

Marshall dressed elegantly as a high school student, but his rascal-like behavior was considerably less than elegant.

Marshall (right), and his mentor, law dean Charles Houston (left), with Donald Murray, who got into the University of Maryland law school as part of "Marshall's revenge."

