it is necessary to understand the men.

An analysis of the legislative butchery performed Monday night under the guise of majority rule shows that it was executed by 13 men.

They include:

Charles Panuska and Clement J. Prucha, Second District;

Frank X. Gallagher, John A. Pica, Larry S. Best, and J. Joseph Curran, all of the Third District;

William Bonnett, James J. Duffy, and Joseph J. Staszak, all of the First District;

Reuben Caplan, Fifth District;

John J. Hines, Dominic M. Leone, and William J. Myers of the Sixth District.

NUMBERED AMONG the courageous minority which struggled valiantly—but vainly—to prevent the destruction of Ordinance 1426 (open occupancy) were:

President Thomas J. D'Alesandro - 3rd. Thomas Ward, Second District;

Henry G. Parks Jr., Walter T. Dixon, and Maurice Soypher, Fourth District; and

Jacob J. Edelman, Leon A. Rubenstein, and William D. Schaefer, Fifth District.

While extending the madness for a night Messrs. Ward and Soypher joined the Pica Parade in punishing H. Warren Buckler.

In order that the capabilities — or the lack of same —of the 13 men responsible for throwing us back to the dark ages of the "Know Nothing" Party, it is necessary to put Messrs. Pica and Gallagher in their proper perspective in terms of the current domination of City Council.

The commander - in - chief of what is rapidly becoming the reactionary wing of the council is Mr. Gallagher. Mr. Pica is the field general in charge of execution.

In selecting Mr. Pica to do the faction's dirty work, earns for Mr. Gallagher the title of "the fox of the moment."

The choice serves two purposes. First it gets the job done—to the utter delight of what has been termed the "lunatic fringe."

Secondly, it protects Mr. Gallagher's image.

IN THE event there are those among us who can't understand why the current vice president of the council is in need of protecting his image it should be noted that he is eying a city - wide office.

Even a raw recruit in the art of influencing people and winning friends which Mr. Gallagher or anybody else must do in order to get elected to a city - wide office —knows you can't openly kick more than a third of the city's population and its thousands of sympathizers in the teeth and then expect to get their votes.

Hence Mr. Pica to the forefront. But he should never be confused with the real leader of the reactionary forces in the council.

Casual examination of the 'famous 13' reveals that it would be risky to expect any of them to display any degree of statesmanship on issues not faintly connected with the emotionally - charged question of civil rights.

It is necessary to search long and hard to find a semblance of intellect, progressive thinking, morality, and legislative know-how for a modern city in a modern world within the ranks of the 13.

On more than one occasion they have demonstrated a poverty of imagination, vision, foresight, and just plain intelligence.

To those of us who have observed the First District delegation of Staszak, Bonnett, and Duffy, it would be the height of folly to expect them to rise above the narrow confines of their backward district and provide provocative leadership on any issue.

As to the gentlemen of the Second District, who joined the ranks of the Pica - led procession — Prucha and Panuska —they have never displayed any degree of ability to guide their colleagues on a course of action calculated to benefit the city as a whole.

To date the Third District entourage has been distinguished by the loud and tough talk of the above Mr. Pica and little else.

Fact of the matter is when leaders of the council are mentioned even in casual and polite conversation names of the 13 are almost always conspicuously absent.

VETERAN CITY Hall newsmen deem it a rarity of the first magnitude when either of the South District councilmen—Hines, Leone, and Myers — bother to stand up and address himself to any issue. They just don't, and the reasons are obvious.

It is no accident that progressive leadership of the council is always linked with such names as Schaefer, Parks, Rubenstein, Edelman, D'Alesandro, and Ward.

The tragic fact remains, however, that the 'famous 13' are now the possessors of absolute power, and nothing happens in the council unless they want it to happen.

By some strange twist of fate, they have never shown any affection for programs designed to bring the city into the 20th Century.

For the most part they shun statesmanship like the plague, choosing instead to stake their political fortunes on the art of perpetuating bigotry, prejudice, and color - consciousness.

The inescapable conclusion, therefore, is obvious. Their ranks must be thinned. Ideal starting points can be found in the Second, Sixth, and Third Districts, which should also include one bothersome obstacle in the Fifth.

It is mandatory that this thinning of the ranks operation begin now.

Little men with small minds who hold absolute power in their hands are dangerous.

Voter Education Lesson

By MAX JOHNSON

As a veteran observer of this current City Council—and some of its members serving in earlier terms — I have often been critical of its makeup.

I have said the general caliber of its membership leaves so much to be desired by way of representative statesmanship that more citizens ought to be gravely concerned.

The debacle staged — and permitted — by that body over fair housing must now erase whatever doubts anybody has had of this contention.

George Collins, my colleague on this page, goes into this Council action quite thoroughly — so such will be bypassed here for the moment.

INITIAL MENTION is made, however — because the whole thing again spotlights an important need generally.

And that big need is — voter education.

An old axiom in politics has it — voters get the kind of public office-holding representation they deserve.

This means that if citizens find themselves saddled with some stumblebums in office — it's the fault of the voters.

And it is more often their fault either through their lackadaisical attention to the candidates or by failing to vote—or by both.

BALTIMOREANS ARE now saddled with a sorry City Council, generally — and will be until the mayoralty elections next year — largely because these factors have prevailed.

This should give fair warning for serious consideration in another area.

The gubernatorial elections will be held the coming September and November.

Maryland voters, state-wide, will elect a governor, comptroller, attorney general, — and congressmen from districts yet to be established.

Legislative district - wise — voter residents will elect newly allotted state senators and House of Delegates members to Maryland's General Assembly.

THE CALIBER of candidates they put in office must depend largely on their knowledge of the candidates—and what their stands are on issues of the day.

More simply put — it is voter education.

Belatedly — this is becoming a more intrical part of registration campaigns.

It has been proven quite silly, indeed, to just register blocks of new voters — and then turn them loose without direction in an area foreign to them.

Their votes could, quite conceivably, do considerable harm — in the realization of desired advancements.

MANY, MANY colored voters must now rub the day — or ought to, at least — when they played a large part in the election three years ago in their more heavily populated districts of some councilmen.

I refer specially to those who have consistently opposed fair housing legislation.

They include Councilman Clement J. Prucha and Charles Panuska (both 2nd D.) — and Reuben Caplan (5th D.)

None of these could have been elected without colored votes.

Colored citizens — and church respecting whites — who helped elect the vehement housing opposition councilmen in the 1st, 3rd and 6th Districts should be equally rueful now.

SUCH, THEN, is an important phase of voter education.

To vote again for any of these men —regardless of what public office they seek — would be sheer stupidity.

Voter education of their principles on the matter of human dignity has come for many through a costly process — but it is now unmistakingly clear, nonetheless.

It's a bitter lesson that shouldn't be forgotten.

THE COMING state elections give ample opportunity for voters to apply higher concern to the qualities and principles of those candidates who seek their support.

What those who seek re-election have done in office — more than what they promise — should take precedence in this consideration.

New candidates ought to be scrutinized, questioned sharply.

This paramount fact must be remembered.

When stumblebums are elected to office — voters, generally lackadaisical in attention or ignorant of their true qualities, put them there.

Literacy Test

Many states, north and south, require voters to qualify by passing literacy tests.

Only in the South are they used to keep even the best educated colored people from voting.

Congress will get a bill soon abolishing literacy tests as a qualification for voting.

A Kennedy commission had already declared them unnecessary and outmoded.

A citizen does not have to be fortified with a sixth grade education either to amass a substantial fortune, pay his taxes, vote intelligently or fight with U.S. Forces in Vietnam.

When the mortars explode and the machine guns rattle in the tall jungle grass of East Asia every night, no one asks can a soldier spell Mississippi, Massachusetts, or even Kentucky, but only whether he can face and defeat an enemy seeking to kill him and destroy the freedom of the United States of America.

Bishop Baber

AME Bishop Baber's sponsorship of the meeting of the Bishops Council in Maryland last week, the enthusiastic general meeting of the Baltimore Conference at Payne Church, and the joint sponsorship of Masons, under Grand Master Daniels, and AME's in promoting housing for the low and middle income group in the Mt. Royal - Fremont area, indicate a new day for the African Methodists.

In the golden age of Bishop Sampson Brooks, Rev. William Alexander, Cardinal Gibbons, Dr. Harry Johnson, Bishop John Hurst, Rev. W. A. C. Hughes, Dr. Ernest Lyons and the dedication to community problems was the salvation of this city.

Never wholly lost, it becomes real again among those new religious leaders who bring new vitality to their churches and their city.

They match the spirit of this new revolution which is welcomed because it crosses all lines of church and race to form one brotherhood of all men.

Predict continued rise in food costs

By VIRGINIA McLUCKIE, food economist

As we enter into a new year many resolutions will be made about buying food, either to spend the food dollar more wisely or to do a better job of feeding the family.

To make the resolution become a reality shoppers need to understand the economic outlook and learn to anticipate the market.

* * *

THE COST of food consumed at home increased six percent during 1965. Food costs will increase again in 1966 but possibly not at as high a rate as last year. Wages have increased at a higher rate than the food cost increase. The result is that food in 1965 took only 18½ per cent of the average wage earner's take home pay. Even at increased prices food is still a bargain.

Close to half (3) percent of the six percent gain in food expenditures in 1965 is due to high retail food prices. Another one percent is due to increased total food consumption due to population increase. The rest of the gain can be traced to increased marketing services.

* * *

THERE HAS been a nine percent spurt in sales by eating and drinking places in 1965 compared with a five percent increase in food store sales. Food sold in restaurants contains a lot more marketing services per unit of food than does food sold in grocery stores. We can expect marketing services to continue and shift in forms of foods purchased to include more processing.

* * *

IN 1966 meat prices are expected to average higher, based on the expected decline in per capita supplies. In 1965 per capita consumption of pork declined seven percent and beef one percent. Partly off setting is a six percent increase in consumption of chicken. Prices for fresh vegetables, citrus and poultry are expected to average below 1965, but prices for many canned fruits and vegetables may increase. Weather is one of the chief determining factors of produce.

* * *

FOOD EXPENDITURES for 1965 are estimated at about $1,460 per family. This averages $28.25 per week. Food expenditures per capita are known to vary widely with family size, income and other family characteristics. According to a survey on consumer expenditure by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and U.S.D.A. cooperating, food expenditures per person were twice as large for a two person family as for a family with six or more persons.

Food expenditures include the value of home produced food, food purchased and consumed away from home, foods purchased by institutions and military purchases. The average family size in the U.S. is 3.2 persons when both families and individuals are included.

Consumption of particular foods and nutrients available from foods fluctuates from year to year. Taken all together estimates show that the nation produces enough total food in sufficient variety to meet the nutritional needs of the country.

BEEF CHILLI PATTIES are made with one pound ground beef, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one egg beaten, two tablespoons lard or drippings, two tablespoons chopped onion, two tablespoons chopped green pepper, one No. 303 can tomatoes, drained, one cup cooked corn, one teaspoon chili powder, and two teaspoons salt.

Combine ground beef, salt, pepper and egg. Shape into 8 small patties and place in a baking dish. Cook onion and green pepper in lard or drippings for 2 minutes. Add tomatoes, corn, chilli powder and salt and pour over meat patties. Bake in a slow oven (300 degree F.) for 30 minutes. 4 Servings.

Coffee horns Salad tips

Coffee Cream Horns are perfect as a finale to a luncheon gathering or as the main offering at an afternoon coffee party.

Accompany these lovely pastries with cups of your best fragrant and freshly made coffee.

* * *

COFFEE CREAM HORNS are made with one-half pound butter or margarine, well chilled, divided, two cups plus two tablespoons sifted all-purpose flour, one - half cup ice water, one tablespoon lemon juice, twelve individually wrapped ice cream cones, one egg, slightly beaten and coffee Almond Cream.

* * *

CUT one-fourth pound butter into flour until mixture resembles corn meal. Add water and lemon juice all at once. Stir with fork until pastry stays together. Cover; chill one-half hour. Roll out one-fourth inch thick into rectangle 18" x 12." Cut remaining butter into thin pats; cover two-third of rectangle.

Fold uncovered third over middle third; fold opposite end over top. Then fold pastry in thirds crosswise to form a block. Roll out again one-fourth inch thick. Repeat folding, folding and chilling 3 rolling, more times. Wrap pastry.

Chill over night, or longer. Roll pastry one-eighth inch thick into rectangle 20" x 12." Cut into 12-inch wide strips. Brush with water. Wrap each strip, slightly overlapping, around cone-shaped cone, starting at point.

Brush with egg, chill one-half hour. Bake at 450 degree for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees. Bake 15 minutes or until puffed and golden. Cool on racks. Remove cones carefully. Before serving, fill with coffee Almond Cream.

Salad Tips

Like to add a crisp, interesting note to meat or fish salads? Drain and slice a can of water chestnuts, mixing with a sprinkling of coconut.

Hard-cooked eggs taste exotic when they're made into a salad with curry or capers. Be certain to add some mustard and mayonnaise.

* * *

FOR GREEN salads, it's delightful to make a creamy dressing with chopped green olives and a touch of vinegar with sour cream.

What to serve on fruit salads? These are delightful with salad dressing, whipped cream and some chopped maraschino cherries with juice for color.
