Boys begin final week at Mohawk

Boys begin the final week of camping next week at Camp Mohawk, the YMCA's overnight resident camp in Huntingtown, Md.

Beginning August 1, girls will enroll in the camp for a three-week period.

A. P. Moss, director, reported this week that registration for girls is at a high mark, and there are only a few openings.

The camp serves youngsters, age 7 to 16.

Dems apologize for picnic snub

WASHINGTON

A public apology to colored members who were turned away from a Prince Georges County Young Democratic Club annual picnic on Saturday was made Tuesday by Peter F. O'Malley, president of the organization.

Bitterly criticizing the racial snub, O'Mealley said "The action taken by the owners of the property on which this affair was held did not represent club policy in any manner."

Three club members, including Arthur King, a candidate for the House of Delegates, were turned away from the picnic at Mount Airy, the historic hunting lodge of Lord Baltimore near Upper Marlboro.

HOST FOR the party was Thomas Yewell, a club member whose father - in-law, Edward J. Smith, owns Mount Airy. In his apology O'Malley said:

"Had we known that anybody was unwelcome on the premises, the club would absolutely not have had the picnic here. . . ."

Big Brothers

The Big Brothers Annual Barbecue is scheduled for July 23, at Drew Pearson's farm, four miles past Potomac, Maryland, on River Road.

The tickets are priced at $10 for adults and $5 for children with proceeds going to support Big Brothers.

This is an important fund raising event and has proven, in the past several years, to be one of the most popular events of the summer.

Mitch Miller and Charlie Byrd will head up the entertainment for the evening, along with six additional acts.

Cherry Hill to hold voter drive, parade

Voter Registration will get underway in Cherry Hill Saturday, July 23, with a parade sponsored by the Cherry Hill Coordinating Council (CHCC).

Director of the voter project is Jim David. Mrs. Sarah J. Bundy is president of the Cherry Hill Coordinating Council.

Mr. David told the AFRO, "the purpose of the parade is to dramatize to voters of the Sixth District their duty to register and vote in the coming elections."

All other organizations involved in voter education and registration are urged to join in the project to cover as many of the district's un-registered voters as possible.

The opening of the drive in Cherry Hill will be 9 a.m. and will continue through 6 p.m. at 2700 Spellman Road, recreation center.

"U-VOTE, the NAACP campaign, and other groups are joining with the Council to make this the biggest registration drive in the history of the district," Mr. David said.

Tax claims fought by Davises and trio

Sammy Davis, Jr., his father, and the Will Masten Trio have asked the U.S. Tax Court to overturn Internal Revenue Service rulings that they owe nearly $300,000 in back taxes.

The IRS says Davis, Jr., owes $81,710 for 1959, $109,744 for 1960, and a late filing penalty of $36,029, totalling $227,463.

Davis's father, according to the service owes nearly $40,000 for the same two years and the trio owes $32,000 for 1960.

The younger Davis claims that more than $206,360 in expenses disallowed by the IRS for those two years were essential to maintain his position in show business.

* * *

THEY ENTAILED hotels, costumes, music, transportation, meals, entertainment and gifts, tips, a valet, and a bodyguard.

The plea by the trio contests the IRS claim that the elder Davis was paid an excessive salary in 1960 while he recuperated from a heart attack and could not perform.

Davis, Jr.'s expenses were disallowed, the IRS said, "because it has not been established that the amount in excess of that allowed constitutes ordinary and necessary business expenses or was expended for the purpose designated."

The expenses were all "related to business or had a business purpose," Davis's petition contends, however.

Johnson urges end of violence

President Johnson, appealing for an end to racial violence in the slums of U.S. cities, said colored citizens must recognize that civil rights progress depends on a white majority that holds "democratic power."

Warning that the gains of recent years could be lost, Johnson told a Wednesday news conference that he hoped Americans "will not resort to violence" in effort to secure equality for all persons.

The sober-faced President, whose antipoverty and civil rights programs are under hard, election-year scrutiny in Congress, said he was "not interested in 'black power' or 'white power.' What I am concerned with is democratic power, with a small 'D'."

He said he believed the 90 percent of Americans who are not colored "have come around to the viewpoint of wanting to see equality and justice given their fellow citizens."

* * *

BUT, JOHNSON said, "they want to see it done under the law. They want to see it done orderly. They want to see it done without violence.

"I believe that if we are not to lose a great many of the gains that we have made in recent years in treating people equally in this country, giving the equality of opportunity, equality in education, and equality in employment, then we must recognize that while there is a colored minority in this country, there is a majority of 90 percent who are not colored," Johnson said.

THE PRESIDENT, who conferred Wednesday morning with governors and mayors dealing with the riots, was asked if he believed the violence was the work of professional agitators.

"Whenever there is trouble, there are always individuals to whom suspicion is attached," he said. "But I do not want to say that the protests and the demonstrations are inspired by foreign foes.

"I do say that on occasions where you find this trouble, you also find people who do not approve of our system, and who in some instances contribute to the violence that occurs."

THE PRESIDENT spoke in the wake of racial mob violence in Chicago, Cleveland, Jacksonville, Fla., South Bend, Ind., and New York in the past two weeks.

Johnson seemed to agree with Atty. Gen Nicholas deB. Katzenbach, who earlier Wednesday reported to the House Committee on UN-American Activities on a revolutionary group that advocates uprisings in America.

Katzenbach said he did not believe the organization — the Revolutionary Action Movement — had masterminded the recent violence. RAM is reportedly directed from Cuba by Robert H. Williams.

Williams, a fugitive from a kidnap charge in North Carolina, has made radio broadcasts from Havana urging revolt. He is now on his way from Moscow to Peking.

Katzenbach told the committee he thought reports of RAM's membership and effectiveness have been "rather overstated."

Housing programs won't solve 'unrest,'—Weaver

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Robert C. Weaver, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, said Wednesday the recent wave of racial violence cannot be traced to any one cause.

"We have had violence on occasion in our major cities for some time," he said. "This is not new."

"But it used to be gang against gang and now it is many of the same people against society in general."

Weaver, here to address a mayors' lay banquet, told a news conference that there was no one solution to the problem of racial unrest.

HE SAID that most of the recent outbreaks were led by unemployed youths who appeared to be giving expression to their hostility and hopelessness. He said the reasons for such unrest are complex and stem from several problems.

"The only solution is to try to meet these problems," he said.

Weaver said housing programs alone cannot solve the problems of poverty areas.

"You can have adequate housing and still have many of the same problems," he said.

Brimmer urges bank-loan curb, in 1st major speech

WASHINGTON — Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, Andrew Brimmer, the newest member of the Board's seven-man team, gave his first exposition of fiscal policy, since his appointment to the FRB, in a speech in Boston, this week.

Speaking to a group of businessmen and financiers, at a luncheon at the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, Brimmer warned that bankers should temporarily suspend the tax credit given to businessmen for investment in new capital and equipment if they wish the nation to avoid inflation.

* * *

GIVING A FISCAL analysis of the economy, Brimmer said: "Capital outlays are levels and thus pose n ultapproaching unsustainable mate threat to continued economic expansion."

* * *

BRIMMER'S recommendation was made as an alternative to an income tax increase anticipated earlier this year, which he said "would have been the most effective deterrent to further escalation in capital expenditures."

"But," Brimmer said after he criticized the Administration's failure to raise taxes this year, "in the absence of a tax increase, serious consideration should be given to stimulus provided by the investment tax credit."

* * *

THE NEW FRB Governor, an economist and former Commerce Department Assistant became the fourth FRB member to criticize the pressure placed on the monetary policy in the fight against inflation.

Similar statements have been made by Chairman William McChesney Martin and Govs. Sherman J. Miesel and J. Dewey Doane.

This week too, Senator Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) was also critical of President Johnson for relying almost entirely on high interest rates to restrain the booming economy.

Higher taxes would do the job "more equitably" and would bring interest rates back down to earth, Javits said in a Senate speech as he urged President Johnson to ask Congress for an income tax increase that would take between $5.5 and $7 billion of spending money out of the hands of consumers and businessmen.

* * *

THE BRIMMER interest rate stabilizer suggested the less drastic measure of withdrawing the stimulus to the economy provided by the seven percent investment credit.

Emphasizing "immediate restraint" on loan expansion which would disallow tax credit for new capital goods ordered after a given date, Brimmer implied that the first action might come from the FRB itself through a reduction in bank reserves. He said, "action on the fiscal front still seems in order."

The new governor indicated that bankers were "drawing an unsustainable level of demand for our limited resources.

Quoting figures to show the big increase in bank loans he showed that loans were being used to support expansion in: metal producing and fabricating firms; textile makers and petroleum and chemical companies. He cited a 70 percent increase on loans in the second quarter of this year over the same period in 1965.

* * *

BAN K LOANS, Brimmer added, were increasing faster than the total assets of the bank. "How long can banks expand their loans to business beyond the expansion of deposits?" he asked cautiously.

Demands for bank loans have increased so rapidly, Brimmer indicated, that even small country banks are being caught up in the fever of borrowing from the Federal Reserve Bank.

Shriver probes Wallace's claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anti - Poverty Director Sargent Shrivor Wednesday, ordered an investigation of charges by Gov. George C. Wallace that an Alabama program is aligned with a "Black Power" movement.

"No funds have as yet been dispersed and I have asked that all disbursements be held up pending completion of the investigation and submission of the report," Shriver said.

SHRIVER SAID Wallace sent him a telegram Tuesday, charging that proposed administrators of a program for migrant farm workers in Lowndes and Wilcox counties were aligned with the Black Power movement.

"I wish to thank Gov. Wallace for his communication," Shriver said in a statement. "In response to his telegram I have ordered an investigation and report on all the allegations and objections contained therein."

"Any building I design will have beauty and function, but always with the human touch... that's a must."

Uganda planning to name new king

KAMPALA (NPI) — With King Freddie (Kabaka Sir Edward Frederick Mutesa, III) safe in exile in Britain, plans are afoot to appoint a new king in Buganda — but the new appointee would be under the direct control of the central government.

Meanwhile, no plans are being made to extradite King Freddie. His wife, sister and sister-in-law have been freed from detention.
