Finan tours Fourth Dist. with Welcome

Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan, candidate for governor, and his ticket mates, Francis (Bill) Burch for attorney general and Louis Goldstein for comptroller, swung through the Fourth District on Monday.

"They were well received. People seemed happy to meet them. Finan visited the block on Pennsylvania Ave. where the current police probe is under way," a spokesman from the sponsoring Fourth District Democratic Organization said.

Joe Neal, retired labor leader, made the tour with Senator Verda Welcome and other members of the organization who are backing Finan's ticket in the Fourth.

The tour included a breakfast with members of the Baptist Ministers Conference and a luncheon with area businessmen.

The Rev. George A. Crawley Jr., conference president, tangled with Mr. Finan at the breakfast over his stand on open occupancy but later "the majority" of the conference members will support Finan.

HE SAID he believed "most ministers are satis-

600 attend salute for Del. Mitchell

Vice President Hubert Humphrey sent his personal representative to read his "endorsement" of the candidacy of Delegate Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd for one of the Fourth Legislative District's two state senate seats, before 600 guests who gathered Wednesday night in the Howard Room of the Civic Center.

In personal greetings read by John Stewart, his legislative assistant, the Vice President praised the legislative record of Delegate Mitchell and said:

"This is the first time that a candidate for the state senate of Maryland has been endorsed by the Vice President of the United States from downtown Los Angeles."

U.S. Senators Joseph D. Tydings and Daniel Brewster urged a large turnout on Sept. 13 to elect a new governor, Carlton R. Sickles, who would be responsive to the interests of all the people, rather than the will of a few.

Congressman Sickles declared, "We won't have a fair housing law, mass transportation, a state road program unless you elect Clarence Mitchell and the Sickles action ticket."

DELEGATE MITCHELL introduced the 4th District Sickles action team consisting of Attorney Lena King Lee, A. Eugene Chase, Isaiah Dixon and William E. Roberts.

Attorney Archie D. Williams, himself a candidate for state comptroller, urged the election of William H. Murphy for judge of the Orphans Court and Frank Conaway and Arthur Murray for clerks of Circuit Court and the Court of Common Pleas.

He described the Court House as the most segregated "house" in the state of Maryland and urged that integration begin there in this election.

Dr. John E. T. Camper recalled the march to Annapolis in 1942, when there was no representation in the state legislature.

Judge Robert B. Watts urged reelection of the sitting judges.

Other guests included Edgar A. Love, Clinton Bamberger, candidate for attorney general, former mayor Philip H. Goodman, now candidate for congressman in the 7th District.

Music was by Cornell Muldrow and the Bim Bam Boo Trio and Andy Williams and the Brothers We.

AFRO poll

Welcome, Mitchell lead in 16th

This is the AFRO's sixth poll in the 4th District. It still shows Sen. Verda F. Welcome and Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd in the lead for the two state senate seats.

This poll was taken in the 16th Ward.

This was the question:

If you were to vote today, for whom would you vote for state senator in the 4th District?

Here are the choices of the persons interviewed.

Finan, Sickles lead 16th Ward

An AFRO poll taken this week in the 4th District's 16th Ward showed a vast majority of citizens still undecided on their choice for governor, but Thomas B. Finan and Carlton R. Sickles were far in the lead.

This was the question:

If you were to vote today, for whom would you vote for governor?

The 16th Ward is bounded roughly by Laurens, Baker Sts., and Franklintown Rd. north; Fremont Ave. east; Edmondson Ave. south and the old city line west.

Here are the choices of the persons interviewed.

Athlete guilty of assault

An Edmondson High School varsity football and basketball star, identified by his victim through photos in the school's 1966 yearbook "View", has been found guilty of assaulting a 16-year-old girl after the Douglass High senior prom last June.

The 19-year- old Edmondson June graduate who says he has a scholarship to Virginia State College is Floyd Thomas, 3400 block Edmondson Ave., one of eight children of a steelworker.

The youth was convicted in Criminal Court Tuesday by Judge James K. Cullen after a trial that lasted nearly three hours before a courtroom crowded with students of both schools.

The incident according to testimony took place in Leakin Park in the early morning hours after the June 8 prom.

Despite testimony of the Edmondson principal, Carroll S. Rankin, who described the athlete as "a fine young man deserving another chance", Thomas faces a prison term that can range

Youngster dies of malnutrition

"He was always a sickly child and he was under a doctor's care. He would eat and I gave him vitamins every day, but he didn't seem to get any bigger."

The eight-month-old son of Mrs. Romona Gorham, 25, 1400 block Montpelier St., was taken to Union Memorial Hospital Monday by a social worker who visited the house while his mother was collecting her donable foods at the Department of Public Welfare.

After two days of treatment for malnutrition and pulmonary edema and dehydration, the youngster died early Wednesday morning at the hospital.

Mrs. Gorham, mother of five, said she had asked a neighbor to look in if the baby cried during her hour-long trip to the Welfare Department.

THE SOCIAL worker told police she was let into the house by the oldest son, eight years old, and upon seeing the youngest child, had him taken to the hospital.

Under her arrangement with the Welfare Department, Mrs. Gorham receives $215 a month in payments collected from her husband. Of that amount, $70 is spent for rent, not including gas and electric.

'Little' businessmen get loans and new program

By ROGER J. NISSLY

The man's small upholstery business was limping along. His records fit neatly in a brown paper bag. He owed money to the government.

Today Joseph F. Brown's hopes for his business are considerably higher. He plans to employ two other people, is the recipient of a $4,000 Small Business Administration loan and is learning about bookkeeping and business management.

The change in prospects, something short of a miracle, was wrought in less than three months by a new arm of the poverty program, which expects to aid hundreds of poor but amibitious businessmen get the financing and training they need.

Mr. Brown's is one of the first two loans to have been approved for Baltimore after submission by the Small Business Development Center, located at 1873 N. Gay St.

SEVEN MORE loans, totaling $71,000, are currently awaiting approval of the Small Business Administration.

According to Henry H. Scarborough, executive director of the development center, the service it renders — "service" is a key word to his picture of the role of the center — is aimed at small businessmen who would or have been turned down for loans under normal business channels.

Mr. Brown is typical of the persons for whom the program was drawn up.

(The center has set a goal of $1 million in loans during the first year. Each person must qualify on his own, but the center gives him the know-how to be able to qualify).

Mr. Brown, 45 years old, has 17 years experience in the upholstery business, which he learned just after the war in a trade school in Boston. For the last four years he has been in business part time for himself.

He was one of the first persons to come into the center shortly after it opened June 15.

All his records were carried in a brown paper bag, and, as Assistant Director Ralph Johnson recalls, the receipts did not have dates on them and bookkeeping was non-existent.

He, like 80 other men, has been going to a managerial training class in the center and the office's staff will help him start a set of records and advise him to employ an accountant to keep them up to date.

HIS LOAN for $4,000 for machinery and inventory was approved Aug. 9, the first in the local program.

His shop, the Jocelyn Upholstery Co., at 2037 W. North Ave., will employ two additional men under an on-the - job training program with Carver Vocational-Technical High School.

The assistant director said that a short survey of the city has shown upholstering to be a lucrative, but almost forgotten practice, with most businesses saying they have more work than they can handle.

The second recipient of a Small Business Administration loan is Harold Nash, 43, who will open a distributorship for Fuller Products at 504 N. Gay St.

His loan for $5,800 was approved Aug. 22.

Mr. Nash has worked for the cosmetic firm for 14 years as a salesman and sales manager. He had been approved for the distributorship but was unable to find financing.

The new firm will employ about 20 people, mostly recruited from among the indigent, and about 90 per cent of them will be housewives.

Under the poverty program's business center, recipients of loans are not required to put up a percentage of the funds as is necessary with regular Small Business Administration loans.

Authorization for the program came under Title IV of the 1964 poverty legislation.

The long - range goal is

Minister on ballot, despite ban on seating

By MAX JOHNSON

The 2nd District's Democratic primary ballot carries the name of an ordained minister, the Rev. Olin P. Moyd, a candidate for the House of Delegates.

Maryland's Constitution, however, forbids the seating of ministers in the General Assembly.

Why then has the Rev. Mr. Moyd been certified to the ballot?

Lloyal Randolph, acting chief clerk, Supervisors of Elections, had this answer:

"It isn't the role of this office to take action against his filing.

"Should he win nomination and election, it's up to the General Assembly to seat him and the courts to act on any appeal."

THE REV. Mr. Moyd is on the 2nd District's Robert L. Dalton for Senate slate, fielded by the Associated Civic Democratic Councils.

Paul J. Cockrell, attorney and head of this organization said he will take the case to court if need be, should the minister win election.

Mr. Cockrell contends the state law is a violation of rights guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution, which in turn takes precedent over the state's Constitution.

A bill to repeal the ban on seating ministers in the legislature, introduced at the past session of the General Assembly by Sen. Verda F. Welcome, never got out of a Senate committee.

The Rev. Mr. Moyd is pastor of Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, 2300 block Reisterstown Rd.

2nd D. Dem. club names slate

The ticket of Thomas B. Finan, gubernatorial candidate, was endorsed Tuesday in the 2nd District board of governors of the Associated Civic Democratic Councils.

Also unanimously endorsed were these city-wide candidates:

Judge of Municipal Court Judge Robert B. Watts;

Judge of Orphans Court — William H. Murphy;

Sheriff —St. George I. B. Crosse 3rd;

Clerk, Circuit Court 2 — Arthur Murray;

Clerk, Court of Common Pleas — Frank M. Conaway.

THE ORGANIZATION is headed by Paul J. Cockrell.

State Senate —Robert L. Dalton;

House of Delegates — Floyd B. Adams, David L. Evans Sr., Titus Garnett Jr., and the Rev. Olin P. Moyd.

State Central Committee — The Dalton Ticket: — Washington K. Jones, Messrs. Dalton and Garnett.

The Councils also endorsed Charles E. Moylan Jr. and Edward A. Garmatz for reelection.
