Norman Gibson wins divorce from his wife

Norman Gibson, of 1708 Light St., divorced Mrs. Tessie Gibson, who, he testified, deliberately told him that she was leaving him for another man.

The husband added his wife carried out her intentions, but was not now with the man.

As a matter of fact, said the husband, the man is on his way to the House of Correction to serve a five-year term for an attack on Mrs. Gibson which necessitated 38 stitches in her throat.

The Gibsons, married on June 22, 1959, ended the union in May, 1962.

The divorce decree was issued Wednesday in Circuit Court.
