Simplicity marks funeral of Mrs. B. M. Rhetta Sr.

BY BETTYE MOSS

Simple, quiet, dignified funeral services were held Thursday morning for Mrs. Barnett M. Rhetta Sr., 80, widow of the longtime Baltimore physician.

The half hour rites in Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church were in the manner in which Mrs. Rhetta lived. Methodist Bishop Edgar A. Love explained, "she lived a beautiful, quiet, effective life."

Her minister, the Rev. Reginald Daniels, put it, "those of us who knew her were inspired by her dedication. She was always helping others."

* * *

THE FAMILY tribute noted: 'She was a gentle but strong woman who lived a rich and full life . . .

"She gave unstintingly of herself in her several roles as daughter, wife, mother, sister and friend . . ."

Music was provided by Peabody Student Myrtle Mack. Miss Almira Miller, church organist, accompanied her for the three beautiful solos, 'O Love That Will Not Let Me Go,' 'Come All Ye Saints,' and 'Thou Most Merciful.'

* * *

MRS. RHETTA was born Feb. 20, 1885, in Rockwood, Tenn., the oldest of five children of the Rev. Dr. Sterling N. Brown and Adelaide Hall Brown.

Her father was for 37 years professor of theology at Howard University and an ordained Congregational minister.

He was minister of Lincoln Memorial Temple in D.C. where he also served on the School Board for two terms.

SHE WAS a graduate of Washington's famed M St. High School and the Miner Normal School and studied piano at the New England Conservatory of Music.

She taught a year in the D.C. schools and in June 1907, was married to Dr. Rhetta, the same year he finished Howard Medical School.

At his death in Oct. 1956, he had to his credit 47 years practice and the reputation of a dedicated family physician. His office was at 2139 Druid Hill Ave., still the family home.

There were three children: Mrs. Erowelle Brinkley, a Baltimore teacher, who died a month before her father; Dr. Helen Rhetta, Chicago physician; and Dr. Barnett M. Rhetta Jr., Baltimore physician.

She is also survived by a brother, Dr. Sterling Brown, longtime Howard University professor and author; and three sisters, Misses Helen and Grace Brown and Mrs. Elsie Smith, all of D.C.

* * *

MRS. RHETTA was a founder of the DuBois Circle, the oldest literary club in Baltimore. It observed its 50th anniversary last year.

She also organized the first women's auxiliary of doctors' wives and professional men, was active in Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church and the YWCA, serving for a time on its committee of administration.

As a lover of music, she and Dr. Rhetta maintained membership in the Baltimore Symphony and regularly attended musical concerts.

THE Leroy Wilson Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Among out - of - towners who joined the eleven - car procession to Arbutus Memorial Park were:

From D.C. — Mrs. Sterling Brown, Mrs. Helen Moseley, Mrs. Monaco Waltz, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chatman, Mrs. William Campfield.

From Chicago: Mrs. Philip Williams.

Pallbearers were: Ossarew Gee, Osborne Dixon, George Parker, Dr. Bernard Harris Jr., Charles Michael and Dr. William Garner.

See Poets 'even' in MSA showdown

Dunbar High School's chance of locking up her third straight Maryland Scholastic Association division title, was described as "even" this morning (Friday) as the team prepared for this afternoon's showdown game in DIvision 1.

This seems to be the case regardless, of the point of view, since both coaches in the key contest to be played at Dunbar used the adjective in pre - game conversation with the AFRO.

* * *

WILLIAM (Sugar) CAIN, the Poet mentor, and George Kimmett, his opposite number at rival Edmondson High saw things pretty much the same way — though with a somewhat different approach.

"They beat us the last time," said Cain, recalling the painful experience of being upset, 78-65, at Edmondson in the first half of the MSA schedule. "But I'd say our chances are even for getting even."

"We took Dunbar the first time around," Kimmett observed, "but they figure to be much tougher in this one. Playing at home, they have a better than even chance of reversing things."

* * *

THE POETS have lost only once in 11 games this winter, and were undefeated in league play last year. That sole setback was at the hands to today's opponent.

"They just outhustled us the last time we met." Cain admits. "I hate to admit anything like that about a Dunbar team because that is one of our big assets. But it is true."

"Edmondson has a smart bunch and they fight you all the way. With our present momentum, though, I think we have an even chance of breaking open the race."

* * *

KIMMETT APPEARS to have the same respect for Dunbar that Cain exhibits for his quintet.

"Cain has his big boy playing up to his potential now, and that can mean a lot for Dunbar. (Dickie) Kelly has been hard to handle every time he takes the floor, but now that (Charlie) Thomas seems to have come around, anybody playing them figures to be in for real trouble," the Edmondson tutor asserted.

* * *

THE POETS romped to a 99 - 70 decision over Douglass on Tuesday, in the first of two "must" games visualized by Cain earlier this week. Today's stiff is the second of those "must" affairs.

Should the Poet five get over Edmondson this afternoon, it will be but a step away from the division crown. The victory would enable Cain and his youngsters to notch a 2 - game lead toward their sixth title in the last 9 years—SAM LACY.

1 dead, 3 hurt in 2-car crash

Will Wright, 44, 600 block N. Arlington St., was dead on arrival at Franklin Square Hospital after a 2-car collision at Franklin and Mount Sts. about 12:30 a.m. this (Friday) morning.

Mrs. Doris Coleman, 32, 900 block Mount St., was admitted to Franklin Square in critical condition.
