...Up Volta Dam work

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — Ghana's military government announced last week it had been abandoned the Soviet-financed $90 million Volta Dam project because it was "unfeasible".

Russian technicians engaged in the construction were ordered out of the country.

The project, which envisioned the construction of gigantic hydro-electric power dam on the Volta River, was dear to the heart of ousted Ghanaian strongman Kwame Nkrumah.

B & P awards made to Baltimore women

Mrs. Madeline Wheeler Murphy, director of community services of the Cherry Hill Community Church, received the Sojourner Truth Award of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, here, Sunday.

The award was made at the Annual Founders' Day Observance, a breakfast meeting in the Holiday Inn.

* * *

TWO OTHER prominent city women received awards at the same observance.

They were Dr. Regina M. Goff, assistant Commissioner in the Office of Education, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare; and Mrs. Naomi Camper, who was cited for "living a selfless life, devoting her time, energy and money toward fostering a better life for others, for community improvement and neighborhood beautification.

Dr. Goff received the club's professional award, and Mrs. Camper, the community service award.

* * *

MRS. MURPHY, to whom the highest accolade of the club went, in addition to the church and community services sponsored by the Board of National Missions of the United Presbyterian Church, USA, gives responsible leadership to many city organizations.

She is president of the Lawyers' Wives, secretary of the Presbyterian Interracial Council, secretary of the Citizens' Committee for Voter Registration, sub-committee chairman of Staffing Patterns and Procedures of the Citizens' School Advisory Committee.

Mrs. Murphy is also active member of the Community Action Committee, the Anti-Poverty Program; the Urban League, a life member of the NAACP, a member of Provident Hospital Guild, of the Board of Trustees of Morgan Christian Center, Maryland State Conference of Social Welfare, League of Women Voters, CPHA and the Cherry Hill Coordinating Council.

* * *

MRS. FLORENCE V. LUCAS, attorney, of Jamaica, N. Y., was speaker for the occasion. Mrs. Lucas is a member of the New York Commission on Human Rights.

Mrs. Lucas cautioned her hearers that too often a group rates the affairs it sponsors more highly than seeking to utilize the services of all of its members. "Unless all persons or urged to give of their best, the group is not properly operating" she said.

Groups, said she, should only initiate programs that are needed. This means looking about and seeking those needs which do not always follow current trends.

Along this line she pointed out the number of programs being initiated for senior citizens, and the lack of programs for youth, who, too, have abundant leisure time.

Mrs. Lucas was introduced by Miss Lethay Stokes.

Miss Mary C. Allen presided at the session. Mrs. Charlotte Swan provided the musical moments, and Miss Barbara Padgett was soloist, Dr. Richard I. McKinney gave the invocation and benediction. The awards were presented by Mrs. Rosalie McGuire, president of the Club.

The breakfast was attended by 300 persons.

Miss Chesley is wed to Tancil Cooper

Miss Cecelia Chesley, member of the faculty of Collington Square School, here, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Chesley, was recently married to Tancil Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cooper.

A beautiful candlelight ceremony held in the Mt. Ararat Baptist Church, was performed by the Rev. S. B. Redd.

Mrs. Lillian Johnson, organist, and Miss Marion Arti, soloist, provided the musical program.

* * *

MISS CHESLEY wore a gown of Irish linen fashioned with an empire waist line, an A-line skirt, and featuring a Watteau train. The short sleeves were flounces of imported Alencon lace, and the skirt was bordered with a wide flounce of the same lace.

Her cathedral length veil of silk illusion fell from a bonnet of matching linen and lace.

* * *

MRS. DECATUR CHESLEY, matron of honor, wore a floor - length dress of pistachio green Scotch linen, also made on empire lines, and with flounces of Venice lace on the sleeves.

Bridesmaids gowns, in matinee, were of identical design.

Their headpieces were small pillboxes. They carried lighted candles implanted in circlets of roses.

The bridesmaids were Misses Barbara Davis and Brenda Meekins; and Mesdames Leslie Yoes and Barbara Alexander.

* * *

AIRMAN TYRONE COOPER was best man for his brother. Ushers were William Cooper, Decatur Chesley, Ronald Brooks and Robert Houston.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Chesley wore a dress of Gem turquoise encrusted with jewels and a hat of tiny blue flowers accented with bold green leaves.

Mrs. Cooper selected a blue satin turban draped with blue net.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Redd joined the wedding party in the receiving line at the reception which followed.

Assisting hostesses at the reception were Mesdames Bernard Morton Jr., Susie West, Lucille Johnson, Shirley Watson, Phyllis Sands and Ruth Johnson.

Free play plan for kids 5-13

Children between the ages of 5-13 may have their parents file applications now to enroll in the recreation program, free of charge, being offered by the Hollins Recreation Center.

Children will be under professional guidance for five hours daily for eight weeks at no charge.

Applications are being taken from 12:30 to 8 p.m. daily at the center, located at Carrollton Ave and Hollins St.

Parents must provide the following for each child enrolled in the program:

Lunches and beverages daily; enrollment must be for a minumum of four weeks; all children must remain at the center until 4 p.m. closing time.

ALL CHILDREN accepted by the center will be on a first-come, first-serve basis.

HRC, Korman differ on city's housing law

By RONALD SCHWARTZ

A difference seems to be developing between newly arrived civil rights advocate Milton D. Korman, who is vying for the top spot in the Corporation Counsel's office and the Commissioner's Council on Human Relations (HRC).

It all came to the fore last week when Korman and his assistant Clark King presented such "a tight cast" (in the words of King) in their first prosecution of a housing discrimination case that apartment owner Lawrence Lenkin and building manager Grace O'Dell could only plead guilty, Saturday a week ago.

Shortly after General Sessions Judge George D. Nielson sentenced both to pay $300 or face 90 days in jail in a complaint originally filed with the HRC by Miss Vivian Adams of 1661 Park Rd. NW. King downgraded the conciliation role of the HRC.

Under the District's Fair housing ordinance, a complaint alleging discrimination in the sale or rental of housing is first investigated by the HRC which, if the charges appear valid, may either attempt to remedy the grievance through conciliation or refer the case to the courts.

HRC housing investigator James C. Slaughter stressed that HRC and not the Corporation Counsel is empowered by the District code to decide whether or not a remedy can be reached through conciliation.

In the Adams case, Slaughter added, the complaint was turned over to the corporation Counsel before conciliation began because Miss Adams had located an apartment elsewhere.

* * *

KORMAN AGREES that he cannot deny the HRC's power to conciliate but added that such a procedure weakens a case prior to it coming to court, since evidence must be presented in a conciliation proceding.

Korman called the Adams case "a new procedure" in the enforcement of the law. "I thought this (conviction) would get many more people to comply with the law, particularly the borderline group," Korman added.

Slaughter, however, stressed that so new procedure is afoot: conciliation will remain as the HRC's primary tool in working out disputes.

* * *

IN THE Adam's case, Slaughter noted, the HRC began investigating the complaint the day it was filed with the HRC, February 25, after she was denied an apartment at the all-white Parkhill Apartments, 1610 Porkhill Rd., NW.

The results of the investigation were presented at a preliminary hearing, April 1, conducted by a panel of 3 HRC members, Nelson Roots, the Rev. Channing E. Phillips, and John D. Fauntleroy.

At that time Slaughter recommended that since Miss Adams had located another apartment, the complaint could not actually be conciliated and thus should be referred to the Corporation Counsel.

2 McKeldin groups set initial meets

Initial meetings of two of Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin's recently established six citizens committee, designed to help cure the city's social ills, are scheduled for the coming week.

At 4 p.m. Tuesday, the Education Committee will meet in the Student Union Building at Morgan State College.

At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, the Housing Committee will meet in the Board Room 231, City Hall.

The Education Committee's co - chairmen are Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, Morgan College president, and Hans Froelicher Jr., honorary president, Citizens Planning and Housing Association.

The Housing Committee is headed by Edward Holmgren, Baltimore Neighborhoods; W. Burton Guy Jr., real estate broker, and Cornelius Tinsley, Doltin Realty Co.

* * *

NEXT COMMITTEE to meet date of which is unscheduled, will be that on Health and Welfare.

Others to follow will be the Employment, Public Accommodations and Police Community Relations Committees.

Samuel T. Daniels, director, Baltimore's Community Relations Committee, has, while waiting for an official name, termed the McKeldin Force on Equal Opportunities committees — "A Task Force on Equal Opportunity."

Joseph Purdy, CRC board chairman, is coordinator of the activities of the committees. Mr. Daniels is director of all staff services.

Mayor McKeldin met with the chairmen of the committees Monday and emphasized that they are to be action committes and are to move as such.

He told them they are to be an official arm of his own office force.

The mayor wants his committees to work in their respective areas toward improving social conditions in the city.

Fellowship camp

The Baltimore Fellowship House, 3209 N. Hilton St., will hold its day camp from July 5-22 for youngsters in kindergarten through grade school. The fee for Fellowship members' children is $8 for one child $6 for each additional child and two dollars more in both categories for non-members children.

Police problems aired on TV-2

The problems of Baltimore's police department will be explored on "The police in Trouble" a 30-minute documentary special, Tuesday, June 21 from 10:30-11 p.m. on WMAR-TV, channel two.

Hof tag action set at Center

Tomorrow (Saturday) the mat fare at the Civic Center will include a generous serving of tag-team activity with two local favorites meeting two bitterly hated rivals.

Antonio Pugliese and Argentina Apollo will tangle with Prince Taukea and Baron Mikel Scicluna.

The latter two have been the most recent contenders for Bruno Sammartino's heavyweight crown, and both were soundly thrashed by the Italian strongman in the local ring.

They'll be seeking vengeance against Pugliese, who is a cousin of the titleholder. Apollo is one of Bruno's closest friends.
