Rice retires from Westinghouse gifts include color television

Nicholas Rice was given a special testimonial dinner Tuesday evening at the Eastwind upon his retirement after a quarter of a century association with Westinghouse as supervisor of the maintenance department.

A native Baltimorean, Mr. Rice attended Baltimore public schools and left Howard University during the war to enter service. He was discharged a first lieutenant and began working with Westinghouse Company.

Head table guests for the affair included: State Senator Verda Welcome, Judge Robert Watts, Judge Sewell Lamdin and the Rev. J. Scarborough, pastor of St. Marks Church in Hanover.

Also, the Rev. C. Dyson, pastor of St. Matthews Church in Baltimore, where Mr. Rice has been a member for 60 years; was among those honoring the Westinghouse employee.

* * *

MR. RICE is a widower and the father of a son, Nicholas Rice, also with Westingrouse, and a daughter, Mrs. Ellen Marshall, both of Baltimore.

A Justice of the Peace for Baltimore and Maryland at-large, Mr. Rice also has been a former magistrate, appointed in 1959.

He is a member of Prince Hall Masons, the Chesapeake Club, and Monumental Club in Baltimore. Mr. Rice is also a member of the Pigskin Club, Inc. of Washington.

As a neighborhood commissioner for the Boy Scouts and a well - known organizer of many troops, Mr. Rice told the AFRO, "I have a lot of work ahead of me there and now I've got the time to devote to the scouts."

* * *

PETE BISHOP, manager of manufacturing, and D. C. Lee, manager of industrial relations for the Westinghouse Corp., presented the retiree with numerous gifts, including a color TV set, an inscribed plaque and a desk set.

A gavel was also presented in memory of the days when Mr. Rice served as a Justice of the Peace and magistrate.

Vietnam talk

Vietnam will be the subject of an informal address by Robert S. Browne, professor of economics, Fairleigh Dickerson University, New Jersey, at 4 p.m. Friday, Feb. 25 in the McKeldin Student Union Lounge, Morgan State College.

For six years, 1955 to 1961, Mr. Browne lived in Vietnam working for the United States foreign aid program. In 1965, he returned to Saigon to lecture on the current Vietnam political situation.

As a non - white American, fluent in the Vietnamese language and married to a Vietnamese, he is seen as uniquely qualified to comment on U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Mr. Browne is being presented by the Morgan chapter of Baltimore Universities Committee on Problems on War and Peace.

FEB. 27
Mrs. Frances Howard, program liason officer between the State Department's Agency for International Development and the many voluntary foreign aid services, will speak at the 11 a.m. service at the First Unitarian Church, Charles and Franklin Sts., on the Universalist Service Committee.

Attended seminar

Arthur D. Weddington, deputy executive director of the Baltimore Urban League, has returned from a two - week residential seminar course at the Cornell University School of Industrial and Labor Relations.

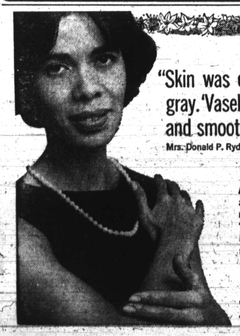
"Skin was drying out...flaking...looked dull and gray. 'Vaseline' Petroleum Jelly helped make it soft and smooth...looked 100% better in a few days."
Mrs. Donald P. Ryder, New York, N. Y.



Applied as a continuous film to hands, ankles, face, arms—when your skin needs more than cosmetic care—'Vaseline' Petroleum Jelly is the soothing answer. Helps dry, ashy-gray skin regain its normal look and tone. No other softeners, no skin cream, no skin lotion provides better moisture protection. Try it.

WHEN SKIN NEEDS MORE THAN COSMETIC CARE.

City downs Dunbar, 67-59 as title series opened

City College downed defending champion Dunbar, 67-59, in the first game of the Maryland Scholastic Association league title series Thursday night in the Civic Center.

Dunbar's strategy to get crack center Leroy Dedmon out of the game by the foul route did not materialize until there were just 2:28 left and the 6-10 star by then had racked up 21 points and hauled in 16 big rebounds.

Substitute guard Lenny Hamm, in for Billy Rose who ran into four trouble, was a big boost to City's attack, tossing in 13 points and influencing the game with his steady play and ball stealing.

* * *

DESPITE A heavy snowfall, 4,114 fans were on hand for the opening round.

The next game is scheduled for Monday night and City needs just one more win to wrap up its first crown since 1963. The Collegians remain unbeaten for the year.

Guard Dickie Kelly and center Charley Thomas of the Poets each matched Dedmon's output of 21 points. Thomas also had 16 rebounds.

Dunbar, never really out of the game until time ran out, held the lead on several occasions. City's edge off the boards, 50 rebounds against 35 for Dunbar, probably proved decisive in the first match.

City's Junior Varsity dumped Dunbar JV, 46 - 40.

EYES MSA HONORS — Edmondson High School's Joe Banks appears to have his eyes focused on something directly ahead. And it could be the 112 - pound title in Saturday's Maryland Scholastic Association wrestling tournament. Banks, who helped the Redskins whip Douglass for the dual meet crown last week, is undefeated in 8 matches for the season. Coach Augie Waibel rates the youngster one of the best scholastic matmen he has tutored.

Ga. cop faces beating charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department Monday charged a Georgia deputy sheriff with unlawfully arresting and beating a farm worker whose children had enrolled in a previously all - white school.

Charges were filed against Wayne Ecoll Humphries, a Mitchell County deputy sheriff.

The department said Humphries had violated the constitutional rights of Willie Lee Lamons.

Citing a law which makes it a federal offense for a policeman to deprive persons of their constitutional rights, the department said Humphries knew that he had "no lawful basis for doing so but did arrest, detain and imprison" Lamons.

According to the announcement, the arrest and assault against Lamons took place last Aug. 28, shortly after his children enrolled in a previously all - white school.

If found guilty, Humphries faces a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine on each count.

Lenten books recommended for fresh religious thinking

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Writer
WASHINGTON

One of the best ways to observe Lent is to read a book that will jar you into doing a little fresh thinking about God.

Of the hundreds of new books available for Lenten reading this year, the one I recommend most highly is a novel: "Tell No Man" by Adela Rogers St. John (Doubleday).

Miss St. John is a superb craftsman, as she proved during her long career as a newspaper reporter and magazine writer. In this, her first novel, she has focused her talent as a story - teller on a provocative question:

* * *

WHAT WOULD happen if a personable young man from a wealthy, socially - prominent Chicago family were to undergo a mystical experience as vivid and unmistakably real as St. Paul's vision of Christ on the road to Damascus?

In working out the answer, Miss St. John shows with merciless clarity how respectability has supplanted faith in many parts of America's religious establishment.

But as soon as you begin feeling morally superior to clergymen who don't believe the Gospel they're paid to proclaim, Miss St. John confronts you with disturbing questions about just how far you are prepared to trust the promises of Christ.

Aside from the fact that it deals intelligently and sensitively with religious questions, this is a highly entertaining novel with swift narrative pace, a good love characters, including the story, and well - realized characters, including the most fascinating heroine I've encountered in recent fiction.

* * *

IN THE realm of non-fiction, my nominations for Lenten reading begin with "God Is Not Dead" by the noted Oford Theologian, Dr. Austin Farrer (Morehouse - Barlow). As the title indicates, this is an antite to some of the nonsense which is being dished up these days in the name of theology. Dr. Farrer has a rare ability to deal with theological questions on the highest intellectual level without confusing the ordinary lay reader.

If you haven't already read it, I also commend his brief but brilliant discussion of essential Christian doctrines: "Saving Belief," which was published last year.

* * *

ANOTHER BOOK on Christian doctrine, which would be admirably suited for use by Lenten discussion groups, is "The Scandal of Christianity" by Emil Brunner. This classic work by one of the greatest theologians of the century is newly available in an inexpensive paperback (John Knox Press.)

It deals with five Christian doctrines which have become "stumbling blocks to modern man" — historical revelation, the concept of a trulne God, original sin, mediation and the resurrection.

Of the many books of meditations and devotions that were timed for the Lenten season, two deserve particular notice.

* * *

"THE PRISON meditations of Father Delp" (MacMillian) is a paperback edition of a book which deserves a much wider audience than the hardcover version received three years ago. Dr. Alfred Delpa, Jesuit priest, was eecuted by the Nazis in early 1945 Because of his opposition to Hitler.

He was a Catholic counterpart of the Protestant Martyr Dietrich Bonhoeffer, and these meditations, written in the very shadow of the gallows, have the same spiritual intensity, the same uncompromising honesty, that characterizes Bonhoeffer's widely - admired "Letters and Papers From Prison."

* * *

"THE MAGNIFICENT defeat" (Seabury) is a new book of meditations by Frederick Buechner, Presbyterian minister at Phillips Eeter Academy and author of several successful novels.

This is prose so beautifully written that it verges on poetry. Yet it wrestles with sweaty contemporary problems, including the problem of those who want to believe and can't.

Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president emeritus of Union Theological Seminary, calls it "the most inspiring book which has come into my hands within recent memory."

Lady wants in, Skins band says no

WASHINGTON

Is the Washington Redskins Band ready for integration?

This time it is not a question of race — the band already has several colored members — but a question of sex.

The point was raised this week by Miss Geraldine S. Jackson of the 100 block 12th St., SE, a teacher of instrumental music at the Evans Junior High School.

Miss Jackson plays the Euphonium a wind instrument, and she wants some place to play it. People just don't go around giving euphonium concerts — its not that type of instrument — so about the only place she can play it is in a band.

That's where the Redskins come in.

MISS JACKSON heard they were looking for musicians so she called them and outlined her qualifications, which include graduation as a music major at Kentucky State College and additional work at University of Louisville.

Fine, Miss Jackson quoted a band official as saying, but we don't have any women in the band and as far as I am concerned we don't plan to have any.

"It's terrible," Miss Jackson said, "to be discriminated against because of sex. I don't see any reason why a woman can't be a member of the band if she is qualified."

Miss Jackson's last remark was that she intended to contact the District's Human Relations Commission to see what they thought about her rejection.

Asked about the situation, Redskins spokesman Joe Margolis said "Frankly, we don't want girls in our band, just in the Redskinettes. "No girls" has been our policy ever since the band has been organized, and we like it that way. We've always been able to fill out the band with men and that's the way we want to keep it."

He said however, that in additional applicants — male only — are needed, particularly musicians who play trumpet, trombone or French horn. They should apply immediately he said because auditions will be held within the next three or four weeks.

You may not see opening ball game

The Senators, who share with the Kansas City Athletics the dubious distinction of having the least lucrative contracts in major league baseball, are in doubt about television of their opening "Presidential" game.

Since the first year of baseball telecasts here, the Opening Day game has been an institution on TV. The television schedule recently released by the Nats front office did not include the April 11 tilt.

That does not mean it will not be on video, however. The front office said Monday that the decision hinges on whether or not the regular season opener at D.C. Stadium is a sellout. If all seats are sold, the game will be televised, but at the expense of one of the other 35 telecasts. None is with tre California Angeles.

Washington's broadcasting of 10 exhibitions and 35 regulers at $300,000 plus another $300,000 from the national TV package, is a far cry from the top clubs.

The New York York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers will receive $1 million each from the national deal and more for their own games.

Of the 35 local broadcasts, 11 will be home games and the rest away. None of the exhibitions on video will originate at D.C. Stadium. Dan Daniels and John McLean will be the commentators for the sixth season.
