Abe Laws, 67, dies

Abel (Abe) Laws, 67, 2038 N. Bentalou St., died unexpectedly Sunday at Fort Howard Hospital. He had been ailing for several months on Thursday night.

Called "Abe" by relatives and associates, Mr. Laws operated a barber shop at 1017 S. Sharp St. for 45 years.

Two weeks before his last illness, he had retired.

Funeral services were held Friday noon at the Arlington S. Phillips Funeral Home. Elks held memorial services on Thursday night.

Burial was in Baltimore National Cemetery.

Born in Accomac, Va., Mr. Laws came to Baltimore in 1919, shortly after his discharge from the Army.

He is survived by his wife of 44 years, the former Miss Emma Reid. She retired two years ago as cafeteria aide at Montebello School No. 44.

Two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Clay, a Board of Education employee; and Mrs. Thelma Gordon; seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, also survive.

He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Armenia Riddle, Baltimore and two brothers, Milton Laws, Baltimore and Vernon Laws, Washington.

Clyde Whitley

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the William Funeral Home for Clyde Whitley, 69, 918 N. Appleton St.

Burial was in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Mr. Whitley, who was employed as a chef cook at many hotels and resort areas for over 50 years, died Friday at the Baltimore City City Hospitals.

Mr. Whitley was born in Zebulon, N. C. His parents were Tryal and Ophelia Whitley.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Smith Whitley; two daughters, Miss Catherine Whitley, and Mrs. Armada Whitley, both of Baltimore; a stepson, Charles Roulhac, Baltimore; and a brother, David Whitley, Zebulon.

Mrs. M. Hatfield

Mrs. Margaret Hatfield, 56, 2220 Pressman St., active civic and church worker, died Monday at Lutheran Hospital.

Funeral services will be held Staurday at 3 p.m. at the George G. Kelson Funeral Home.

Burial will be in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Hatfield, longtime house mother at Morgan State College, was member of Pleasant Hope Baptist Church, where she sang on the choir.

Mrs. Hatfield is survived by her husband, McKinley Hatfield; and adopted son, Richard Hatfield, Baltimore; and two adopted daughters, Mrs. Doris Cook, Baltimore; and Mrs. Myrtle Cole, Cleveland, Ohio.

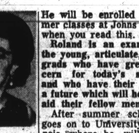
If YOU Ask ME

BY BETTYE M. MOSS



My father's love affairs

Sunday, June 19, is Father's Day. If your father is living, do remember him with a card, a gift or a fond pat on the cheek. If you have no father, remember a neighbor's dad.

During the past 45 years, my father has had three love affairs.

He has given his affection with unselfish devotion. He has guided and directed the subjects of his love, and inspired them to do things they thought they could not do.

His love affair No. 1 has been with the newspaper, where he has been editor, president, and today at 77, is chairman of the board of directors.

At a time in life when he could be cruising in the Islands or tending his flower garden, he is in his office every day.

Rarely passes a day that he is not in command, counseling, planning and watching the pennies.

When the Capital Press Club honored him in Washington a week back, Samuel Yette, onetime AFRO reporter now with Sargent Shriver's Office of Economic Opportunity, composed the citation.

It said in part:

"The AFRO has been fighting racial injustice by exposing it by its most tireless enemy — truth. That relentless exposure has continued to this day. For nearly half a century, although aided by many, the AFRO's thrust and leadership have emanated chiefly from one man—Dr. Carl Murphy, whom insiders affectionately call, 'Mr. Carl.'

"He has been critic, crusader and mass educator . . . he has made the AFRO a tower of influence . . . his personal attributes of astuteness, candor and integrity made him a leader. . . .

* * *

My dad's No. 2 love affair has been carried on with Morgan State College. He has watched it grow, and been a member of the board of trustees since the state purchased it from the Methodist Church in 1939.

As chairman of the board for the past twelve years, he has been the leading architect of the college, particularly its building program.

Hardly a day passes that he does not visit the campus and look in on new structures and activities.

Twenty-five years ago, the college had a student body of 400 and 13 academic buildings and dormitories valued at $924,000.

Today, students number over 3,100, and its 22 buildings are valued at over 14 million dollars — making this northeast Baltimore campus a thing of beauty, as well as a citadel of scholarship.

* * *

Governor Tawes, speaking at the trustee dinner for honorary degree holders last week, observed:

"I've enjoyed every minute working with you (the college), thanks to the quiet, insistent requests for money from Dr. Carl Murphy.

"He has told me often, 'Governor, we need this . . . the state has not done enough.'

"He is a man of integrity and devotion. No one has made a greater contribution to the civil rights movement.

* * *

My father's No. 3 love affair has been with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). He is a member of its national board, and one of the first life members.

Thirty years ago, the Baltimore branch was reactivated. He prevailed upon Dr. Lillie M. Jackson to take the leadership.

My dad gave of what he often calls 'My hard-earned money,' and got the branch started. ('One can't fight for rights through the courts without money.')

Today, the Baltimore branch can look back and properly take credit for initiating the civil rights revolution through the courts.

* * *

The first civil rights case, Murray vs. University of Maryland Law School, was the beginning.

Sargent Shriver acknowledged this to be so when he spoke here in November.

Last week, Thurgood Marshall, former NAACP lawyer, now Solicitor-General of the U.S., told the same thing to 800 diners at the Capital Press Club.

He observed: "I remember back in 1934, when the Murray case was to be appealed to the Supreme Court, we needed money. The NAACP didn't have it."

Mr. Marshall explained:—"I went to Carl Murphy, and he gave me a blank check. And, he did something else. He assigned a wide-awake reporter, Clarence Mitchell (now head of the NAACP's Washington bureau) to cover the case.

"The columns of the AFRO were open for as much or as little as we needed.

"We should never forget what got us to the point we are today . . . it has taken a lot of blood, sweat, tears and money . . . so when some youngster asks me today when am I going to march in Selma, I say we started long before he was born . . .

As this reporter said in the beginning, Father's Day is a time to remember dad. For me, I'll always remember my pop because he spent nearly a half century engaged in love affairs with this newspaper, Morgan College and the NAACP.

People, places, things

Note in the mail from former Baltimorean, Mrs. Vora Scott, now a Denver, Col. teacher.

She leaves on June 29 for a trip around the world, returns to the States, August 22.

The study tour is sponsored by Kent State University (Ohio), and Delta Kappa Gamma, the nationally known honor society for women in education.

Remember when Mrs. Scott and her husband, the late Cecil Scott, Urban League exec., lived here in Baltimore?

Remember, she was a school social worker and active in Delta Sigma Theta Sorority?

More mailbag:

* * *

Wedding Note: — Juanita Jones, of Wabash Ave., an associate professor of Alabama State, has a June 25 date at Providence Baptist Church, with Earl Williams. He's the Maryland Training School teacher.

Remember Mrs. Jones was in the limelight a while back when some Baltimore newmen photographed her and interviewed her because they thought she looked like Mrs. Martin Luther King?

Youngster going places: Roland Barksdale Williams, 20-year-old Baltimorean, was among Howard University graduates early this month. He will be enrolled in summer classes at Johns Hopkins when you read this.

Roland is an example of the young, articulate, college grads who have great concern for today's struggles and who have their eyes on a future which will help them aid their fellow men.

After summer school, he goes on to University of Illinois, where he will attend sessions of the National Student Association of which he is regional president.

At Howard, Roland was in Who's Who Among American University and College Students; led the university's student drive which sent dollars to UNESCO's hunger campaign for overseas poor.

His fraternity (Kappa Alpha Psi), picked him for the 1966 undergraduate achievement award.

He also belongs to Alpha Pi Omega, the national service fraternity which includes among its members such VIPs as the late President Kennedy and President Lyndon Johnson!

P.S. — Keep your eye on this youngster. He's going places.

Happy about it, of course, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Williams (Anethia.)

* * *

More good news: Leroy W. Carroll finished Georgetown Law School and has passed the bar.

For the past year he has been serving as bailiff in Supreme Bench Judge James Perrott's court.

He's also a graduate of City College and the University of Maryland. Many know his parents, C. Leroy and Marian Carroll, city teachers.

It is hard to believe this youngster is 25, and we knew him when he was a baby in arms. Whew!

And he is also married. His wife, Marla, is a teacher. They met at U. of Md.

The other Carroll boy, Warren, is a Howard University senior who also plans a law career.

His wife, Doris Willoughby Carroll, is also a H.U. senior.

Two grads in the family: Reba Anita Smith was a Douglass High grad, has enrolled at Morgan. Her brother, Roderick, finished Lemmel Junior High.

They are children of the Robert Smiths (he's instrumental teacher at Dunbar High). Hellos to them at 3905 Bateman Ave.

People doing kind things for others: Members of the 1966 Coppin State College class, held a reunion a Thursday ago at Wilson's, held church services at Union Baptist.

Their gift to the school: An art display panel to be put in the new Tawes Student Union Building.

More people and things

Our prediction here last week came true: The Rev. Edward McGowan is the new minister of Union Memorial Methodist Church. Formerly of Mt. Zion in D.C., he succeeds the Rev. N. B. Carrington, who retired.

Reunion officers were: Mrs. Yvonne Mitchell, chairman; Mrs. Barbara White, treasurer; Mrs. Georgia Gilks and Mrs. Bernice Hutchins, social committee; Mrs. Delores Wilson, Mrs. Bessie McGowan and Mrs. Geraldine Waters, program; and Mrs. Anna D. Boston, gift committee.

Orchids to Mrs. Jeanette Dates. She is the city teacher who has conducted science in-the-classroom courses on WBAL-TV this school year. And, she has a beautiful speaking voice.

Orchids to: Dr. Thomas Jones, the eye specialist. He and his children, Michelle, 12; and David, 15, returned Sunday from Mississippi.

Dr. Jones is a member of the Medical Committee for Human Rights. He took the children along so they could see firsthand what the civil rights struggle is all about.

He said the Meredith freedom marchers are courageous: "I wasn't scared," he add ed, 'but I was never so frightened in my life.'
