Thank-you note a social must

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bride can make a beautiful beginning by sending proper thank - you notes.

To make the bride's job easier, here are a number of suggestions on bridal thank - you notes.

FIRST, WRITE your notes as soon as gifts arrive. Those arriving too late to answer before the wedding should be acknowledged promptly on return from the wedding trip.

There is no objection to printed notes, especially when you add your own hand-written message.

• • •

SMALL, CONVENTIONAL note - size paper is preferred. White, cream or delicately hued paper is in good taste.

The only excuse for a typewritten note: that you've broken your arm, or suffer some other disability that forces you to shun the pen.

• • •

SPELL OUT street, avenue and boulevard.

"If you receive a duplicate gift," Mrs. Lee said, "don't breathe a word of it, even in conversation, as it may get back to the donor."

Make the notes to your husband's relatives especially warm and personal. These help to build future friendships with them.

If YOU Ask ME

BY BETTYE M. MOSS

People, Places and Things

At home—Serious surgery which compels one to remain at home is good for the ego—you discover that things move along without you and that after all you're not as indispensable as you thought you were.

Also, convalescence at home, gives you a deeper appreciation of the green grass, the budding trees, the sunshine and the arrival time of the mailman.

You need no clock to tell the hour of the day. The streets are quiet until school is out and then there are happy voices and you know the hour is 2:30.

Notice the next time you are compelled to stay indoors. Don't the little things you took for granted loom very big? They certainly do.

Unique get-well card in our mail this week from CORE's Walter Carter.

On the cover, an unhappy brown-skinned youngster, his dog and a basket of fruit, and the quote, 'I'm going to be a sit-in.'

Inside, 'Until You're on your feet again . . . get well soon.'

This is a Liberty Card original. Have you seen them?

• • •

More people getting well: Mrs. Florence Dennis Bailey, the school principal who had intestinal surgery at Sinai (Room 344B), is up and about her room.

She says: 'You're right surgery like this brings you closer to God.'

Glad-you're better cards to Provident Hospital for Mrs. Richard Washington (Elizabeth). She's in Room 218.

On the mend: Mrs. Lillian Reid, the school art specialist. She's out of Lutheran Hospital and recuperating at home where you and you have surrounded her with get well cards and flowers. Her address: 2550 Arunah Ave.

Also on the mend: Mrs. Mary Thomas, another of our town's senior citizens. She's recuperating at the Alto Rd. home of her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Williams, mother of the AFRO's Jimmy Williams.

Thinking-of-you cards to Mrs. Glodine Adams, 3817 Callaway. She's in N.Y. to bury her mother.

AFRO Photog I. Henry Phillips and family will be in Bridgeton, N.J. for the Saturday funeral of his maternal uncle, Francis Calli.

For the Calli family, trouble comes double. Mrs. Calli, the former Angella Brown of Baltimore, suffered a stroke four days before her husband died. She's still hospitalized.

More people, things

Visitors: Earl and Flora Grant of Los Angeles were here over the weekend with his sister and brother-in-law, the Yancy Whittakers. (Helen.)

How's that for family dedication.

About this and that

Orchids to the PTA at Harlem Park Elementary School No. 35.

A Tuesday afternoon school clubs and organizations were featured in an 'Evening in May.' Very entertaining and enlightening.

This is the school of which Dr. Mary N. Brooks is principal, and where PTA members and community leaders are encouraged to participate and serve.

Mrs. Ethel J. Smith presided and Mrs. Mary E. Parker coordinated the program.

Aim of the program was embodied in these very fitting words:

• • •

"We, at Harlem Park Elementary School, No. 35, are striving to broaden the opportunity of each child.

"Much talent and potential for good citizenship, high scholarship and creativity can be lost if pupils are discouraged, deprived, and given limited opportunities.

"Increased cooperation and assistance from all parents will be needed if we are to prove that 'inner city' children are not different.

"Each school needs the assistance of community thinking and active participation in planning a challenging program for EACH child.

"Our Job: Quality education for all of the children of all of the people."

Youngster making good: Pam Jones, onetime Morgan student who has been starring in an Off Broadway show, 'Day of Absence,' has won a Yale University three-year drama scholarship.

She's the daughter of Mrs. Lucy Holt Jones and Wilbert Jones of our town.

• • •

Travel note: Mrs. Kelly L. Jackson is in from Portland, Oregon, where she was among 8,000 Methodist women attending the Seventh Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and Wesleyan Service Guild.

This is the Assembly sponsored by the Methodist Board of Missions, the national policy - making body for the WSCS and the Guild, and our Mrs. Jackson is a new member of the Board.

Congratulations to her.

Story of the week: This one, entitled, 'A big gift,' is from the current issue of Guideposts:—

A famous writer one day entered a large city. By the gates stood a beggar, asking alms. The writer turned his pockets inside out and said, "I am sorry, my brother, I have nothing to give you."

The beggar said, "Thank you."

"But I said I had nothing to give you," the author replied.

The beggar answered, "Ah but you called me 'brother.'"

Integration pace satisfies HEW, in spite of speedup, slowdown demands

By LOUIS CASSELS

UPI

Wilbur J. Cohen, undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said Tuesday the Federal Government is taking a "reasonable, sensible practical approach" to desegregation of schools and hospitals in the South.

In an interview, he ruefully acknowledged that HEW is under fire from two directions for its administration of Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which prohibits racial discrimination in "any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

Eighteen southern senators recently petitioned President Johnson to modify the guidelines, which they denounced as "illegal, unfair and unrealistic."

On the other hand, colored leaders are demanding strict-er enforcement. Roy Wilkins, chairman of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, warned last month that "any laxity in enforcement, or any tendency to give in to stubborn stands, spreads defeatism everywhere."

"Some say we're going too far," Cohen said. "Others say we aren't going far enough. We think we're taking a reasonable, sensible, practical approach to a very difficult problem."

Of the 5,135 school districts in 17 southern and border states, 12 have had their federal aid funds cut off for flatly refusing to desegregate.

All the rest have been put on notice that they must show substantial progress by fall if they expect to continue receiving federal money. So far, about 2,000 southern school districts have bit the bullet.
