Ex-track great Ray Norton sprints for Calif. legislature

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Ray Norton, the great sprinter of seven years ago, is now running for office in what he figures to be the biggest race of his life.

"This is my first venture into politics," says the lean, young man who was named North American Track Athlete of 1959 then sustained a heart-reversal at the 1960 Olympic games. "But I feel that this is a time for a non-political type of person to seek office. I've lived in this section all my life and I know the problems involved."

His campaign slogan is "my job is more jobs." And he thinks that he has a good chance to be elected to the California legislature from the 17th Assembly District.

Norton, a Republican, says that "quality employment and quality housing" are musts for his fellow citizens in the district.

"THE BIGGEST" Issue is unemployment in a district where we also have the highest property tax rate," candidate Norton declares, but in a soft manner not generally associated with political oratory.

Among his backers he lists Clem Daniels of the Oakland Raiders along with Roland Lakes, John Thomas, Bernie Casey and Jim Johnson of the San Francisco Forty Niners.

Norton, a poised young man of 29, still works out occasionally on the track. But those days of the 100 and 220 yard dashes are memories.

I've been doing legal work with the Treasury Department of the telephone company and also help in youth work by conducting track clinics," Norton says.

* * *

HIS OWN starring years on the cinders came in 1959 and 1960 when he was stopping the watches at 9.3 for dash at the Penn Relays.

But en rodte to Rome for the Olympics, Ray came down with dysentery and lost 12 pounds. This cost him both sprints, in which he twice placed fifth.

I never did get that weight back," he says. "I still was light when I joined the Forty Niners."

* * *

THEY HAD drafted him for his speed as a halfback and he stayed with the club for three seasons. This was the era when some of the gridders were fretting because of Coach Red Hickey's hard-boiled tactics.

"And a lot of the guys who didn't agree with the management were traded away," Norton recalls.

He feels that the United States may be in for a rough time at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

"Too many of our athletes retire at their peak," he said. "Those in other nations have an advantage because it is made possible for them to keep on competing after they are past college age."

But Norton's main concern now is getting elected and doing a good job for the district.

"It's time for more action and less talk," he says.

Jury nixes Cepeda bid for million

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— A jury of eight women and four men has decided against Orlando Cepeda, former San Francisco Giants' first baseman, in his $1 million damage suit against Look Magazine.

The verdict came late Wednesday night after a 12-day trial in which Marvin Lewis, Cepeda's attorney, asked for the damages on grounds that the magazine has 14 libelous statements in the disputed article, entitled "Orlando Cepeda—Can He Slug His Way Out of the Doghouse?"

"For the hurt of this boy, for the agony he went through, I don't think it is to much to ask one million dollars from a company worth 23 million," Lewis said in his final remarks.

* * *

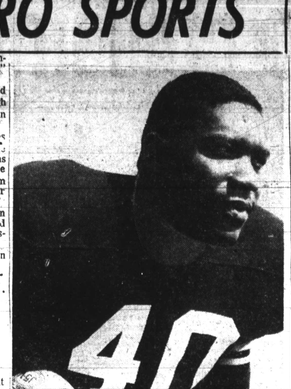
THE SUIT stemmed from a feature written by Tim Cohane of Look in the issue of May 21, 1963. A parade of Giant stars and high brass testified during the trial. These included Willie Mays, Willie McCovey, Juan Marichal, club president Horace Stoneham and vice president Chub Feeney.

All testified that they never regarded Cepeda as being in the team's "doghouse." But Look spokesmen contended the article was fair comment and did not damage Cepeda's reputation or earning power as a ball player.

CEPEDA was traded last May 8, to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Ray Sadecki. While Sadecki was not effective for San Francisco, Cepeda hit .301 at St. Louis and was named UPI's National League "come-back player of the year."

Cepeda, when the Look article appeared, was a holdout with the Giants. Latter he hurt his knee, which cut his effectiveness at bat and in the field.

He was shifted to the outfield to make way for McCovey at first base. Since the Giants has plenty of good outfielders, they traded Cepeda for a left-handed pitcher.



BOWDOIN BACK — Horace Sessions, a junior from Baltimore, Md., is fullback on the 1966 Bowdoin College team. Aside from acceptable credentials as an offensive player, Sessions is a defensive standout for the Polar Bear eleven.

Pirates threaten Bear homecoming

By SAM LACY
Baltimore

In collegiate football, that which is known as the "unkindest cut of all," notwithstanding the grammatical liberties, is to have a team which doesn't figure to beat you come along and knock you off at your homecoming celebration.

This can be especially brutal if your team is riding the crest of a 2-year streak without defeat and playing host to an eleven which, on its recent past record, doesn't appear to belong in the same field with you.

* * *

YET, that is well within the realm of possibility tomorrow (Saturday) when defending champion Morgan State entertains Hampton Institute and a raft of old grads are back for the annual gridiron reunion.

At least, it is possible if Morgan coach Earl Banks is to be taken seriously.

I KNOW it sounds like the old tune," Banks told the AFRO on the eve of his sixth homecoming since moving from Maryland State College in 1963 but we are going to have to be up for this game.

"Winning last week from A and T, which I called one of our 1966 turning points, meant a lot. However, it remains to be seen whether we can keep mentally ready for this one.

"Hampton isn't the same Hampton team we've been beating in recent years. Coach (Brutus) Wilson's scouting reports tell us they have a lot of enthusiasm, which explains in some degree why they're 4-1, with only a narrow loss to Norfolk State.

* * *

"THEY HAVE the CIAA's leading rusher in Sandy Bowers, and the fourth leading rusher in Edward Tomlin. Bowers and Tomlin are tied for second in the conference in scoring.

"What's more," Banks went on, "they are right behind us in rushing yardage as a team. They are right up there in total offense and defense.

"With boys with those kind of credentials, the Pirates have to be taken seriously."

THE PIRATES ran roughshod over Morehouse, 65-0, and they're third in total defense in a non-conference game, then beat Shaw, Delaware State, Virginia State and Howard in CIAA competition. Their only setback was at the hands of Norfolk, by one touchdown, 35-27.

As Banks points out, Bowers, a freshman flash from St. Louis, Mo., has gained 542 yards. 200 more than his nearest rival, Angelo Coffee of Virginia State. His fullback teamMate, Tomlin, from Ocala, Fla., has rushed for 317 yards in five games.

WHAT THE Morgan tutor didn't mention is the fact that the Buccaneers' quarterbacked by Lionel Williams, a sophomore from Houston, Texas, who is third behind Livingstone's brilliant Alfred Tyler in passing with 5 touchdown throws. Or that the Buccaneer punter, Dave Hamilton, has a shade edge over Morgan's dine kicker, Isaac Jackson.

Fairmont seeds seventh victory

WASHINGTON

The Fairmont Heights Hornets will seek their seventh straight gridiron victory today (Friday) at High Point, in a non-league game.

The Hornets have not lost in six contests and are ranked third in the AFRO top Five. Only one touchdown has been scored on them, all season.

Foes for Powell trying too hard to unseat him

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two enemies of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., banded together in state supreme court Wednesday in an attempt to bar the veteran Harlem congressman from winning re-election Tuesday on the grounds that he is not a resident of New York State.

Lassen L. Walsh, GOP contender for Powell's seat in the 18th District, asked Justice Thomas Chimers to order the Board of Elections not refuse to certify Powell's election to the New York Secretary of State, as required, if he is elected.

Walsh's attorney Norman C. Harlowe, said an investigation showed that Powell had spent only one night in the past year and a half at his listed address, a Harlem office, where he slept on a couch.

* * *

"I HAVE BEEN informed that Mr. Powell spends most of his time, when he is not either in Washington or on some trip, in a home in Bimini in the Bahamas or on his boat," Walsh's petition said.

Joining in the petition was Raymond Rubin, attorney for Mrs. Esther James who was awarded $161,000 in a slander suit against Powell but has not been able to collect. Rubin said he had spent a lot of time and money on private detectives trying to locate Powell's actual New York State address and found there was none.

Pressman refuses to say he won't run for Mayor

Does Hyman A. Pressman, Independent candidate for governor, plan to run for mayor next year if he loses in his gubernatorial bid?

There has been so much general speculation on this question recently, the AFRO asked Mr. Pressman directly Wednesday.

Mr. Pressman refused to give a direct yes or no answer.

Here is how he replied to the query:

"I never heard of a governor of Maryland running for mayor of Baltimore. I don't think it will happen."

* * *

DID THIS mean he really expected to be elected governor? Mr. Pressman was asked.

Mr. Pressman did not answer that directly either. Instead, he launched into an attack on Spiro T. Agnew, his Republican opponent for the governorship.

BUCKER — A Birthday tribute on November 8th to the memory of my wife and our mother, BEULAH, who passed away July 29, 1961:
If we could have our fondest wish,
The most wonderful in the world today;
We would wrap it up in loving words

Because we miss her so."

But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life.
Husband — JAMES GRIFFIN and FAMILY.

GROSS — In loving memory of our dear grandmother, OLIVIA GROSS, who passed away November 4, 1965:
If we had seen you to the last

We did not know the pain you had,
We did not see you die.
We only know you went far away
And never said goodbye.

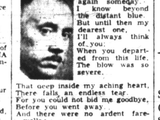
WILSON — A tribute of love to the memory of my beloved son, PERCY H., who passed November 6, 1957:



I'll meet you again someday,
I know beyond the distant blue.
But until then my dearest one,
I'll always think of you.
When you departed from this life,
The blow was so severe.
That deep inside my aching heart,
There falls an endless tear
For you could not bid me goodbye,
Before you went away.
And there were no ardent farewells
That you or I could say so
I'll live with thoughts of you
And all you meant to me and
Memories I can feel you near.
If just in memory.
Although I may sound sad and blue,
Only those who have lost can tell,
Just what it means to lose someone.
You've loved without a fond farewell.
LOVING MOTHERS, THELMA BEE
