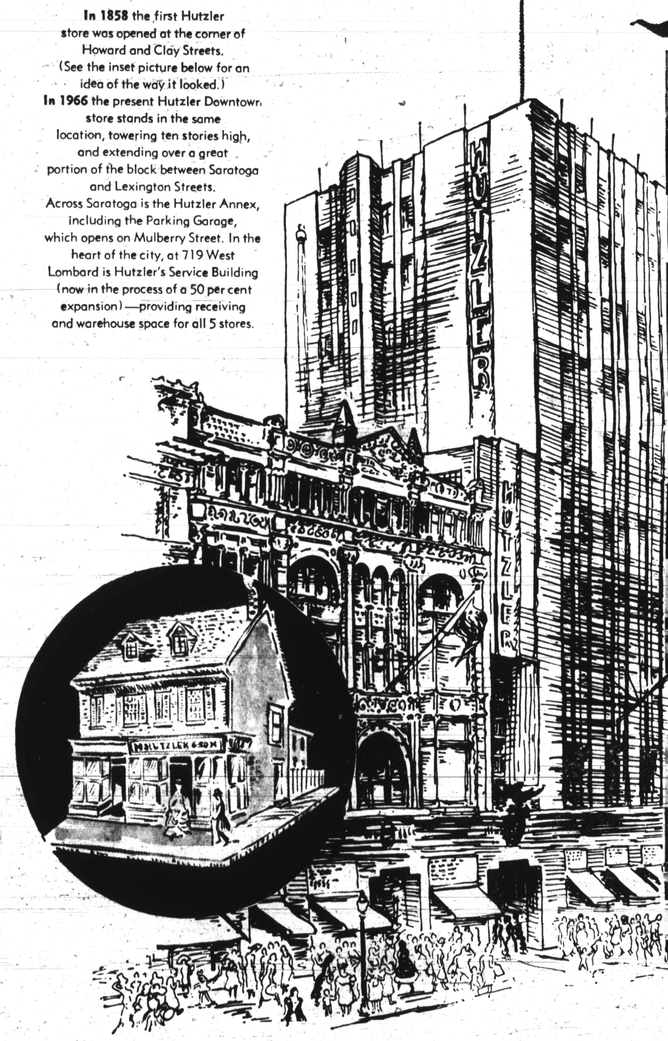
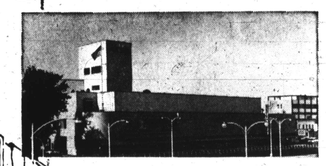
HUTZLER'S

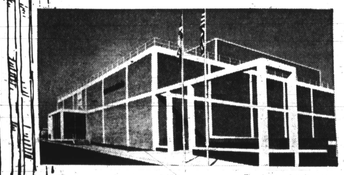
Baltimore's oldest and largest department store .... owned and operated by the Hutzler family for more than a century

In 1858 the first Hutzler store was opened at the corner of Howard and Clay Streets. (See the inset picture below for an idea of the way it looked.) In 1966 the present Hutzler Downtown store stands in the same location, towering ten stories high, and extending over a great portion of the block between Saratoga and Lexington Streets. Across Saratoga is the Hutzler Annex, including the Parking Garage, which opens on Mulberry Street. In the heart of the city, at 719 West Lombard is Hutzler's Service Building (now in the process of a 50 per cent expansion)—providing receiving and warehouse space for all 5 stores.

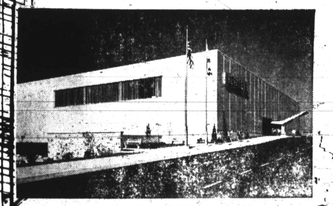




In 1952 Hutzler's Towson . . . and a major expansion is in progress now



In 1956 Hutzler's Eastpoint . . . greatly enlarged and expanded in '65



In 1958 Hutzler's Westview . . . dominant store in Westview Shopping Center

In 1965 Hutzlers Southdale . . . in Anne Arundel Co., serving southern Maryland

And so the story goes . . . a continuing story at that! In a period of not quite eleven decades, this tiny little shop grew and grew . . . into the five great stores which you see pictured above and at the right, stores which are dedicated to the Hutzler traditions of quality, fashion-leadership and service. Hutzler's a "Maryland Institution", building on the past, looks to the future with confidence.
