Prayers For The Target City

We, a group* of Baltimore citizens, welcome the opportunity afforded by C.O.R.E.'s choosing Baltimore as its Target City. We share C.O.R.E.'s intent to improve the conditions of Baltimore's Negro citizens, and to gain them acceptance and opportunity in the community. We hold that this can be done without bitterness or violence.

We hold that lasting correction of racial and religious inequities may best be effected by a change in man's attitudes. The selfish become unselfish; the indifferent become concerned; the wrongheaded become right-headed through the grace of God.

Baltimore has a wonderful opportunity to set a pattern for racial reform by peaceful means.

To all people of good will, we issue a call for cooperation in our effort to promote calmness, good will, and mutual respect and understanding. To this end, we ask all who pray to join us every morning and evening in prayer. To provide solidarity in this movement, we publish this prayer for this week:

Father in Heaven:

Stir up Thy people in Baltimore to pray. Intercede for all who never pray. Help all who have never learned to pray—those who have forgotten how—those who are too discouraged or disillusioned to pray. Remind us all, in Thy great mercy, that we should never become discouraged but always look to Thee in prayer for the solution of our problems.

May we have peace, we pray Thee, in our City and justice, equity, and good will for all our citizens.

Amen.

* This group consists of laymen of Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant faiths.

CORE head blasts link to dynamite as 'lies'

PHILADELPHIA — William Mathis, executive secretary of the Philadelphia Branch, Congress of Racial Equality, Tuesday morning, blasted statements to the newspapers and other "nebulously called police statements" linking CORE with the discovery of dynamite and the arrest of persons connected with another organization.

Speaking at a press conference at CORE Headquarters, 2229 N. Broad St., Mathis said "this is the only CORE Headquarters and meeting place" as he said his organization "took exception to quoted statements by Deputy Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo, making an attempt to link CORE with what police consider a conspiracy of civil rights organizations to store arms and explosives."

SAID MATHIS, "for Frank Rizzo, the newspapers or anyone else to say some location in the news are used as common meeting places or offices by CORE with others, is a tactic and an unmitigated lie."

Mathis, who said that he was later told by police that the mention of CORE's name in news articles following the raid on three alleged SNCC offices, was "the way newspapers handled it", "it was a statement of inference", said Mathis, "inasmuch as some of our people have been out on the picket lines with other organizations."

He spoke specifically of an item contained in the dynamite raid stories over the past weekend, when where it was quoted that "the site (where the Dynamite was found) allegedly houses SNCC, the Conress of Racial Equality, and the Young Militants".

One item referred to the raid site as providing a meeting place and serving as sleeping quarters for the organizations mentioned.

"I DON'T deny black people", said Mathis, but I do deny crime', he said that none of the individual arrested were members of CORE.

Concluding the "session, Mathis said, "there are those who control the world, and those who are permitted to use".

Why Jehovah's Witnesses abandoned Sunday Schools

WASHINGTON

Where does the primary responsibility lie for the spiritual training of children?

To many the obvious answer is to the church. But a dissident voice is heard among Jehovah's Witnesses, who will be holding its convention at Memorial Stadium in Baltimore, August 17-21.

"Whether it is accepted or not, the main obligation rests upon parents" declared David Bell, Sr. of 836 Crittenden St., NE Washington. Being both a parent as well as a minister of Jehovah's Witnesses Bell is qualified to present their viewpoint.

* * *

MR. BELL and his wife, Ora, are the parents of three sons David Jr., Larry and Bryant and a daughter Sheila. As for his ministerial status Bell is the director of Home Bible Studies for the Woodridge Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.

"Parents have generally abdicated their responsibility to give their children necessary spiritual training in favor of so-called 'Sunday schools," Bell said.

But the Scriptures make it plain that children are not to be segregated for religious instruction but are to "be taught by their parents at home and along with their parents at congregational meetings."

THIS IS why the Witnesses abandoned Sunday schools long ago.

Among Witness families the father gathers his wife and children together in the living room at least once each week and conducts a one-hour study of the Bible with them. All participate. In addition, he sets the example by taking his family to the five weekly meetings of the congregation and training them to take part.

"In our home study we use a Bible study aid as a guide," Bell explained. "We are currently studying a book entitled 'Things In Which It Is Impossible for God to Lie" and it is prepared with questions on each paragraph."

HE OFFERED to demonstrate. The lesson was from a chapter entitled "God Lives! How We Know It." Each member of the family had his own book and Bible.

"In what manner can the existence of God be proved beyond doubt?" asked Bell.

Larry, who is 15, was the first to raise his hand and upon being recognized by his father answered: "By the evidence he gives of his existence and of his activity."

SEVENTEEN - YEAR - OLD David Jr. added an illustration. "Take India's Taj Mahal for an example," he said.

"It didn't come into existence by itself. It took a man's intelligence and the ability of design to construct it.

"Well, then, it is reasonable that it took someone with intelligence and ability of design to construct the universe and that would have to be God."

MRS. BELL commented on the wonderful and fear-inspiring way in which man himself is constructed and the impossibility of his coming into existence by mere accident.

Finally Bell rounded out the discussion by having everyone look up the Bible Book of Herbrews Chapter 3 Verse 4.

Daughter Sheila, who is 10, was asked to read aloud: "Of course every house is constructed by someone but He that constructed all things is God." Sheila commented that this verse proves conclusively that God exists.

* * *

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD Bryant, who was sitting quietly on the floor, now raised his hand to be recognized. When acknowledged, he imparted the information that God's name, according to the Bible is Jehovah.

Mr. Bell then called on David to read the entire paragraph from the Bible study aid, after which the study proceeded to the next one.

* * *

"STUDIES COMPARABLE to this are carried on each week by families of Witnesses all over the world," Bell said.

"A chief objective of this family hour is to unite the family in worship of God and to cultivate appreciation for spiritual values.

"These are among the happiest and most worthwhile hours we spend together," put in Mrs. Bell, "because they strengthen the ties between parents and children by offering an opportunity to talk with one another about our hopes, problems and plans in worshipping and serving Jehovah God."

ADDITIONALLY, THE family attends five weekly meetings of the entire congregation at their Kingdom Hall, 3126 South Dakota Ave., NE. All are designed to increase understanding of the Bible and to improve the efficiency of the Witnesses in their public ministerial activity, regardless of age.

Mr. Bell, who is 43, supports his family by working as a presser in dry cleaning establishment, spends at least ten hours each month in the actual house-to-house preaching and teaching work.

Additional hours are spent in the work that accompanies his position of responsibility in the congregation. But time is still set aside for the family to enjoy recreation together.

CHILDREN RESPOND to such spiritual training, Bell avers. Sons David and Larry are planning careers in the full-time ministry. As for Sheila and Bryant, well, they have a few years yet before they're ready to make up their minds.

The Bell family exemplifies Witness families all over the world in their approach to spiritual training for their children.

This is one of the reasons why the annual conventions of the group are always liberally attended by entire families, right down to the infants, as will be seen during their five-day "God's Sons of Liberty" District Assembly in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium starting August 17.

More than 50,000 persons are expected to attend the sessions of Bible talks, discussions and staged dramatizations.
