Bobby's N.Y. win blow to tan chief

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell's 9-1 margin of victory in New York's primary election Monday, clearly indicated his almost unassailable position in his own baliwick just as the win by a candidate backed by Robert Kennedy indicated the senator's control of the New York Democratic Party.

Kennedy, who had kept aloof from local politics, entered the fray on the side of Judge Samuel J. Silverman who opposed Judge Arthur Kein for the post of Manhattan surrogate.

The surrogate appoints lawyers to handle estates. These estates run to about a billion dollars a year and the fees for the lawyers to $1 million, so that the post is considered of major importance.

KLEIN had the backing of the regular Tammany Hall organization, headed by J. Raymond (The Fox) Jones, the only colored man to head a city's political power structure in the country.

The campaign took on strident racial overtones with backers of Jones charging that an attempt was being made to challenge his leadership because he is colored.

Kennedy himself was specifically excluded from any charge of racism, but feelings still ran strong in Harlem where a group of the most influential people, including Powell and Dr. Kenneth Clark, the famous physchologist, issued a statement strongly endorsing Jones and his candidate.

Cornerstone Church hit in legal action

A summary judgement suit for $1,669 has been filed in Superior Court against Cornerstone Baptist Church of Christ, by the G.A.C. Service Corp. of New York for the use of Federated Foods of Maryland, Inc.

Entered on June 23 the complainants stated that the money is payable for a food freezer and goods sold and delivered to a residence in the 3500 block Holmes Ave.

A copy of the agreement enclose in the Superior Court file shows the freezer was contracted for the Holmes Ave. house Aug. 10, 1961 and on Aug. 20, 1961, a payment of $82.40 was received.

The motion for the judgement was filed May 12 by Guy L. Zimmerman for the complainants. The document names Dr. Logan Kearse as resident agent for the church.

School Board takes own pay plan instead of Council's; faces strike

By ROGER J. NISSLY

Amid threats of strike and national sanctions — but not because of them — the School Board met in special session Wednesday afternoon to consider alternative ways of meeting the teacher salary crisis.

The Board, refusing to be dictated to by City Council, which had cut its $4.2 million request for a salary increase by $1.9 million, voted to implement its expanded salary scale in full beginning in January rather than parcel half of what it had asked throughout the whole school year.

City Council, in cutting the request by half, suggested that a salary increase could be begun in September if a $550 limit was placed on the raise to each teacher and the number of years taken to reach the maximum was left at 18, rather than being lowered to 15.

• • •

IN THE PLAN adopted by the School Board — and designed by the Board of Superintendents — salary scales will remain as before from September to January and the raise in pay would begin the first payroll period in January (about Jan. 11).

The scale beginning in January is the same one which was adopted by the Board Jan. 13, 1966, included in its budget requests and approved by the Board of Estimates.

It raises the starting salary for teachers from $5,200 to $5,400 and raises the maximum from 9,000 to 9,300, to be reached after 15 years rather than 18.

• • •

BOARD President Eli Frank Jr., made it clear that the money was not being taken from other educational activities to finance the raise.

"We will be using money alloted for salaries," he said, but differently than Council had suggested.

He pointed out also that next year the Council "may not feel it is under the same obligation" to support the new salary scale "as if it had agreed to it."

Other alternatives open to the Board were to begin paying newly-recruited teachers the higher wage in September and hold off the other raises until some time after January or begin paying all teachers on the new scale in September and expert City Council to provide the rest of the money.

• • •

THE LATTER course of action was suggested by Charles Laubheim, executive secretary of the Baltimore Teachers Union.

Mr. Laubheim warned that

Solves bank heist; gets $1,000 prize

A $1,000 reward has been given to Clyde J. Brown by Maryland National Bank for his assistance in apprehending the robber of the Long Meadow branch in Washington County recently.

Mr. Brown was in the bank at the time of the $7,357 holdup, according to Mary G. Hoen, bank representative.

Disregarding his own safety, he followed the robber to the parking lot and noted the getaway car's license number, she reported.

With the information Mr. Brown gave police and FBI agents, the bandit was arrested the same day in Fairfax, Va., and the money was recovered.

An employee of Potomac Edison Company for 30 years, Brown put the $1,000 check back in the bank in a savings account for his daughter's education.

Expanded nurses training urged

Gov. J. Millard Tawes has urged the State Board of Examiners of Nurses to cooperate fully with the Maryland State Employment Service and the Division of Vocational Education in their expanded training programs for licensed practical nurses in Maryland.

Gov. Tawes made the request at the urging of the directors of the latter two agencies who earlier reported to the governor that their expansion programs have been completed but would be greatly aided by the cooperation of the State Board of Examiners of Nurses.

In a letter to Mrs. Elizabetha F. Norwood, president, State Board of Examiners of Nurses, the governor said that full cooperation between the agencies was necessary to meet the increasing need for trained medical personnel in Maryland which will become more acute with the introduction of Medicare today (Friday).

The governor asked the board to assist this project by reducing the amount of time required for certifying nurses' training institutions, administering licensing tests within a minimal waiting period so more courses can be introduced and cooperating in every way with the State Employment Service and the Division of Vocational Education in order to meet the demand for additional trained medical personnel in Maryland.

At Westinghouse Mr Ham has been responsible for the development and implementation of on-the-job- training programs for employees and serves as instructor for several of the programs.

Education, housing and jobs will be among the issues on which Mr. Ham will campaign.

A native of Mullins, S. C., he graduated from Johnson C. Smith University and has studied at the New York Technical Institute, Johns Hopkins, University of Maryland and Morgan State College.

MR. HAM joined Westinghouse in 1953 and has held various engineering positions in the field of missiles, advanced development, test facilities and technical training.

He holds five patent disclosures and is author of several technical papers.

Mathias housing bill wins committee okay

WASHINGTON — An open housing proposal exempting individual homeowners sponsored by Rep. Charles Mathias (R., 6th) of Maryland broke a deadlock Wednesday and sent President Johnson's civil rights bill winging through the House Judiciary Committee.

The Housing proposal, a major departure from the Administration's housing section which would have covered all sales and rentals, got bi-partisan support to pass by a 21-13 vote.

The Judiciary Committee then passed the entire civil rights bill, 24-9. It now goes to the House Rules Committee, which is required to act on it within 21 days.

The amended civil rights bill is expected to have a better chance of passing the House than the Administration's broader proposal.

Its final passage would put the concept of open housing on the federal statute books for the first time.

Cherry Hill residents say spray is poison

The 15,000 residents of Cherry Hill are braced for possible demonstrations this week end as the bitter feud between them and the City officials rages on into a third week.

Charging they illegally reside in a vermin and filth-infested area because of the dump nearby, the citizens say city officials are not only guilty of violation of sanitation laws but they also have exposed them to possible death from a lethal pesticide spray.

The first disclosure of the "poison gas" theory came Monday at a meeting sponsored by INCITE (Interested Citizens for Equality) as the Citizens-City Fathers panel gathered in the Presbyterian

On Wednesday, Joseph L. Sims, 28, 1000 block W. Lexington St., was sentenced to 15 years on a robbery with a deadly weapon charge in an incident involving a tavern in the 1100 block W. Baltimore St.

He appeared before Judge James A. Perrott in Criminal Court.

Offit said the man arrived at the tavern side door during a rainstorm and taking a gun from his black raincoat pocket came behind the counter and said, "Give me the money."

He stated he gave Sims 39 one dollar bills, two five dollar bills and a lot of quarters that added up to $61.75.

Concerned Ministers Still Back CORE

The Interdenominational Ministers' Alliance will continue supporting CORE financially and from the pulpit but has reservations about the concept of "Black Power" and the new attitude towards non-violence.

This is what came out of a press conference called by the Alliance Thursday to present its reaction to ideas brought forth in the CORE national convention which concluded Monday.

The Rev. Frank Williams, president of the Alliance and pastor at the Metropolitan Methodist Church, 1121 W. Lanvale, where the conference was held, said the Alliance would support CORE as in the past but was "concerned" about the new stands.

He remarked further that there was no total agreement among the ministers of the Alliance — representing the majority of churches in the colored community — on — just how far they would go in backing up the civil rights group.

• • •

THE ALLIANCE statement — which was general in tone — said the group was worried about various interpretations of the phrase "Black Power."

"Black Power which advocates black supremacy or black nationalism is as totally objectionable as is the power which supports white supremacy," it said.

The Rev. Marion Bascom, pastor of Douglas Memorial Community Church, Lafayette and Madison Aves., added that the Alliance had discussed "Black Power" with CORE since the convention but that "they are as ambiguous as we are" on what its exact definition is.

• • •

THE REV. ROBERT Newbold, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church, 521 Dolphin St., indicated the group was not so much worried about CORE's interpretation of "Black Power" as what the man on the street would think of it.

"If it means improvement of self image and the achievement of political power, then we are for it," he said, "but the average man on the

Poverty war pays poor too little—CAA chief

The poverty program is keeping its own poverty-area employees poor by paying them "inadequate" wages, the executive director of the Community Action Agency said this week.

Parren Mitchell told a Community Action Commission meeting:

"If the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington is really sincere about the War on Poverty, it has got to reach some hard realistic decisions on the kind of salaries it is paying the poor.

"How are you going to break poverty by paying an inadequate wage?" he asked.

• • •

ON MR. MITCHELL'S strong advice, the Commission voted to send to the Office of Economic Opportunity a recommendation that it establish a minimum salary scale of $1.75 an hour, which would amount to $3,640 a year.

Commissioner Mrs. Madeline Murphy, who seconded Mr. Mitchell's motion, said:

"We're paying our own people just enough to stay off welfare. Something's got to be done about it."

Mr. Mitchell released a survey showing that 17 heads of households employed in CAA programs were receiving $3,000 — the so-called "poverty level" — or less until June 30. Twelve were getting only $2,400 a year.

• • •

THE CAA DIRECTOR added that all of the salaries were raised above the poverty level as of July 1, but maintained the new scales are still too low.

"I am not at all sure that the new salary scales are realistic for the head of families. I believe we

Say beating led to rioting

Some 250 city policemen and David Glenn, the Mayor's assistant, were on the scene at 1:30 p.m., when officials confirmed there was a 'full scale' riot, which Mr. Pepersack described 'as the worst I have ever seen in destructivenss.'

At 1:50 p.m. the Assistnat Warden James Jordan, was overcome by smoke and was brought out supported on the shoulders of rioting prisoners, who cried, "Give him air. Give him air."

Rioting reportedly broke out at the Maryland Penitentiary shortly after noon today (Friday).

An AFRO reporter on the scene advised the riot squad answered a call to the institution and that the exterior of the building was ringed by policeman armed with riot guns.

By 12:40, the fire department had answered six calls to the scene. Policemen guarded them as they moved in and out of the gate leading to the courtyard.

It is believed the fire started in the print shop. Smoke could be seen blocks around and attracted bystanders estimated at over a thousand people.

• • •

AT 12:45, the AFRO reporter said: 'policeman with gas masks and riot guns have been admitted to the Pen. The fire is apparently out of control.

The reporter added that flames were 'pouring' from the roof of the print shop and smoke was so dense spectators were driven back a half block.'

Lt. G. D. Lauer said policemen are coming from all over the city.'

• • •

AS LATE as 1:46 p.m. the switchboard operator at the Pen advised, I know nothing about any riot . . . . we have a fire here,' she said.

Cloud of smoke were plainly visible from the third floor of the AFRO building at Druid Hill and Eutaw Sts. a good ten blocks away from the Penitentiary at Eager and Madison Sts.

• • •

VERNON E. PEPERSACK, director of state department of correction confirmed at 12:55 that a riot had begun about noon.

He said it involved 'about one thousand prisoners who are now confined in the yard.

'I am convinced,' he said, 'that the fires were set by the prisoners who started the riot.'

The AFRO reporter said that at this hour the fire embraces the wood shop, the third floor of the print shop, and in the kitchen as well.

MR. PEPERSACK told the AFRO: he believed the fires and rioting were because of 'general unrest' due to alleged brutality involving an inmate earlier on Thursday.

Reference was to a dispute between a 25-year-old inmate, John Edward Jones and guards.

In an earlier story in this issue on page 23, the warden, Roger Copinger denied the incident was of riot proportions.

Dr. Pierpont announced the day before that Archie D. Williams, prominent local attorney, would run in the comptroller spot on his ticket.

At that time, the newly formed team stated:

4 factional tickets split 4th D. Demos

By MAX JOHNSON
AFRO Political Analyst

Four potential 4th District Democratic tickets emerged Tuesday night from the fiasco that accompanied the last minute filing of candidates for various offices at the city's Supervisors of Elections.

At least two of them represent a serious split in the Democratic ranks in the lower end of the district.

To what extent this situation will prevail following the July 30 withdrawal deadline remains to be seen.

This is what old line politicos term, the wheelin and dealin' period.

Seek volunteers in petition

At this early stage, the campaign to petition the Modified Bard-Councilmanic Redistricting Plan before the voters is progressing satisfactorily, according to Mrs. Christopher Gray, president, League of Women Voters.

However, more volunteers could be used, she said, to aid the collection of the 10,000 signatures necessary by July 25, to petition the plan to the ballot for the November general election.

The League of Women Voters and the Leadership Conference of the Urban League are cooperating in the petition campaign.

THIS IS a direct result of the redistricting plan passed recently by a 11 to 9 vote by the City Council which was immediately branded a gerrymander of the city by opposing community and leading citizens alike.
