of civil servants in general is more likely to be boosted by a well run, competent, efficient department; the previous residency of the individual responsible for increasing the efficiency of the department is of little significance.

Civic pride will be enhanced, in the long run, by having a top flight police department.

3. Baltimore has a precedent in recent history for going outside the city for people to head major departments, e.g., Dr. Laurence G. Paquin, superintendent of schools; Larry Reich, director of the Planning Department, and Henry Barnes, former Traffic commissioner.

—'McCarthyism'

CORE projects director Walter Carter wrote, "We must move with unrelenting direct action programs against the real estate power structure, while getting every black man registered to drive the 'Citizen Council' element fro City Hall," in answer to the defeat of the fair - housing bill.

Mr. Carter adds, "We must meet them "eye - ball to eye-ball, on three successive Mondays to remind them of that sad Monday when they blasted the freedom of speech of H. Warren Buckler, while blasting the dignity of 362,000 blacks of Baltimore, reminiscent of Birmingham."

IN LETTERS to Mayor McKeldin and Mr. D'Alesandro the Maryland Chapter of the American Jewish Congress "expressed dismay and concern" over the Baltimore City Council's "railroading" the fair housing bill and Mr. Buckler's nomination to defeat.

H. S. Rubenstein, president of the general division of the American Jewish Congress, and Mrs. Charles Danoff, president of the women's division, wrote of the "grave concern" members of their organization felt over the "arbitrary treatment" which Mr. Buckler's nomination was given.

The AJC's letter to Mayor McKeldin stated, "the reason for his rejection were not germain to his competence loyalty, and dedication to a most difficult appointment."

The letter asked about "the direction in which the City Council is moving: — backward to McCarthyism and its . . . regressive principles of the radical right which exposes a racist society based on "white supremacy" ."

The League of Women Voters expressed concern in a letter to the mayor by LWV president, Mrs. Christopher Gray which said, "the actions of the City Council on Monday recall the era of McCarthyism" in the rejection of Mr. Buckler and the fair housing bill.

I felt that anything could happen any day."

She remembered that Woodrow left for Vietnam on Dec. 26 — that date is etched on her memory — the day after Christmas. "He wasn't even able to come home for Christmas. He was stationed at Fort Dix ,N.J., and they only gave them an overnight pass."

The quiet, likable youth received his basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. and was determined to "make the best of the situation, whether he liked it or not."

In his last letter, received the day before the telegram arrived, Woodrow wrote atop a mountain and marveled at the beautiful country.

"At times it doesn't seem like a war is going on," he wrote his mother. In that letter he also asked for pictures of the family — pictures which could never be sent and which he will never receive.

Woodrow attended Houston Junior High School and worked for a roofing firm before he was inducted June 15, 1965.

His mother, a clerk at Lutheran Hospital, recalled that Woodrow had acted as "the man of the house" for her and his younger brother and two sisters before he was drafted.

The serviceman is also survived by his father Woodrow W. King Sr. and a grandmother Mrs. Ella King, both of Washington.

Funeral plans were incomplete at AFRO presstime.

Caldwell gets 'citizen '65' Elkton award

Charles W. Caldwell has been honored as "Citizen of the Year 1965" by the Elkton Chamber of Commerce for his service to education in Maryland. It marked the first time a colored person had won the honor.

Born in 1899 in Whittman the former Carver Vocational High principal attended Talbot County Schools, Princess Anne Academy and Morgan State College. He took extension courses at Hampton Institute.

Mr. Caldwell retired in 1964 after 35 years of service at Carver and is a former president of both the Cecil County Teachers' Association and the Maryland State Teachers' Association.

THE RESOLUTION commending Mr. Caldwell was read by Dr. Thomas Pullen, former state superintendent of schools and now president of the University of Baltimore.

It said in part, "Mr. Caldwell has served his community with distinction as trustee and lay leader of his church Providence Methodist," and "has counseled many people, sensitizing all to the need for adequate human communication and dignified race relationships."

Many of Mr. Caldwell's friends a n d colleagues watched as Dr. Pullen made the presentation.

The honoree and his wife, Edith, now reside in Baltimore and have a daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Grace ,and two grandchildren.

Bethlehem awarded 2-ship contact

Senator Daniel B. Brewster (D-Md.) announced Wednesday that the Naval Bureau of Ships is awarding a $47.8 million contract to Bethlehem Steel Corporation for the construction of two ammunition ships.

The work will be performed at Bethlehem's Sparrow Point Yard.

Hospital granted training course

Rep. Clarence D. Long (D., Md.) announced Wednesday that thirty unemployed workers will be given training as licensed practical nurses under a Federal grant to Harford Memorial Hospital at Havre de Grace.

The project, to provide a full year's training, will cost a total of $83,541 for training expenses and allowances to those being trained.

Rep. Long said the project was approved under the Federal Manpower Development and Training Act.

the constitutional right of the people of any race, color or creed to own a home wherever they choose," he said at the time.

"In my opinion, Gov. Tawes and Attorney General Finan should assume the leadership in seeking the prompt passage by the Legislature of a state - wide open occupancy law, and to thereby eliminate the problem as a local or parochial matter.

"Aggressive leadership at Annapolis would probably accomplish the passage of such a law or, failing that at the very least, legislation that would guarantee open occupancy in the Baltimore metropolitan area.

"Ducking the issue by persons charged with public responsibility constitutes nothing more than a failure to face up to a public position on a controversial matter of the greatest importance."

THE INCLUSION of naming Mr. Finan as a responsible person in this matter comes because he is an all but announced candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and thus will oppose Mr. Miles.

Congressman Carlton R. Sickles, seen by some supporters as another potential candidate for governor, has long been on record as favoring open occupancy legislation.

Meanwhile, bills calling for state - wide open occupancy legislation are expected to be placed before both chambers of the General Assembly within a few days.

Student killed as friends played with loaded pistol

DEATH SCENE—This is 3100 Normount Ave. in West Baltimore, the comfortable home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Evans Jr., and family. Police found their only son, George 3rd, dead of a bullet wound in the chest on Tuesday morning.

Three high school students —all of them friends—and an "unloaded" revolver were the ingredients of a tragic Tuesday morning episode that took the life of 16-year-old George W. Evans III.

Killed by a single bullet wound inflicted in thedining room of his home in the 3100 block of Normount Ave., young Evans was dead on arrival at Luthern Hospital at 10:32 a.m.

Shortly afterwards acting on evidence at the scene, Western District police picked up one of Evans's companions, 15 - year - old Clyde M. Tatum, Jr., 3600 block Wabash Ave., as he attended classes at Forest Park High School. Tatum was charged with causing his friend's death.

The third companion, Alvin Turpin, 16, a neighbor who lives in the same block as Evans, was picked up as he attended classes at City College. He was charged with possession of a deadly weapon.

ACCORDING TO police the shooting occurred about 9:45 a.m.

Though there was no evidence of an argument, the youths were playing with a 32 cal. revolver brought to the house by young Turpin, police said.

Believing that the gun held only one "blank" shell, the companions took turns pointing the gun at each other and clicking the trigger until the live shell exploded into Evans's shoulder according to police who reconstructed incidents leading up to the tragedy.

The bullet entered the rear underpart of his left shoulder, struck his heart and finally embedded in the rib cage, the medical examiner's office reported.

When Western District officers Nicholas Letanishen and David Popilok arrived on the scene shortly after 10 a.m., they found Evans lying unconcious on the dining room floor. No one else was present in the house.

Taken by by ambulance to Luthern Hospital, Evans was dead on arrival a few minutes later, and his heartbreaked parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Evans Jr., were notified at their jobs.

INVESTIGATING AT the Evans's house, police found a deck of playing cards, a pencil and a sheet of paper used as a scorecard, on the dining room table.

The scorecard was a latenes excuse written to the school by one of the youths' parents.

Police disclosed that minutes before he was shot, Evans, a student in an accelerated class at City College, had been kidding with the mailman while they latter made his rounds at the house.

The mailman told police that the youth did not appear disturbed and that no one else appeared to be in the house.

Police recovered the gun —a .32 cal. Harrington Richardson revolver—in the woods located on the north side of the 1200 block Rosedale St.

Funeral services for the slain youth were scheduled today (Friday) at noon at St. James Episcopal Church.

Meanwhile both Tatum and Turpin have been released pending action of the state's attorney's office.

Charles E. Moylan Jr., chief prosecutor, said a decision will be reached shortly on whether Juvenile Court will maintain or waiver jurisdiction in the case.

If the Court for Juvenile causes waives jurisdiction the youths will be tried in Criminal Court following action by the grand jury.

Otherwise it will be disposed of by Judge Charles E. Moylan Sr. in Juvenile Court.

Tatum was initially brought before Homicide Court Judge Robert B. Watts Wednesday morning, but Judge Watts postponed the case pending the filing of motions by the youth's attorney, George L. Russell Jr.

At 11 a.m. Judge Moylan released Tatum in his own recognizance on a Habeas Corpus Petition in which Mr. Russell submitted this statement of facts.

"Clyde Milton Tatum Jr., 15, 3610 Wabash Ave., is charged with the muder of his dear friend and schoolmate, George Evans III, 14. Death resulted from a bullet wound in the chest.

"DEFENDANT AND the decedent were playing with a pistol with another youth and the pistol went off causing the death of Evans.

"The three boys were playing cards at the home of the decedent, prior to going to Forest Park High School. The defendant is in the 10th grade.

"The defendant has no prior record and lives with his parents.

"It is respectfully submitted that it is unreasonable to hold the defendant without

Lutheran Hospital, from a bullet which entered the rear left shoulder and pierced the heart.

'I don't know how it happened,' the boy's father said. 'But from what I can gather, they were playing with the gun . . . but nobody was supposed to be in the house . . .

'My wife used to take him to school but when he got in high school and was on the split shift . . . nobody was supposed to be in the house . . . it's just rough . .'

THE SLAIN youth was a third generation Baltimorean, the grandson of the late George W. Evans Sr., a practicting attorney and longtime resident of East Baltimore. He died in February 1948.

'His grandfather practiced law here for 25 years. He always said he wanted to be a lawyer like Grandfather Evans,' volunteered his mother, Mrs. Ann Dillard Evans, a Social Security employee.

The youth was born July 26, 1951. At the age of five, he became an altar boy at St. James Episcopal Church, and had been faithful in attendance ever since.

In fact, this past Sunday he braved the snow and was the only altar boy on duty.

HE WAS also president of the church's Junior Fellowship, and an active member of the Druid Hill YMCA.

'He was one of the nicest fellows,' according to his Sunday School teacher, John H. Murphy 3rd, AFRO president.

Ironically, Mr. Murphy recalled one of the recent lessons his class discussed concerned firearm and this advice: 'If you don't plan to use a gun, don't play with it . . . it might be loaded.'

REQUIEM MASS was said this morning (Friday) at St. James, with Father Donald O. Wilson officiating. Burial was in Baltimore National Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kelson, morticians and longtime family friends, handled arrangements.

In addition to his parents, young Evans is survived by a sister, Karen, 15, a student at Western High; two grandmothers, Mrs. George W. Evans Sr. (Willerma), of Baltimore; and Mrs. Thomas H. Dillard (Elizabeth), of Sharon, Pa. There are also several aunts and uncles.

"In my state of Texas, there are enough colored registered voters to swing an election."

VICE PRESIDENT Humphrey conferred with the publishers in Room 474, the Indian Treaty Room, of the old State Office Building.

He emphasized the need of only one kind of citizenship —first class.

"Anything short of this is costly to the whole economy," he told the publishers. "One thing is to pass laws, the second job is to make them work .

"The legislative battle for civil rights is not ended. More work must be done on voter registration, fair trial and jury participation.

"The biggest fight looming on the horizon will be in housing, but we must start the fight now."

The 18 publishers, including John H. Murphy 3rd, president, AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers, will continue today (Friday) with editorial, circulation and advertising sessions.

Speakers will include Mr. Kaltenbach, Robert C. Weaver, secretary, Department of Housing and Urban Development, and Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

cross was burning and the snow was falling." He said he saw no one near the scene.

NORTHEASTERN police said the cross was made of wood and measured five feet by four feet, and the rags were soaked in gasoline. The only evidence was an empty gasoline container found nearby.

Meanwhile Lt. Lawrence Cooper, acting commander of the Detective Bureau, told the AFRO late Thursday that no arrests have been made in connection with the earlier burnings.

Flaming crosses were discovered Sunday night within a half hour at the War Memorial Plaza and on the Cathedral lawn in the 5300 block N. Charles St.

At that time investigators theorized that someone who was angered by the role Lawrence Cardinal Shehan played in the campaign to win passage of a fair housing law was responsible.

Significantly, Cardinal Shehan was greeted rudely by persons opposed to the proposed ordinance when he appeared in person to testify at a public hearing held at the War Memorial Building.

Subsequent defeat of the measure triggered statements of bitter disappointment from proponents of the bill and the rash of cross burnings.

EDWIN TULLY, special-agent-in-charge of the Baltimore FBI office, told AFRO he has been alerted to the burnings, but his agents are not involved in the investigation because no Federal violations are involved.

Meantime, Mr. Murdy dis agrees with views voiced by some police officers who have tagged the burnings the work of pranksters.

"Whoever burned that one Wednesday night meant business. Unless they had to, people weren't going out in that snow," he said.

Papers indicate the Taylors have $100.1 a bank but this too is now unavailable under the circumstances.

Donations are beginning to trickle in from friends and other relatives bu the costs of funeral arrangements for four leave the expense fund considerally short.

Some people come to Soft Whiskey the hard way.
Some people will go to any length to find the whiskey they want. And their search sometimes takes them to many a strange brew. Of course, others are luckier. They try Soft Whiskey first. And once they do, they never have to try anything else. You don't settle for Soft Whiskey. You drink it only because you like it.
That's because Soft Whiskey does anything any other whiskey can do, only it does it softer. (It's 86 proof.)
We came to Soft Whiskey the hard way (after thousands of experiments). And we make it the hard way, by doing some distilling in small batches instead of large ones. Anything else we could tell you is top secret. Once you find we're the only Soft Whiskey, you'll know why. Even if you did come to it the hard way.
