Boone offers Proctor items

During the annual AFRO - AMERICAN Home Show in Baltimore, Boone's Furniture and Appliance Store will provide as prizes three Citation mobile appliances manufactured by Proctor Silex.

They are: one four - slice toaster, one steam - dry iron and one electric, automatic juicet. There will be a prize for each show session.

Boone to show new appliances

The Boone Appliance Co., 2955 Brighton St. will put on an RCA Whirlpool stage, a separate booth for the Proctor - Silex Co. and another booth featuring the Hoover Co. at the AFRO's 36th Annual Cooking School May 11-12.

The Hoover Co. has announced two brand new items that AFRO readers may look for soon at the Boone Appliance and Furniture Co.

HOOVER WILL sport a new lightweight vac that converts to a portable unit for above-the-floor cleaning. At the same time, Hoover is offering a sawed-off version as a portable (hand) vac. The new lightweight, the Hoover Handivac, replaces the current Lark. The new portable will be known as the Pixie, the same name that Hoover has been using on a hand vac with a metal nozzle and a cloth bag.

Hoover also is marketing an electric blanket, marking the vacuum cleaner manufacturer's entry into still another electric housewares product category. The blanket is available in three colors (Tawny beige, Mediterranean blue, and autumn gold) and three sizes (twin, double and "large double"). Retail price range is $21.95 to $29.95.

Mr., Mrs. Williams observe anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymond Williams marked their Golden Wedding Anniversary, Saturday, at a reception given by their children in the Forest Manor.

With a youthfulness belying her years, Mrs. Williams was resplendently attractive in a jacket dress of gold brocade, with gold slippers, white kid gloves and an orchid corsage.

IN THE receiving line with the couple were Mrs. Irvington Williams, Mrs. James Williams, Mrs. Arthur Wilson and Mrs. George Grant.

Mrs. Williams, the former Marie Williams of Greenville, S.C., and Mr. Williams were married in this city on April 30, 1916, several years after having met at a dance in Towson, where Mr. Williams was born. For the past 27 years they have resided at 554 Presstman St.

Mr. Williams is engaged in the home repair business. Both are members of Ames Methodist Church.

SAID THE happy couple the secret of a happy marriage is understanding one another. Mr. Williams pays tribute to his wife for her sweet and calm disposition.

"Even if I 'popped off' she never did," he stated. He added that the first 25 years of marriage were hard, the last 25 years, good ... but that they always worked together for the good of the family.

A whole side of the hall was lined with tables loaded with gifts and flowers for the couple. At the far end was a table bearing a four-tiered cake. The over - all color scheme was green.

MR. AND MRS. Williams are parents of seven children: Mesdames Julia W. Wilson and Twilah Grant; Irvington, Thomas and James Williams, of this city; Jack Williams of Detroit, and Ralph Williams of Philadelphia.

The Williamses' grandchildren present at the reception were Marsha, Dwight, Jackie, Kathie, Valerie, Donita, Timothy, Stephanie, Lenora, Janet, Fortune, Lynda Tanya and Lorie Williams; and Arthur and Janet Wilson.

HOSTESSES for the evening were members of the Friday Nighters, a club of which Mrs. Grant is a member. They included Mesdames Bertha May, Flora Johnson, Lorene Murphy, Minnie Washington and Jean Frazier.

Dinner for the family and out - of - town guests was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Grant of Dolfield Ave., son - in - law and daughter of the couple.

OUT - OF - TOWN guests included:

Morgan festival speaker tells of artist alienation

By MARY RICHARDSON

Alan Morrison, New York editor for Ebony Magazine and a member of the panel of international jazz critics for Downbeat Magazine, spoke of personal reminiscences of three jazz greats at a dinner - lecture during the Morgan College Arts Festival recently.

"Charlie Parker was like a man who had gotten along on basic English most of his life then suddenly swallowed a dictionary and was able to digest every word," Mr. Morrison said.

The saxophonist, also called "Yardbird," started his career in the Savoy Ballroom in Harlem.

Addicted to heroin since he was 15, Charlie Parker was called a "genius who brought about a complete change for the jazz sax," by Mr. Morrison.

"Yardbird" Parker died in 1955 in New York City before he was 35. His death is still considered an enigma.

LESTER YOUNG, the second of Mr. Morrison's "greats" died in 1959 "because he didn't want to live anymore."

He was given the nickname "president of jazz" by Billy Holliday and was considered the high priest of jazz modernists during his life.

An experience in an army stockade in Alabama is credited with the cynical turn of Lester Young's later works. He brought new recognition for the tenor sax.

Billy Holliday, known as "The Lady," had her best period of singing in the mid-1930's, according to Mr. Morrison.

She is called "one of the major jazz singers of our years," by the speaker.

After death signaled for Mr. Morrison the "alienation of the artist by society."

THE PROGRAM was organized by Mrs. Jean Turpin of the English Department with the festival under the joint - sponsorship of the departments of humanities and social sciences. Dr. Harry Jones was toastmaster.

Other dais guests included: Dean Albert N. Whiting, Mrs. Martin D. Jenkins, Dr. Jones, Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, MSC president, and Paul Keene, artist currently on exhibition in the Murphy Fine Arts Center.

At first glance, Esskay Hot Dogs look much like any other hot dog. But, there is a remarkable difference. Esskay Hot Dogs are noticeably superior in taste ... in flavor ... in texture ... and in nutrition.
Open the package and you get a whiff of real hickory smoke with a hint of delicate spices. When these franks are boiled, broiled, barbecued or grilled, that blend of hickory and spice becomes irresistible!

Cut an Esskay Hot Dog in two and see the vast difference inside. The meat is lean and firm. There's never a trace of gristle or fillers. That's because Esskay uses only the finest pure beef, pure pork, and pure spices. If you served your family prime sirloin steak, the meat proteins would not be a bit more nutritious.
Always buy Esskay Hot Dogs ... the franks that are made up to a standard—not down to a price.
