missioner Ball's wonderful policies" are carried out.

MRS. JUANITA JACKSON MITCHELL, president of the state NAACP conference, repeatedly praised the fair employment policies outlined by Commissioner Ball but added that there is a lag between preachment and practice.

There also is a lag between progress being made in Baltimore and that across the country.

Hill said there are only 4 non-white managers or district managers out of a total of 724.

In the Baltimore area, the NAACP reported, non-white workers are 26 per cent, 2,614 out of 11,000 (up 600 since 1963) while they represent just 8 per cent outside of the sector.

Additionally, the vast majority of these are in low paying positions, the NAACP complained.

Looking at progress made since 1963 when protests of the agency, supervisory workers have climed from 45 to 72 and secretaries from 27 to 71. There are 557 white supervisors.

The percentage show that white men have gotten 86 percent of the supervisory and Security force, and 94 percent are in the supervisory categories.

THE NAACP gave this placement breakdown for the non-white workers:

GS-4, 317; GS-3, 712; GS-4, 611; GS-5, 415; GS-6, 95; GS-7, 111; GS-8, 16; GS-9, 33; GS-10, 27; GS-11, 2; GS-12, 41; GS-13, 15; and GS-14, 3. In the latter category there are 120 whites.

The committee of 18 participating in the session included O'neal Roger, chairman, and Leon Gilmore, vice chairman. Max Carlie Campbell is secretary.

Another meeting will be requested soon to determine progress in the development of a staff structure to implement fair employment practices.

Old Taylor Presents: Ingenious Americans

Jan Matzeliger (1852-1889)

His invention made Lynn, Mass., the shoe capital of the world

When Jan Matzeliger first went to work in a Lynn, Massachusetts, shoe factory, he was surprised to learn that just one shoe took hours to complete.

He discovered the reason for this was the laborious process by which hand lasters painstakingly pleated the leather and fitted uppers to soles.

Matzeliger couldn't believe that in the year 1877 a way couldn't be found to do the lasting job by machine. And so, on his own time, he began to experiment with ideas on how this might be done.

He starved out by renting a room over the old West Lynn Mission. There, using scraps of wood, old cigar boxes and improvised tools, he fashioned models of his idea. Finally, when he felt that he was on the right track, he used an old forge to mold the gears and cams that went into his working model.

His invention was an immediate success. Its adoption created thousands of new jobs for an operation that had been limited to a few craftsmen. Shoe prices were cut in half, and wages doubled. Within a short time, exports jumped from 1,000,000 to 11,000,000 pair a year. And Lynn, Massachusetts, had become the world's largest shoe manufacturing center. All because Jan Ernst Matzeliger had invented the first lasting machine.

Space center sets first 'open house'

Goddard Space Flight Center is having a public open house for the first time this Saturday, May 21 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Visitors will be able to see actual satellites being constructed, watch computer communications, and tracking facilities in operation.

Exhibits of full-scale mercury Gemini rockets at the 1,600 acre Center will provide a learning experience in how 3000 employees handle 400 million dollars in space exploration annually.

At the same time, aircrafts which play a part in the Center's work will be on exhibit at the Bendix Terminal of Friendship Airport.

Goddard is located in Greenbelt, and can be reached from the Baltimore-Washington Expressway and Greenbelt — going east 1½ miles on Greenbelt.

Cameras are allowed. And large groups of children should be accompanied by an adult.

In case of rain, the open house will be postponed until the following Saturday, May 28.

'Foot-dragging' charged by CORE in banks hiring

CORE officials have again expressed their dissatisfaction with the integration ratio situation in employment in local commercial banks.

In doing so, they took issue with a report recently of such employment by Samuel T. Daniels, executive director, Community Relations Commission, which termed the progress "reasonably good."

PVT. JOSEPH S. DUKES, 733 N. Fulton Ave., recently completed training at Southeastern Signal Corps School at Ft. Gordon, Ga. Now stationed at Ft. Gordon, Pvt. Dukes is 1964 graduate of Douglass High School. He entered the Army in October, 1965.

John Burleigh, CORE employment chairman, charged Wednesday "evidence still indicates foot-dragging in general hiring practices."

In a letter to Mr. Daniels, he stated, among other things:

"It is our opinion, based on the experience of the commercial banks, that much more remains to be done to make equal opportunity in banking a reality.

"SINCE OUTSIDE recruitment has failed to produce meaningful results, the banks as other leading employers throughout the nation have done, should initiate other programs in addition to outside recruitment to reach qualifiable employes."

Mr. Burleigh suggested the training and upgrading of present employes, regardless of race.

"We want to make it very clear that the foot-dragging of the banks is typical of the type of inaction that has spurred CORE to mount an all out attack on segregation in Baltimore," Mr. Burleigh stated.

Humphrey says school program can not fail

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Vice President Humphrey, speaking to 2,000 PTA delegates here Tuesday at the Civic Center, said the government is determined to give all children opportunity to learn and fully develop.

He emphasized, "That is why we are seeking to open all the doors closed against those of the wrong skin color, religion or last name.

"That is why our economic policies are geared to vigorous, sustained economic growth, to the creation of steadily expanding opportunities for employment and promotion.

"That is why we have launched the war against poverty and are determined to press it forward to ultimate victory."

THE VICE - PRESIDENT then disclosed to tre group that the 12 million members, that there are educational funds available that are not being used.

Asking them to help make plans so that the schools can benefit, he said, "We can not afford the waste of a single American child."

Citing an example of what U.S. education dollars have done, he gave the example of a Harlem school that has an ultra modern playground and a teacher-student ratio of one to eight.

He quoted the principal as saying "At last we have all of everything we needed and wanted."

A nearby junior high school the Vice President said, is now kept open after hours for formerly "disinterested pupils' who have since read over 40,000 books in five months.

Announcing the government's intention to fully complete its dream of education, he said, "No depression, no breadlines, no windfarms will grind American dreams to dust."

THE AIR FORCE Singing Sergeants profided music prior to the Vice President's talk.

Among those accompanying the ASAF band from Bolling Field in Washington were Staff Sgt. Nathaniel Lee, 4121 Fairview Ave., Baltimore. The husband of Mrs. Alice Lee, the career Air Force man has completed 19 years service and will retire next year.

Also present was Airman 2 Knolly Williams, a Trinidad, WI native, a member of the band, stationed at Bolling Field.

The PTA members assembled since Monday, ended their sessions on Wednesday.

3 SS employees win awards for special service

Cash awards of $50 were recently presented to three Social Security employees for special service performed as tour guides at the Social Security Building.

The award recipients are: Mesdames Annabelle Lynch, Marge Green, Bureau of Data Processing and Accounts, and John Eyre, Bureau of Disability Insurance.

They are members of a part-time visitor service staff of 75-100 volunteers drawn from [illegible] at the agency's Woodlawn headquarters.

One hour guided tours of the building are scheduled Monday through Friday at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. For group tours call: 944-5000, Ex. 2984.
