Ala. jury finds Adams innocent

ANNISTON, Ala. (UPI)—A federal jury of 11 men and a woman last week found Kenneth Adams innocent of charges of receiving explosives stolen from nearby Ft. McClellan.

The decision came after more than 10 hours of deliberation.

Adams, head of the local National States Rights party, and James Willie Roberts were charged with the theft of 56 sticks of dynamite, 31 blocks of TNT, several hand grenades and boxes of ammunition.

Adams, apparently highly elated, left the courtroom with his wife and teen-aged son amid back-slapping congratulations from friends.

Roberts, who pleaded guilty to the charges, was placed on a five-year probation.

TWO APPOINTEES

Two key appointments have been announced by Dr. George Phillips, superintendent of Crownsville

The program is to cost $46,454, of which there is a $4,600 cost to the city.

Only opposition to the program Wednesday came from Charles L. Benton, city budget director, who told the board he had not been properly advised beforehand of the program.

The board agreed with Mr. Mitchell, however, that the program should not be delayed by a prolonged study.

intent to murder two other persons at the residence where she found her bridegroom-to-be.

The incident occurred in the 1600 block Warwick Ave. Mrs. Hilda Smith, 34, residing there then, admitted in preliminary hearings, she had been "Johnny's girl friend" five years before. She was shot one inch from the spine and is paralyzed.

Another person injured in gunfire is Mrs. Miriam Randall, 33, 1600 block Warwick.

They are among more than 20 witnesses who will testify before the court on Feb. 16.

Testimony at hearings in Homicide Court also revealed that the bridegroom-to-be was dead on arrival at Lutheran Hospital July 25. His death, set at 12 noon, was determined, by the Medical Examiner, to be the result of one shot that penetrated his left chest just above the heart.

Further Homicide court testimony said the one-time night club dancer who did her act in a bird cage, was taken into custody by police at her home after the shooting.

Arresting officers told the court she was "just sitting there" wondering aloud how "Johnny" could be dead from one shot.

entire police department" to enter.

He termed the "raid" on the young people at the Nolan Ct. address "a deed done without a search and seizure warrant."

However, Judge Cardin said police, in raiding the home on the morning of Jan. 6 were "assisting Mrs. Robinson."

Mrs. Robinson testified that each of the girls gave statements admitting to intimacy Jan. 6 and the day before with their respective boy friends, Jerry Gates, 19; Willie Rawlings, 15, and Gregory Ash, 15.

Mrs. Rawlings, told the court when she returned home she found her home in disorder.

A lock on her bedroom door was broken, she testified.

Officer John Lancey of Eastern District told the court when he and other officers entered the house it was "very dark" inside.

Morgan feels money pinch in budget cut

Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president of Morgan State College told the Senate Finance Committee at a hearining in Annapolis Thursday that Governor Tawes' cutting of the Morgan budget would perpetuate "second - rate institutions."

The general fund increase which the college requested is 6.3 higher than last year with next year's anticipated enrollment of 9.3 over last year.

Dr. Jenkins said the reduced appropriations would duced appropriation would mean higher tuition costs for Morgan students who come from predominantly low-income families.

"WE ARE greatly disturbed by State policy which requires students to pay an ever-increasing proportion of the cost of their education," Dr. Jenkins said.

Comparing the state's four-year colleges, Morgan's president called it "discouraging" that the college presidents are paid lower salaries than department heads at the University of Maryland.

The state salary cuts were said to make hiring first-rate faculty difficult for state schools.

Morgan hopes the Governor's supplemental budget will make additional funds available, Dr. Jenkins said.

This Birthday Cake Has Lots Of Candlepower
In 1816, just two years after the rockets' red glare immortalized Fort McHenry, another kind of light made Baltimore famous. The city began to replace its flickering candles and whale-oil lamps with gas lights . . . the first gas lights in all America. And, 65 years later, Baltimore turned on its first electric lights ahead of most of the world.
The Baltimore Gas and Electric Company, direct descendant of those pioneering companies, has followed their shining example of leadership for 150 years . . . long enough to make service a habit.
Today we look to the new . . . from gas storage caverns to mine-mouth generation to nuclear power research and development . . . to improve our service to mid-Maryland. We adopt the efficient . . . from data processing to advance distribution equipment . . . to bring you the most dependable fuel and power for your money, more carefree living for less. And we take every timely step forward . . . to expand capacity for the area's future residential, commercial, and industrial energy needs.
Though Baltimore Gas and Electric is the oldest U.S. public utility, the important thing about our Double Diamond Anniversary is that we're feeling younger . . . and working harder . . . than ever before.
