Maryland athletes share Garden honors with Keino

NEW YORK — Athletes colored colleges — notably developed in predominantly Maryland and Morgan State —shared the spotlight in the annual Millrose Games here Thursday night with Kipchoge Keino, the celebrated African miler.

Maryland State relay foursomes captured the featured mile and the secondary two-mile event; Nick Lee, former anchor star of Morgan's 1Ct. A relay champions, upset a star-studded field in the first running of the Millrose 500, and Richard Ross of Southern University, broke the 7-foot barrier of the high jump.

All took their places in the winner's limelight along with Keino, who scored his second triumph in three American races, and will go for his third tomorrow (Saturday) in the Boston A. A. Games at Boston.

• • •

IN ALL, tan athletes copped five individual firsts and two team crowns, the relay victories by the Maryland State quartets.

Aside from Ross in the high jump and Keino in the mile, Fordham's Same Perry took the 60-yard dash, Southern's Willie Davenport won the 60-yard hurdles, and Lee got home first in the 500.

While Perry missed by only a tenth of a second tying the world record, and Davenport matched the meet mark in the fence event, it was Lee's performance in the 500, that had a packed Garden buzzing with excitement.

• • •

NICK, WHO still is a student at Morgan though his track eligibility is exhausted, was a distinct underdog in a race that boasted the presence of Southern's Theron Lewis and former Maryland State star Charlie Mays.

Lee, now running in the colors of the Baltimore Olympic Club, bided his time as Lewis, generally regarded as the finest college quarter-miler in the country, battled for the early lead with Mays, a frequent winner on the major indoor circuit.

As the front pair fought their way into the final bend, Nick closed from the outside and outkicked the field as the run straightened for the wire.

He was caught in 57.9 seconds, with Lewis second and Mays fading to fourth behind Carl Richardson of the New York Pioneers.

• • •

THE MILE RELAY also proved to be something of an upset, due perhaps as much to a disqualification as to the speed of the entry from Maryland State.

Coach Cliff Anderson used a foursome of Bob Brown, Harley Morris, Ed. Skinner and Al Grimes as the hope to match the favored Southern aggregation which a year ago swept both the Millrose and Boston features.

• • •

THE HAWKS responded by turning a 3:17.4 mile, with Morgan's quartet of Denny Edgehill, Herm Hawthorne, Mal Brown and Tim Johnson second.

For Maryland, Brown was caught in 51.4, Morris in 49.1, and Grimes in 48 flat. Morgan's breakdown was Edgehill 51.0, Hawthorne 50.5, Brown 50.4, and Johnson 48.6.

Southern had no chance after her opening runner, Webster Johnson, got the worst of a bumping just prior to the baton pass and wound up in the infield.

• • •

IN THE 2-mile event, the Princess Anne foursome was made up of Morris, Grimes, Carver King, and Benedict Cayenne. They made the tour in 7:39.6.

Second was Princeton University, with Chicago Loyola and St. John's following in that order.

Keino of Kenya, who admittedly is best in long-distance races, just lasted to win the famed Wanamaker Mile. His time of 4:03.9, was well off his best 3:54.2.

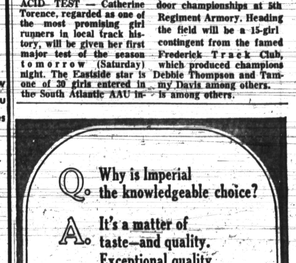
Bob Day of UCLA, finished second in 4:04.2 and was gaining on the 3,000 and 5,000 meter world record holder when Keino hit the tape. Josef Odlozil of Czechoslovakia was third.

• • •

KEINO, who normally wears an orange baseball cap during the earlier portions of his races and then discards it for his late kick, threw the hat aside just before the mile started and settled into stride far back as the race began.

Earlier, Willie Davenport of Southern University equalled a Millrose record of 7.0 seconds in the 60-yard high hurdles and Sam Perry of Fordham took the 60 - yard dash in 6.0 seconds to miss the world mark by one-tenth of a second.

WINS MILE — Kipchoge Keino of Kenya missed the four - minute mark but ran a winning mile race at 4:03.9 Thursday night in the Millrose Games in New York.



ACID TEST — Catherine Torence, regarded as one of the most promising girl runners in local track history, will be given her first major test of the season tomorrow (Saturday) night. The Eastside star is one of 30 girls entered in the South Atlantic AAU indoor championships at 5th Regiment Armory. Heading the field will be a 15-girl contingent from the famed Frederick Track Club, which produced champions Debbie Thompson and Tunney Davis among others. Is among others.

Twins star Earl Battey given 5-day jail term

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Catcher Earl Battey of the Minnesota Twins, was sentenced to five days in the Ramsey County Workhouse Wednesday for failure to file state income tax returns for four years.

Battey pleaded guilty to not filing returns for the years 1961 through 1964 — a misdemeanor punishable by up to a $100 fine or 90 days in jail.

The chunky catcher of the defending American League champions appeared in St. Paul Municipal Court before Judge James W. Lynch. The judge imposed a 15-day sentence but then cut it to five because of "mitigating circumstances."

THE JUDGE released Battey without bail after sentencing and ordered him to begin serving the five days Feb. 3, under the Huber Law, which allows him to go about his business during the day but requiring him to spend the nights in the workhouse.

Before pleading guilty, Battey gave the State a check for $4,227.80 — the amount the state said he owed in taxes for the four years. Battey contended he should get a refund for 1961 through 1963, however, because he was not a resident at that time.

• • •

BATTEY'S ATTORNEY, Michael J. Galvin Jr., said Battey grew up in California, had played baseball in a number of cities since 1955, and wasn't aware that he was supposed to pay State income tax in Minnesota. Galvin said Battey's family still lives in California.

But the judge said the offense was a "serious one" and "the court has no alternative but to treat you as any other person in the same position."

Eagles halfback...

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Halfback Timmy Brown of the Philadelphia Eagles underwent an operation Wednesday to repair a torn ligament of the right thumb, injured against the Detroit Lions in the final game of the season.

The operation was performed at Graduate Hospital by Dr. James E. Nixon, team physician.

Nixon said a tendon from Brown's right wrist was used to repair the thumb ligament.

The surgeon said Brown would be a hospital patient for three or four days, and that the thumb would be in a cast from three to four weeks.

CONVERSATION PIECE:

Frank Robinson gives his side of 'hard-to-handle' tag

By Sam Lacy

Someone at Tuesday's Orioles press conference asked newly - acquired outfielder Frank Robinson to describe his reaction when he learned of the trade that brought him to Baltimore from the Cincinnati Reds.

"I was a little stunned at first, somewhat hurt, Then later, after weighing all the pluses and minuses, I was very pleased," declared the 30-year-old slugger.

The fact that he admitted he was "hurt" combined with a plea of guilty that he regarded the American League weaker than the National, t ô convince listeners that Frank Robinson is an honest guy who answers questions straight from the shoulder.

This may or may not serve him in good stead during his tenure with the Orioles, but it could serve as a reminder to reporters that doesn't flinch at the thought of saying what's on his mind.

• • •

THE AFRO began to wonder, after sitting in on the question-and-answer session, whether it was this bent toward complete frankness that had given Robinson the reputation of being "hard to handle." Coffee with him in his hotel room seemed a good idea.

Frank was amenable. He sat on the side of his bed attired in trousers, bedroom slippers and a tee shirt that only half covered biceps that were big enough and rigid enough to remind one of duckpin balls.

"Oh sure," he willingly, "I've read numerous stories to the effect that I am hard to handle, moody, lazy and countless other things.

• • •

"I'M NOT the one to say whether they were accurate or inaccurate. And certainly, I don't intend to try to defend myself against the charges. Actually, it doesn't seem to me that I should have to offer any defense.

"I do know this, however; When I was in Cincinnati, I was seldom asked this question you have put to me. And when I was asked to give my version of a dispute with managment, it rarely was given the same treatment the original story received.

• • •

"ONE VERY good example of this occurred at the end of the 1960 season," Robinson continued. "I stopped in the office one day when I was dowstown on other business, and asked the new general manager (Bill DeWitt) whether we could get my contract business out of the way before I left for my home in California.

"He said he didn't have the time to talk with me then and that he was leaving the city shortly to be away for about two weeks. I explained I preferred to discuss the matter in person, that I found it much better than using the telephone. I was told I'd just have to wait, that he had no intention of changing his plans.

• • •

"SO I waited. My wife had already gone home, and I hung around Cincinnati for over a month. Finally the general manager and I gotto-gether.

"His first words to me were: 'I understand you're lazy, Robinson; that you don't put out all the time. In order that we should understand each other, it might be well for you to remember that I don't care much for that type of ball player.'

• • •

"TO BE greeted like that by a man who admitted he never had seen me play and had no personal knowledge of my character or my ability, left me irritated—justifiably so, I felt.

"I told him exactly what I thought of this approach.

"The next morning, sports headlines screamed the 'news' that the new Reds management is determined to 'Light a Fire Under Robinson.'"

• • •

WHEN REPORTERS asked Frank what he thought of the statement, he told them he wasn't quite sure what he was supposed to do, since it always had been his policy to go all out at all times.

"You don't love the game the way I do, and only half play it," Robbie observed.

• • •

"ANOTHER TIME, I was troubled with a sore arm in spring training. Since I am a notoriously slow starter, I made up my mind to play in as many exhibition games as I could.

"The manager (the late Fed Hutchinson) told me to take things easy, to do no hard throwing. He told me to toss it underhanded or simply lob the ball in, but again I dislike the ideal of being just half a ball player.

"I kept throwing until the trainer told me to get out, if the lineup and stay until he said otherwise.

• • •

"The manager became indignant and somewhere, a rumor was started that I was 'jaking' it (loafing). This is the story that was printed, nobody bothering to question the trainer about the true condition of my arm."

• • •

THERE ALSO was the occasion when Robinson was reported to be weak against righthanded pitching. Was there any truth to this then, and is this the case now?

"I'll answer the same way I answered Cincinnati writers at the time," replied Robinson. "One day, the manager told me out of a clear sky that he was benching me against righthanded pitchers. opening of the season and, as I pointed out, I start slowly. Actually, I wasn't hitting any kind of pitching to my satisfaction at the time. So the evidence that I always the manager, disregarding the evidence that I always have to play myself out of slumps, commenced platooning me. I was asked whether it was true that I couldn't hit righthanders.

• • •

"I TOLD them I couldn't hit any kind of handers from the bench; that they haven't come up yet with a bat that extended from the dugout to home plate.

"I told them something they should have been able to reason for themselves: that during the course of a year you face three or four times as many righthanders as left-handers and that I've been a .304 hitter over my lifetime in the big leagues.

"While this was an obvious conclusion, I guess a ball player is not supposed to refute anything management says. If you do, you're a troublemaker or you're hard to handle.

• • •

"COMING TO Baltimore, Frank declared, "should be a real happy experience. I'm told most of the reporters here are, or try to be objective. I'm also convinced trat the Oriole management is a no-foolishness outfit, which is exactly the way I-like it.

"I look around and sense the contentment in guys like Brooks (Robinson), (Boog) Powell, (Jerry) Adair and Sam Bowens. You can tell when you're joining an organization that is fair."

• • •

WHEN THE otherwise poised Robinson rose from his bedside perch, strolled across the room and went through the motions of an impatient ball player, one could sense that a change of subject was in order.

How is the family?

The wife, Barbara, is fine. So are the youngsters, Frank Kevin, aged 3, and the 5-month-old baby girl.

They'll keep their home in California, but will live in Baltimore during the summer months.

"MY WIFE is a complete sports fan. She love all of them and, until the baby came, she didn't miss a ball game at home," volunteered Frank.

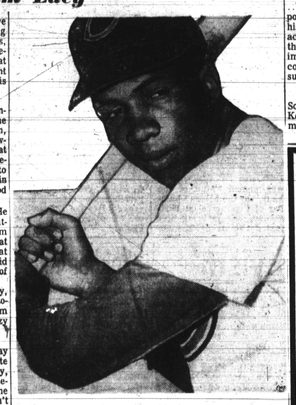
Barbara is Catholic. She wants Frank to join her in the faith. "But I may later on, not right now, thought."

• • •

FRANK KEVIN? "He's a little card. Hts only 3, but already he can differentiate between the televised sports —baseball, basketball and football.

"He leaves no doubt, though, that he likes football best of the lot. And when I play with him with his rdbber ball, he tries to hit it lefthanded, damn it."

It probably cold be frustrating for a father who's a righthanded baseball slugger, to have to raise a lefthanded football player.



FRANK ROBINSON

Left Bank

On Sunday, Jan. 27, the Left Bank Jazz Society will present the Charles Lloyd quartet in concert, from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Madison Club, Madison and Chester Sts.

Hank Levy and his big band is another future attraction soon to be featured at the Club.

Last Sunday, the Society presented Billy Mitchell on sax, Donald Bailey on bass, Stomp Saunders on drums and Jimmy Wells on piano. Loyal jazz enthusiasts supported the well - attended concert.

The LBJS is currently conducting a subscribing membership drive. Interested persons may contact one of the members for details. Concerts are held each Sunday.
