Last Sunday nearly three hundred friends and neighbors crowded in the back yard of Rep. Carlton R. Sickles in Lanham, Maryland to hear him announce his candancy for the Democratic Nomination for governor.

The 44-year-old Congressman was standing at a rostrum fitted with Maryland's "Great Seal" He spoke these words: "The next State Administration will either guide the social political and scientific revolution of our age or the greatest opportunity of our century will pass us by, therefore there is only one major issue in this campaign — leadership." Many of his friends and neighbors and invited guests praised him for not drawing into an open attack on the Taws Administration. He said "I have never during my years in politics indulged in the name calling tactics that do no honor to the political dialogue and I will not depart from that attitude in 1966."

Verse of the week

Beauty — What is beauty?
Some say it is only skin deep. Ellen P. Allerton says:
"Beautiful faces are those that wear—
It matters little if dark or fair—
Whole-souled honesty printed there.
Beautiful eyes are those that show,
Like crystal panes where heart-fires glow.
Beautiful thoughts that burn below.
Beautiful lips are those whose words
Leap from the heart like songs of birds.
Yet whose utterance prudence girds.
Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest and brave and true,
Moment by moment the long day through.
Beautiful feet are those that go
On kindly ministries to and fro—
Down lowliest way, if God wills it so.
Beautiful shoulders are those that bear
Ceaseless burdens of homely care
With patient grace and daily prayer.
Beautiful lives are those that bless —
Silent rivers of happiness
Whose hidden fountains but few may guess.

Child care programs lag as welfare mothers train

Funds to create 16 new day care centers and 25 day care homes, totalling one or one and a half million dollars, were urged Tuesday by Mrs. Richard M. Lansburgh, president of the Maryland Committee for Day Care of Children, in a speech given at the Committee's annual meeting and dinner at the Sheraton Belvedere.

Mrs. Lansburgh told the group that the Baltimore City Department of Public Welfare had expanded its Work Project and Training Program under the Office of Economic Opportunity — a job training program of three months (four times a year) for 900 Baltimore women receiving aid to dependent children — from $20,000 in 1965 to over $3,000,000 in 1966.

She stated that this was "an exciting plus only if the children of these women were adequately cared for while their mothers trained or worked."

She stressed further that the kinds of jobs the women were being trained for usually do not pay enough salaries to enable the mothers to afford day care services even if they were available. Therefore, Mrs. Lansburgh concluded, either federal or local government must provide the funds to meet the critical demand.

She said that this proposal was not a criticism of the Department of Welfare, but that either the Office of Economic Opportunity or the DPW would have to make some provision for the thousands of children directly affected by the training program, if it is to be a success and not cause additional hardship and suffering.

ACLU defends DuBois Clubs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has asked a U.S. District Court to bar the Justice Department from trying to list the campus - oriented W. E. DuBois Clubs as Communist - front organizations.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Deb. Kazenbach petitioned the Subversive Activities Control Board last month to order the clubs to register. The ACLU sought the court ban Tuesday.

The department claimed the youth organizations were "created and controlled by the American Communist Party."

In its complaint, the ACLU asked the court to void on constitutional grounds the provision of the 1950 Subversive Activities Control Act.
