MRS. ROSA PARKS BISHOP GEORGE W. BABER MISS VIVIAN MALONE

2 who made rights history visit AME annual meeting

Mrs. Rosa Parks and Miss Vivian Malone, two women whose names are indelibly etched in the history of the civil rights movement, appeared in a "Salute to History" pageant Tuesday night at the opening of the Baltimore-Washington Annual Conferences of the AME Church.

Some 900 persons packed the Bethel AME Church, Druid Hill Ave. and Lanvale St. for the production, which marked the church's 150th anniversary.

Mrs. Parks, 53, was the woman who sparked the Montgomery, Ala. bus boycott in 1955, in which the Rev. Martin Luther King first rose to prominence, when she refused to give up her bus seat to a white man.

Miss Malone was the first colored student to enter the University of Alabama when Gov. George Wallace made his famous "school-house door" stand against intergration in 1963.

MISS MALONE, who graduated from the University last June and is now working as an employee-management relations specialist for the Veterans Administration in Washington, said she felt her stay at the school in Tuscaloosa was "worthwhile."

"It was pretty rough during the first year. At times it was difficult, and I lacked a number of things. The social life was not what I call great, she said as a memorable understatement.

"There was always a feeling of not being accepted," she added, "but these were things I had expected, so it was not totally new."

* * *

TALL, PRETTY, and with a quiet, modest air, Miss Malone said she suffered no one "traumatic experience' while at the school.

"It was a series of small things which could be aggravating," she recalled.

In her second year, when she was a senior, she said, her classmates had become "more broad-minded."

"Some of the people who had shunned me at first were pals by the time of commencement, and people didn't stop or stare at me any more like I was some kind of animal."

A MAJOR in industrial relations who had previously attended Alabama A and M for two years, she said the professors and the instruction were "wonderful."

Asked if she would do it cally: "I sure would."

She said the recent vote in Alabama was an indication of how far the civil rights movement had come since she entered the University.

"They didn't defeat Wallace, but the important fact is that there were all those colored people going out to vote in little places where they never would have had a chance to vote before."

MRS. PARKS, who is now working as a recpetionist in the Detroit office of Congressman John Conyers (D.-Mich.) also spoke of the civil rights movement.

"It has certainly undergone a great change since 1955. People have become involved and vocally concerned about freedom.

"But," she added, "until we all have equality and first-class citizenship, we still have a long way to go."

The two women, both AME members, made the trip to Baltimore especially for the conference.

Also to have appeared was the former Mrs. Gloria Richardson, who directed the civil rights struggles in Cambridge, several years ago, but she was detained in New York, where she is now living as the wife of a free-lance photographer.

Blames busman for train collision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) said Monday, the driver of a bus caused an accident in which 20 farm laborers were killed when the bus was struck by a train at Sterling, Fla., Feb. 1, 1966.

An ICC accident investigation report said the driver, Manuel Padilla Marando, 49, "was evidently unaware of the proximity of the train when he drove his bus onto the crossing." It said he entered the crossing "without exercising due caution."

Tuberculosis Assoc. elects

The Rev Maurice D. Ashbury, of Frederick, has been re-elected as president of the board of directors of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

Dr. Phillip Whittlesey and Dr. Lillian B. Davis were elected president and vice president of the voluntary tuberculosis association.

An executive committee of 15, representing all sections of Maryland was chosen, including Wilbert Walker, representing the Fifth Congressional District.

Okay $69,759 poverty spending

The City Board of Estimates Wednesday authorized five Community Action Centers for the new West Baltimore poverty action area and five more for the East Baltimore area, which would bring the total there to 15.

The Board authorized a maximum of $8,500 a year for the West Baltifore centers and $4,250 a year for the East Baltimore centers.

The Board also approved the expenditure of $57,000 for the poverty program's Project ENABLE, which is designed to provide parent education through discussion groups in the areas of child care, education, recreation and household management.

It will be operated jointly by the Baltimore Urban League, the Family and Children's Society, and the Jewish Family and Children's Service.

Wilbert Johnson

Wilbert O. Johnson, 46, 1222 North Ave., died Thursday at Veterans Administration Hospital.

He was ill for 9 months.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at the Elroy O. Wilson Funeral Home.

Burial was in Baltimore National Cemetery.

Mr. Johnson was a World War II veteran.

He was employed at the Paul Schnitzer Tire Co. for 13 years, and was a member of Little Ark Baptist Church.

He was also a member of Baltimore Elks, Lodge No. 1043.

Mr. Johnson was born in Baltimore.

He was the son of the late Oscar Johnson and Mrs. Maud Johnson, who survives.

* * *

IN ADDITION to his mother, Mr. Johnson is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillian Johnson; a son, Tyrone Johnson; and four daughters Misses Delores and Debra Johnson and Mrs. Brenda Carter and Mrs. Yvonne Butler, all of Baltimore.

Three sisters, Mrs. Ethel Walker, Mrs. Loretta Watty and Mrs. Edna Williamson, and eight grandchildren, all of Baltimore, also survive.

Draft beer lives on in a can.
The usual place where draft beer-drinking souls gather is around the tap. But Carling has found a way to can draft beer in 16-ounce ring tab cans. (We also canned it in Twist-Cap™ quart bottles.)
It needs no refrigeration. Carling Black Label draft beer can live anywhere.
