Octogenarian Mrs. Dorsey is 'young at 80 years'

With Lula Jones Garrett

Mrs. Louise Dorsey figures she has dispelled the bugaboo of age.

Youthful looking, unlined of face and full of bounce, Mrs. Dorsey says that her fountain of youth is love.

She has never allowed evil thoughts or dislike of others to "pickle" her she says.

She doesn't even listen to disparaging remarks made about persons. "If you could hear the other side, you'd probably find that the accuser has the wrong idea," Mrs. Dorsey added.

On Wednesday evening, surrounded by kin by the dozens and friends by the scores, she reigned at a birthday party given by her son, James T. Dorsey, in the Masonic Temple. 'Twas her 80th natal day.

Relatives and friends plied her with gifts, among which was an apron made of dollar bills.

I SUPPOSE it was the fact that Rachel (Mrs. Jackie) Robinson wore such a luscious pink chiffon and feathered dress at the Safari Ball in New York, Friday night (It was a Sarmi original);

Or that this town's Mrs. Herbert Brown has been named to a national best-dressed list, that the matter of clothes lingers in my mind.

Or I just could have got to thinking it over because a reader called to inquire how one gets on a best-dressed list. I gave the inquirer comforting information, since it is not one of the most impossible achievements.

Or maybe it was the memory of the clothes shown on Sunday, when the Schaefer Show of Stars performed for the Provident Hospital Auxiliary, in the Civic Center.

Of course, better judgement would prevent me from donning a mink bikini, knowing my figure limitations, but I'd accept that floor-length black and white mink wrap shown, and feel qualified to run for the title.

And there was a harem pants gown in magnificent silk that would make a ward/robe eligible; and a cold evening gown slit right up to the waistline, under which were worn jewel embossed waist-length hose, that I wouldn't dare wear, but only because I do not have the legs of the model who showed it;

Or I could get nearer home and mention the pale sheer wool, ruffled from bustin etochebin mtacrtitae bustline to hem that Beatrice Wright wore to the Moles' Ball in Richmond, Va. Friday night; or the all iridescent sequin that Lottie Masse (she's the former Lottie Johnson of this town) of Detroit, chose for the same affair;

Then I could go back a night or two and recall Alice Arrington of New York so elegantly cool in pale peach lace as she spoke at the DuBois Circle's annual dinner, here. . . . and add that Dr. Reginal Goff (she's the wife of Dr. Josiah Henry, attorney, and an assistant director in the Department of Education, Health and Welfare, Washington) is laying on some clothes, these days. That chalk beaded knit in which she spoke for the Philomathians, here, recently, was by no means a mean little number.

Yes, I sort of got to thinking about clothes this week.

WHAT I should be thinking about is all of those affairs looming on the horizon.

On Saturday afternoon, the fraternal aggregation will be paying tribute to Mr. and Mrs. William Arthur Jones at a reception which will be given by Mrs. Elsie Moody Key and Mrs. Catherine Jones Royston.

The reception had been set for the W. Lafayette home, but when the count went down there were too many friends and associates for any home to accommodate. So the party has been switched to Grace Presbyterian Auditorium.

On Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. William Lee Morton will have a reception for their daughter, Adriene Maria, in the Elegante Room. Miss Morton was presented in April at the Me-De-So Cotillion.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel A. Carrington will honor their daughter, Patricia Annette on June 5. Miss Carrington is also a current debutante, having been presented at the April Ball.

And the Arena Players Awards Presentation will take place at Eastwind on Sunday afternoon. The format is dinner, a celebrity show and dancing.

The wedding of Miss Sylvia Vivian Hamlett (she's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beatrice Hamlett) and Kenneth Howard Law will take place in Mt. Ararat Baptist Church on June 11th.

And the faculty of the Fairmount Hill School will be hosts at a testimonial dinner in honor of two of its members, Mrs. Catherine Adams and Mrs. Velma Dunn, who are leaving these posts at the end of the school year.

The dinner will be held at the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel.

The same hotel (on the 12th) will be the setting for the testimonial honoring Dr. Herbert M. Frisby, Arctic and Polar Explorer.
