Stennis keeps sharp eye on Miss. headstart unit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Stennis, D. - Miss., Wednesday said he had asked the Senate Appropriations Committee to keep a Mississippi Headstart Group under budgetary "surveillance" to see that its new $5.6 million federal grant is spent properly.

Stennis said his target was the Child Development Group of Mississippi. He said the group has received the new grant although its expenditures had been questioned in the past.

The Senate Appropriations Committee last year conducted hearings at which the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) admitted expenditures of over $500,000 had been questioned, Stennis said.

The organization, operated from headquarters at Mt. Beulah under a grant by the OEO to the Mary Holmes Junior College at West Point, is still under the same management as last year, Stennis said.

It is now being financed by the OEO to operate Headstart Programs in 20 Mississippi counties, he said.

Stennis said he asked Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Carl Hayden, D.-Ariz., to have the General Accounting Office make a complete check of the group's 1965 operations and also asked that the committee keep the group "under surveillance through periodic checks."

STENNIS SAID he had asked OEO Director Sargent Shriver to reconsider the renewed financing of the group and to approve other Mississippi groups.

"I cannot accept the reasons or rationale which you have submitted to support the additional grant of $5.6 million to the Child Development Group," Stennis wrote Shriver.

The OEO has delayed approval of community action programs of "local responsible individuals and organizations while at the same time applications of irresponsible and undesirable individuals and organizations have been approved with the utmost speed and dispatch," Stennis said.

The senator outlined his misgivings about the Child Development Group of Mississippi in a letter to Hayden.

tion of public convenience and accommodation.

Its sponsors are Marvin Mandel (D-5th D. Balto.), Speaker of the House, and Del. Murray Abramson (D. 4th D Balto.).

MR. MANDEL told the AFRO Wednesday:

"I just introduced the bill at the request of some alcoholic beverage groups. Any action on it is now up to them. I have no particular interest in the bill.

"It's done all the time. Any group has a right to request the introduction of a bill."

Mr. Mandel said he could not recall the name of the group.

Mr. Abramson explaining that Mr. Mandel quite often put his name on such requested bills, said he had not seen it until it was shown him Wednesday by a newsman

THE LANGUAGE of the bill, as it now stands could open up any now protected area to the relocation of a displaced alcoholic beverage dispensing establishment.

Already, protests from Baltimore community organizations have reached the AFRO.

The controversial provisions of the bill reads thusly:

"That where the transfer of location is applied for as a result of the exercise of the power of eminent domain by any government agency, such transfer of location shall be heard without regard to any restrictive, closed areas or quota formulas applicable to the granting of a new license or transfers;

"And that any protest shall only apply to the determination of public convenience and accommodation, and said transfer shall be refused only upon the finding by the Board of Liquor License Commissioners for Baltimore City or any county that the granting of the transfer of location is not necessary for the accommodation of the public."

This means, that where there is a large closed area without a liquor outlet, a board could rule under provisions of HB 1095, that such an outlet is necessary for the accommodation of the public in the case of a displaced establishment day, had to be called off under the terms of the injunction issued by Judge Harris, according to Mrs. Sarah J. Bundy, president of the Council.

"We thought we would go to court and get this matter cleared up," Mrs. Bundy said. She hopes the case will be a test of "injunctions which prevent protest."

Mrs. Molofsky won the license after a decision by Judge James K. Cullen overturned the Liquor Board's previous denial of the license on the basis of protests from a majority of Cherry Hill residents.

Appeal of Judge Cullen's decision is presently pending before the Maryland Court of Appeals.

checks were okayed by the bank. This didn't occur, he said, until S:'''day.

"I am not a bank," he said. "If I am going to cash checks for such big amounts, I have to wait until they are cleared."

HE SAID he had in recent months lost $1,000 cashing bad checks or stolen welfare or other government checks.

"I am one of his best friends," the grocer said of Mr. Turner. "I treat him like a brother. If there is something I have done that is not correct, they can go to the law."

He accused Mrs. Eason of "just stirring up trouble."

ASKED WHETHER, after the discrepancy was discovered he had offered to give Mr. Turner part of the money in cash and the rest in credit for merchandise, Mr. Rozencwal explained he had recently been robbed and so preferred not to give all cash.

Mr. Turner also complained that Mr. Rozencwal had visited him about two weeks after the checks were cashed, but said nothing about the rest of the money.

"Why should I have said anything?" the grocer asked. "I assumed he knew I was waiting to have the checks cleared."

Whatever the circumstances surrounding the delay in payment, Mr. Turner has his money in the bank, and Mr. Rozencwal is still cashing checks for people in the area.

"They are my neighbors, and it makes them shop here," the food store owner said. "That is my business."

include a welfare survey to see if all eligible persons and getting full benefits.

Other areas, Mr. Eberhardt said, might be community organization, rent strikes, education, housing or organization of unorganized workers and of the unemployed.

MR. EBERHARDT emphasized that no final decision had yet been taken on Baltimore's "target city" designation, although it was likely the project would go through.

Before the final announcement was made, he said, it would be necessary to "thrash out" such problems as what projects the national office might have in mind and what it might require of the local chapter, as well as what requirements the local chapter might set up if the national project is to come in.

This will be the first summer national CORE with its designating "target areas" as such. Chicago and the Watts area in Los Angeles were also under consideration for intensive projects, Mr. Eberhardt said.

Both were rushed to Lutheran Hospital by Municipal ambulance, but were pronounced dead a short time later.

CHARGED WITH reckless driving as a result of the deaths is David L. Kirland, 31, 3000 block Harlem Ave. He was released pending a hearing to be set by the State's Attorney, police said.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hilton (Cleo), parents of Walter, said their son and his friend were enroute home from the Alexander Hamilton School No. 146, Poplar Grove between Lafayette and Lanvale St.

Another Hilton son, Willie, 7, was also walking with the two, they said.

Other than what bits of information they can get from young Willie and other children, Mr. Hilton reported, they have no knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the death of one of their six children.

Others are Tiny, 13; Cleo, 11; Willie, 10; Janette, 6 and Sandy, 4.

Funeral services for the second grader were incomplete at press time.

RODNEY, ONE of seven children, also a second grader, was being cared for by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Smith, as are the others, according to Mrs. Smith.

Their mother and father are estranged, she said, and the child's mother is confined to University Hospital with emotional illness.

Rodney, his grandmother said reporters, was his friend Walter "were devoted to each other. They were the happiest children in the world," she added ruefully.

Mrs. Smith, who was also told of the tragedy by her grandson's classmates doesn't know the nature of events leading to the deaths.

Rodney is also survived by a twin sister, Roslyn, who would have been with the victim if she had not had a cold, Mrs. Smith reported.

"Since it was raining," the grandmother said, "I told her to have lunch in school. I didn't want her cold to get worse."

Other Hatfield children are:

Carl, 23; Leon, 10; Ken neth, 9; Gary, 8; plus two others in foster homes, Mrs. Smith said.

Funeral services for Rodney are tentatively set for noon Monday at the Hayes Funeral Home, 628 N. Gilmor St. Burial will be in Mt. Auburn.

"I just can't understand it," is the way Mrs. Smith capsuled the feeling which blanketed the 2900 block Winchester St.

On Friday morning the school principal, George R. Simms, and the children's second grade teacher, Miss Helen Jackson, visited the families of the two children.

Mr. Simms told the AFRO the faculty and pupils were preparing to send cards and floral designs.

He said, "We feel keenly about it here at 145. Miss Jackson was greatly impressed by the two children in class. I hope we can do something to help in this sadness."

election year would have disastrous results.

had these comments on the bill Thursday:

These city law members

Senator Verda F. Welcome "This bill is one of those sneak bills with no good design nor intent. It is directed directly at colored voters.

"It is impossible to get all those voters who have registered in the past few years back on the books in so short a time, before the coming elections.

"I think Jack Pollack is behind it. Of course, I intend to do all possible to defeat it, should it reach the Senate."

DEL. HARVEY A. EPSTEIN (D-4th D) —"I think it is inspired by the Pollack forces and designed to knock colored voters off the books. It's an outrage and a disgrace.

"It's an insult to the colored community leaders who worked so hard to get new voters on the books."

Del. Frank J. McCourt (who is a Second District colleague of the Re - registration Bills sponsors) —"(Registration Bill's sponsors) — "I am against it. Obviously it is aimed at getting the less educated people off the books and some colored who have been hard to get registered."

Del. Maxwell E. Albert — (D-4th) (a member of the Pollack forces) — "I have no feelings one way or another about the bill. As a matter of principle, I am for a general registration."

He said he had gotten indications already that there are sufficient votes in the delegation to bring the bill to the House floor with a favorable report.

SHOULD THIS occur, the bill would undoubtedly be on its way to sure passage.

It is purely a local measure, and other political subdivisions in representatives would be prone to vote with a majority of the Baltimore House delegation.

As for the Senate, four of Baltimore's six senators are certain to favor the bill. They did so a year ago with a similar bill that was killed in the House.

Mr. Abramson, AFRO readers will recall, killed that one in the waning hours of that Assembly session, by getting a reconsideration on its passage vote and a referral to his delegation.

Then, he simply kept the thing locked in his brief case until adjournment, though under pressure from some city representatives in both chambers to bring it to the floor for a final vote.

IF THE bill is forced to the floor, only the parliamentary procedure of amendments and moves to have it laid over for a day are likely to delay its forward movement.

The Assembly has but three more working days before the official Tuesday adjournment, but a bill under pressure can be moved to passage in this time.

Passage of this bill would mean, many concerned observers feel, much of the work of the NAACP's and other cooperative organizations' register to vote campaigns — campaigns that were costly in time, money and effort to get new voters on the books.

Many of such observers are fearful that the high percentage of such voters not registered would be cut sharply with the new registration at this time.

They would not object, however, to a general registration after the fall elections.

Passage of the bill would bring the registration some time before the September primary, probably in late June or July.

Mr. Abramson said it would undoubtedly be amended to call for a city-wide registration at all precinct polling places.

—Senate to act

up Thursday afternoon for action on the committee's favorable report.

He moved that it be laid over under the rules until today.

Originally, the measure was designed to remove all restrictions in the sale, rental and financing of housing on a state - wide basis.

THE SENATE on Thursday also passed to third reader a congressional redistricting bill virtually the same as the one now petitioned to referendum.

This SB 250, which would give Baltimore two rather than its present three congressmen, is being bitterly fought by the city's Senators Joseph V. Mach (2nd D.) Paul A. Dorf (5th D.), Joseph A. Bertorelli (1st D.) and William L. Hodges (6th D.).

The House on Thursday finally passed the state budget, after days of delaying tactics aimed primarily at stalling action on the Cooper-Hughes bill, consideration of which had to await budget passage.

At AFRO press time Thursday night, the Senate sitting in committee as a whole was engaged in a discussion of the Cooper - Hughes bill, which would give added state financial aid to needy political subdivision primarily through an income tax hike.

The bill faces heavy opposition in both chambers, and question of the moment is will the Tawes administration exert enough pressure to get it through the Assembly in the three working days remaining before the March 29 adjournment.

IN OTHER Assembly action Thursday, these were some of the steps taken:

1. The House passed a Senate approved equal pay for equal work bill, aimed at raising the pay of women who do the same work categories as men and sponsored by Sen. Welcome (D. 4th D. Balto.).

Del. Alan M. Resnick (D., 5th D. Balto.) noted on the House floor after its passage that such a bill had been the pet project of Baltimore's late Del. Irma G. Dixon.

This SB 271, however, is a watered down version of what Sen. Welcome intended.

2. The House again put off final second reading action on the bill to build a second bay bridge parallel to the existing one, a controversy that has waged for days.

Del. Frank J. McCourt (D. 2nd D. Balto.), an avowed opponent of the Tawes backed bill, has delayed its movement with a series of unsuccessful amendments to put the bridge almost everywhere else but beside the present one.

3. THE HOUSE also killed a bill which would have forced any future housing legislation enacted by the Baltimore County Council to referendum.

As a proposed Constitutional amendment, the measure needed 85 votes for House approval. It was killed by lack of three votes, with 82 delegates favoring.

4. Del Clarence M. Mitchell Jr. (D. 4th D. Balto.) asking that the House urge Baltimore's Board of School Commissioners to transfer students from the Granville T. Woods Junior - Senior Vocational School No. 452, Biddle and McCulloh Sts., because of its deplorable condition.

The resolution stated, among other things, that the school has only one shower and toilet facility for 250 girls, the boys must go some distance to the Richmond Market Armory for physical education classes, and three classrooms are so shaped some students cannot see either the blackboard or their instructor.

orange varsity "D" from the rifle team the day before.

At 8:30 a.m. at the corner of Bentalou St. and Clifton Ave., police said, two unidentified youths approached Young from behind and struck him in mike back.

The 16 - year - old student, who lives at 1905 Kennedy Ave., said he knew of no reason for the unprovoked attack and did not recognize his assailants, who fled south on Bentalou and disappeared.

Shortly later he lay in fair condition at lutheran Hospital, where he was taken by ambulance from the dispensary of Douglass, and had only an extended stay in the hospital to look forward to.

Neither of the two friends walking with Young, Jesse Williams, 17, 1800 block N. Dallas St., or Latour Wilson, 17, 1500 block N. Milton St., were able to add any information about the attack or identify the assailants.

Police said that one of the assailants yelled, "Thats the one," before they struck, but were at a loss for a motive for the attack.

Young did not immediately know he had been stabbed. After closer examination at the school dispensary, the fact was discovered and an ambulance called for.

Police said the weapon used in the stabbing could have been a hunting knife. Northwestern District police are searching for two youths, about 17 and 18, both about five feet, nine inches tall and wearing three-quarter length black leather coats and cloth caps.

THE PRINCIPAL at Douglass, Gwynns Falls Pkwy. and Pulaski St., Mrs. Edna O. Campbell told the AFRO that Young is a model student and "a quiet boy."

She said that after the police investigation, she was "sure that the other group does not go to our school.

"If there was anything of a gang nature, we found no indications of it."

Mrs. Campbell added that the administration was "concerned" about the attack, but relieved that the assailants "were not our students."

YOUNG, THE son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Dobson, had "come home the day before so proud that he had won his school's letter," according to his mother.

Mrs. Anna Dobson also pointed to two trophies that her son had earned as a member of the rifle team.

One trophy — that of a shooter lying prone — read: "For Johnny Young, Third Highest Scorer, 1966."

"I hope they catch the boys who did it," she said. "It just doesn't make sense."

A junior at Douglass, he was looking forward to two proms, his girlfriend's and his, next month, his mother said. "We had just picked out his suit and shirts."

The youth had also been practicing the last three weeks for the school's track team and looking forward to the track season.

"I hope this doesn't keep him from running," Mrs. Dobson stated, "they had to collapse one of his lungs because of the blood."

"I'm so upset. I just hope he comes out of it all right."

Young, wants to finish his education either in college or in electronics training (—"He likes to work with radio and record players," his mother said—) has an older brother and a younger brother and sister.

NEW YORK (UPI) — All-America Dave Bing of Syracuse and Bill Melchionni of Villanova, who combined to score 122 points against St. John's this past season, have been unanimously selected to the Redmen's 1965 - 66 all-opponent team.
