see it."

Mr. Agnew spoke of the progress of the past, of his efforts in mediating racial disputes. He included the Gwynn Oak Park demonstrations among several.

He spoke of the role he played as county commissioner in setting up the Human Relations Commission and getting fair employment and public accommodation laws in Baltimore County:

"We should continue the movement forward." Mr. Agnew continued, "I would like to see the housing problem broken loose."

HE REPEATED and described in detail his purpose to sponsor open occupancy liquidation for all new construction, but rejected the importance of it as a major issue.

He stated that each new community built must be open to all.

"The people would then move in with full knowledge and good faith."

"We must be practical," Agnew said in answer to criticism of his housing stand. "Must we wait to achieve the total package or should we go now and make a start?"

Pledging his assistance in areas of job opportunities, health, welfare and education, Agnew asked: "What good is privilege if the money is not there."

"There must be jobs and money," the candidate asserted.

Mr. Agnew spoke of "green power" to make things meaningful.

HE SPOKE of the need of graduated income tax.

He offered a subtle criticism of the Taxes regime.

"Lack of action on part of the State government creates a vacuum in which the Federal government must step and act.

"A government must invest in the future of its people.

"Maryland for so long has presented a beautiful balance sheet with nothing invested in the people."

in creating employment for the people who have no jobs and to improve the lot of the working man. He promises better schools, to clean up the slums, and to support civil rights.

"He sponsored and succeeded in getting passed in the Baltimore County Council a strong public accomodations law, and a fair employment practice law.

We believe he is the best choice of the Citizens of Maryland.

"TO CROSS party lines may be difficult for some, But my own record on progressive legislation for state fiscal programs, state aid to education, and for labor and civil rights legislation leaves me and the people I represent, no choice.

"I cannot be associated with those who would turn back the clock on progress in Maryland, during these crucial times.

"I urge all citizens, regardless or race or creed, who care about the future of our state, to join in voting against racism, and for progress, by supporting Ted Agnew for Governor."

the 28,000-member teachers' organization, which is meeting in Baltimore for its three-day 100th anniversary celebration.

Final votes on the assembly's legislative program, resolutions and amendments will come at its second session Saturday morning, before adjournment.

At that session the first colored president of an integrated state teachers association in the country will be installed.

President-elect of MSTA for the coming year is Everett G. Pettigrew, supervisor of Elementary Instruction in Anne Arundel County.

THE KINDERGARTEN proposal advocates state funds for assistance for kindergarten programs in operation (as in the city) and for those which might be started, beginning in Sept., 1968.

Other aspects of the legislative program introduced at the first day of the convention which is drawing about 20,000 Maryland teachers to Baltimore — include:

1. Raising foundation aid schedule from $340 to $400 per pupil.

2. Raising salary scales, including those for qualified teachers, from $4,800 - $7,000 to a new range, $5,100 to $7,400 in 10 steps.

3. Raising administrative and supervisory salary differentials.

4. Increased State support for school construction.

5. Increased teachers' staffing ratios from 45 per 1,000 pupils to 48 per 1,000.

6. Improved retirement benefits.

7. Increased support for higher education.

In addition, MSTA will push for a tax reform, bill and duty free lunch periods for teachers.

RESOLUTIONS expected to be passed by the assembly Saturday include: support for "complete integration . . . lawfully, fairly and expeditiously effected" by individualized programs for students, academic freedom, recruitment of teachers for disadvantaged areas without discrimination.

In the most significant amendment to its constitution, the assembly will vote on whether to establish a Committee on Professional Rights and Responsibilities.

The committee, to be composed of 15 members with three - year terms, would handle duties in this area which were formerly the responsibility of the officers of the organization.

Mr. Pettigrew chaired the committee which studied the need for the new committee and drafted the amendment.

VISITORS TO this year's Centennial Celebration also are being treated to a full round of general sessions at the Civic Center and local schools, departmental meetings and 350 school suppliers' exhibits.

A free concert, open to the public and featuring 600 members of the All-Maryland Band, Chorus and Orchestra, will be held tonight (Friday) at the Civic Center at 8:30 sponsored by the Maryland Music Educators Association and MSTA.

NEW Old Fitzgerald 86.8 proof mild, 8 years mellow!
Old Fitz PRIME STRAIGHT is the most flavorful Bourbon ever bottled at popular proof!
Here's why the first "new" Fitzgerald in 70 years can bring you such mellow "smoothed-out" flavor . . . gentle 86.8 proof:
We took time to make PRIME. Eight full years in the oak give it a rich, vintage flavor which only our kind of sour mash Bourbon can ever achieve.
Look for the handsome new gold-capped bottle with grey-green Limestone label. You can't mistake it for the familiar Bonded OLD FITZ bottle, which remains the same.
Compare it with any whiskey, American or foreign. (You'll have trouble matching its age and pedigree at anywhere near the price.) Mighty mild . . . mighty mellow! We think you'll want to adopt OLD FITZ PRIME, unless you're already a Bonded OLD FITZ man. In that case, carry on!

hosted by the Hon Raymond Pace, Mr. Parks delivered the principal address at the ceremony. He was introduced by Mr. John Brandy, vice president of Radio WDAS.

DIRECTING HIS address to the "positives" rather than the negative aspects of the race struggle, Parks called upon "minority groups thinking and seek to enter to break out of ghetto-red thinking and seek to enter the mainstream of economic activity."

While at the same time, he urged business and industries of this country "to completely open up its doors and engage in strong action to compensate for 100 years of denial by device and intent."

Pointing specifically to economic freedom as a positive step towards ultimate freedom, Parks enjoined minority groups "to develop business attitudes and businessmen. We must learn to spend our money where it where it will do the most economic good," he said.

"Recognizing that we cannot yet afford the luxury of mediocrity, we must establish better than good business areas such as tailor shops, gasoline stations and along the line through franchie operators: into the field of manufacturing wholesaling: and into the management fields of our giant industries."

HENRY PARK, who is president of H. G. Parks, Inc., manufacturers of the famous Parks Sausage, and who has owned and operated diverse businesses including drug stores, concrete and cinder block manufacturing and real estate sees the existing tragedy in America as the economic duplicity of the colored community.

This community, he says, spends 27 billion dollars annually. Most of this money is earned outside the community. "It is spent once and winds up outside of the area again." He urged the community to combat this effect by "attracting industry and having "its money turn over many times within the same community."

PARKS WHO IS a diplomat and leader as well as a businessman, has served in baseball, and particularly the contributions of the Robinsons, Frank and Brooks, representatives of both races he said. "We can all remember the trendations under which his career blossomed and football opened their doors and recruited colored members."

But he emphasized "It is important for us to note, as a nation, the significance and great value of the fact that colored Americans are striving to become part of the team.

Closing on a strong positive note, he said, "We are not seeking to destroy. Our loyalty over the years has seldom been questioned. Our effort to move forward could be one of the most positive forces existing today."

Husband said he preferred second woman

Mrs. Mary F. Davis of Philadelphia won a divorce from Frank Davis of 1602 Gwynns Falls Pkwy., this city, custody of their six-year-old daughter and $12 per week for the child's support, here, Thursday.

Mr. Davis must also pay $100 arrears in child support.

Mrs. Davis said that she and Mr. Davis were married on January 11, 1958; and separated in August, 1959.

Finally, she said, he told her that he preferred another woman to her, and left.

MRS. DARLENE A. JENKINS of 1119 N. Bond St., testified that Levi Jenkins of 2518 W. Fayette St. told her that he didn't want a wife.

She charged him with desertion, saying that they were married on Nov. 5, 1961 and that he left two months later.

Her maiden name, Crump, was restored.
