New soft drink firm opens today

Baltimore's first all new soft drink plant from the ground up in 18 years will officially go on stream today (Friday) when the Canada Dry - Frostie Corp. plays host to more than 800 celebrities from the worlds of commerce, government and show business.

The company bottles Canada Dry, Frostie, Dr. Pepper and Tru - Ade beverages.

Jointly wielding the traditional ribbon - cutting scissors will be Senator Daniel B. Brewster, Roy W. Moore Jr., president of the Canada Dry Corp; Wesby R. Parker, chairman of the board of the Dr. Pepper Co.; Joseph E. Carroll, president of the Frostie Corp., and Lee C. Ward, president of the Tru-Ade Corp.

With company sales showing a 25 per cent spurt over the past three years, Herbert Wagner, president of the Canada Dry - Frostie Corp., views the new half million dollar plant as an "opportunity to provide the best in convenience packaging for the sophisticated Baltimore market.

"One of the top soft drink markets in the nation, Baltimoreans individually drink 292 soft drinks a year compared to 207 for the U.S. as a whole."

"With the new productive capacity double that of the prior facility — 220 bottles a minute or 4300 cases a day — and a 100 per cent increase in sales personnel in the past 18 months, Canada Dry - Frostie Corp. will be a stronger contender to meet this burgeoning Baltimore market."

• • •

FIELDING a sales and promotion team spearheaded by Dominic Conoscenti, sales manager, and Baltimore Colts stars, Ordell Braase, merchandising manager, and Dick Szymanski, assistant merchandising manager the fully automated plant will serve more than 2,000,000 consumers in Metropolitan Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Harford and Frederick counties plus other outlying areas.

A unique feature of the new facility is a "lift-off" concept for temporary removal of walls so that floor area can be enlarged at will as operations continue to expand.

Food prices down but the bill's the same

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Those pork chop prices that housewives are complaining about should come down a bit later this year. And so should the cost of other foods.

But if a meal costs less to prepare next fall than it does this spring, it still may be more expensive than last year.

• • •

THIS, AT any rate, is the prediction being made by government experts. Agriculture secretary Orville L. Freeman has said average farm prices of food products will drop 6 to 10 percent by the end of the year.

Wilm Finner, a staff economist at the Agriculture Department, predicted that the prices consumers will pay at the stores will go down too "but nothing of the magnitude of 6-10 percent."

Arnold E. Chase, assistant commissioner of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, agreed there would be some reductions in grocery price tags the last three months of the year. But even then, he said, retail prices may be 2.5 percent to 3 percent above a year earlier.

The reasons are many.

FOR ONE thing, farm prices and food prices are not the same. Farm prices are those a farmer receives for his raw product. Food prices are those paid by the consumer at the retail counter. In between is the middle man.

Fluctuations in one group are not necessarily reflected immediately in the other and sometimes not at all. But there is a relation. When farm prices advance rapidly and sharply, there usually is a considerable lag before a reflection is made in food prices.

Similarly, when farm prices go down quickly, there is a considerable lag before the consumer gets the benefit.

• • •

BY THE end of the year, Freeman said, farm prices would be materially lower on a number of major commodities. He predicted these declines: poultry and eggs, 15-20 percent; vegetables, 20-25 percent; potatoes, 10 percent; meat animals, 8 percent; fruit, down slightly; dry beans, 20 percent.

Food prices, of course, are something else.

Freeman has said that "if the food industry will respond quickly to lower farm prices, retail prices to consumers will diminish. This requires responsible action by the management of our food marketing firms, for without such action lower farm prices will simply mean larger profit margins for the marketing firms — with no benefit accruing to the consumer."

MUCH OF the cost of food depends on marketing charges necessary for its preparation from the raw state in which it leaves the farm to its final destination off the retail counter toward the dinner table. These marketing charges generally are called the take of the middleman. There are a lot of them, and they add up to a whopping bill.

The Agriculture Department said one reason for the big food bill was that U.S. consumers dined out more, and that much of the price they paid for meals in restaurants was for preparation and service.

THE MARKETING bill covers much. For example: wages of food company employes, which are likely to increase in 1966; transporta-

New Johnson bill strikes at heart of bias, NAACP says

NEW YORK — President Johnson's new civil rights message to Congress and his legislative proposals "emphasize that, despite beginnings toward removal of some discrimination, much remains to be done," said Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP this week.

Tightening legal procedures to assure punishment of terrorists who inflict violence upon civil rights workers is the vital core of the President's proposals. "Shoring up the system of jury selection against racial discrimination is a crying need.

"The small's pace of school desegregation and the damage that inadequate schooling is doing to colored and white children each school term makes mandatory the broadening of the Attorney General's authority.

"The President's proposal to ban racial discrimination in all housing is bold and challenging. It poses a real test to those persons who ardently support anti - discrimination in distant places 'but not next door.'"

What is A Mother?

To her family, she's special.
She's understanding,
a banquet chef, a short order cook,
a fountain of love, a chauffeur warmth and security.
She's clean socks, starched dresses,
a mender of hurts.
She's scrubbed ears,
a tender nurse, a maid, a queen
She deserves a day of honor and tribute.
She deserves the love of those she loves.

Yes, she's very, very special.
This Sunday, you'll tell your mother
how much you care.
We'd like to tell all mothers, "We Care, too."
