Youngster making good: Miss Sylvia R. Curtis graduates today (Friday) from the Women's Job Corps Center in St. Petersburg, Fla.

She is trained as a clerk-typist and medical transcribers.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Curtis of Dukeland St.

• • •

Since her enrollment in the Corps, Miss Curtis has completed vocational courses in typing, clerical recordkeeping, medical terminology, business machines, and notehand, as well as the required essentials in basic education and home and Family Life.

She received her on-the-job training at the Veteran's Administration Hospital, Bay Pines, Florida, where she worked as a ward clerk trainee and as a receptionist.

There is more: While at the Center, Miss Curtis served as secretary of the student government; she also received a certificate of appreciation for volunteer work at the Job Corps Center.

Isn't that grand!

• • •

Good news: Mrs. John J. Oliver (Marye), the teacher, is doing much better, should be out of Hopkins Hospital by the time you read this, thank goodness.

New teacher: Charles (Chuck) Richards, the smooth-voiced announcer on WMAR, will become a teacher in the fall. He finished Morgan in June.

He is living proof that you can change careers after you grow up, and start down a new path, provided you stick with it. Good work!

• • •

Birthday note: Aug. 1 cards to Miss Ora Wright, 1816 W. Lexington St.

Many know her as a good, good neighbor.

She is also 'mother' of Mt. Nebo Pentacostal Church, where she is a missionary.

Verse of the week:

I must confess — I truly must.
This thing I find most frightening,
Though I pretend I'm brave as sin.
I'm scared to death of lightning. . . PAUL D. McALLISTER

A bit about this, that

Orchids to the Bon Coeurs. As usual, their picnic affair was out of this world.

It was on the grounds of the Glen Burnie mansion home owned by Mrs. Sue Moore, a member of the group.

Seen about: Friendly Mrs. Ruby Morris of Philadelphia (I read the AFRO twice a week,' she volunteered.)

Mrs. Morris is now making her home here in Baltimore with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Scott (Vivian).

He's the Transit Co. employee, and she's the teacher.

Note: Mrs. Morris marked her 72nd birthday on July 17, but she has the youthful look which belies her age.

If you like groovy, romantic singing and you enjoy his show on TV, you would have 'loved' the Andy Williams Show at the Civic Center on Wednesday evening.

Isn't he the grandest stager—and a doll, too! How about when he ended up his concert by introducing his wife who was seated front row center!

The audience loved him too. On many an Andy Williams favorite, you could hear a pin drop.

Fact is there was not even a cough in the crowded, dimlit auditorium, when he sang, "Danny Boy" and "Somewhere."

There was frequent and sustained applause all evening.

Sharing the plaudits were Henry Mancini and his orchestra.

Someone described him as 'the colored Duke Ellington,' because he has written many prize-winning tunes.

His 'Moon River,' and the score for Peter Gunn for example, are tops. Wow!

Baltimoreans were among delegates to the 32nd annual session of the National Baptist Convention, USA, in Montclair, N.J., last week.

There were: Mrs. Ella Bailey, Mrs. Orey Womack, Mrs. Clara Bailey, Mrs. Maggie Cobb, Mrs. Agnes Chambers, Mrs. Maggie Green.

And Deacons James Winkel, Alfred Cheek, Tony Moore, John Merritt, Joseph Streeter, Harry Green and Macajah Eggleston.

• • •

MARYLAND president, Deacon Sidney Johnson, led the delegation. Present were 321 delegates from 21 states.

Former Baltimorean seen at the sessions: The Rev. Charles Churn, now pastoring in N.Y.

Also there, the Rev. M. J. Brackett of Baltimore's Central Baptist Church.

People being kind to other people — The University of Maryland at College Park gave a tea Thursday afternoon to honor Mrs. Margaret Curtis.

She had been a member of the university's maintenance staff for 36 years.

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI) Samuel T. Sanders Jr., A Republican candidate for the legislature, said Monday he will seek the support of white voters. Sanders is a write-in candidate endorsed by the South Carolina Independent Republicans Association.

Although "mutual harmony between the races" exists in South Carolina, he said, "we must not rest on to correct racial violence, we must prevent it."

The candidate for the state house of representatives said, "We must have in South Carolina a better channel of communications between the races in state government.
