Shirley Pollard, secretary, crowned 'Miss Beaux Arts'

"I very, very happy. I'm thankful for strangers who voted for me as well as friends. This is beyond my wildest dream."

A beaming new "Miss Beaux Arts" was gushing her gratitude over having been overwhelmingly chosen over five other contestants.

Her unrestrained delight and happiness added to the moving farewell of her pert precedessor, combined to give the already glittering "Bal Internationale" still another dimension.

Such was the state of affairs Friday night at the height of the Ninth Annual Coronation (three in Baltimore) of "Miss Beaux Arts," sponsored jointly by the Baltimore Urban League Guild and the F. and M. Schaefer Brewing Company.

This year's "Miss Beaux Arts" is in reality a "Mrs." She is Mrs. Shirley Pollard, secretary to Parren J. Mitchell, executive director of the Community Action Agency; mother of a seven-year-old son and wife of a career Army sergeant.

Mrs. Pollard, who polled three times as many popularity votes as her nearest rival, received a $1,000 cash award, a year's modeling contract from Schaefer, plus a year of public appearances in behalf of the beer firm.

• • •

OTHER CONTESTANTS who received consolation prizes of $225 each were:

Mesdames Ann Cook, secretary, Department of Public Welfare; Elaine Lee, secretary, University of Maryland; Margaret Sessoms, Neighborhood Development assistant; Judith Speight, an IBM operator; and Miss Henri Daniels, social worker.

Mrs. Pollard, who is married to Sgt. Morris Pollard, stationed at Fort Meade, is a graduate of Western High School and completed training at a Washington professional modeling school.

She succeeds Miss June Thorne, a popular "Miss Beaux Arts," who is one of the most talented actresses of the Arena Players. Miss Thorne is a public school teacher.

How does she feel after her one-year reign? Here is what she said:

"The past year has been an exciting parade of unforgettable experiences. I have come to the conclusion that the 'Miss Beaux Arts' program is one of the finest showcases and one of the best opportunities I — or any woman — could have to display and express herself in an area of influence which so seldom presents us the privilege to put our best foot forward."

Miss Thorne said much more, all of which registered big with the 250 persons in attendance who gave her a standing ovation.

• • •

A UNIQUE sense of creativity heightened the sparkle of the gala event as reflected in the ingenuity of the costumes, which won $100, $50, and $25 prizes.

First place went to Leonz Newsom and Mrs. Louise Johnson, who combined their talents to create "Godess of the Sea." Miss Urseline Nobel, parading as "Miss World" took second and Miss Weldine Gillis, a living "Carman Miranda," was third.

Doug Douglass was master of ceremonies and judges included Mrs. Melinee Yerrell, Samuel T. Daniels, Del. Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd, and George W. Collins.

Carolyn Dotson, the first local "Miss Beaux Arts," presided at the coronation. She was assisted by Andrew Cooper, Robert Green, and Walter Wilson, all Schaefer representatives.

St. Peter Claver gives vote guidelines

The St. Peter Claver Church bulletin advises:

The vote on the redistricting plan for the City Council is very important. We want fair representation.

Therefore, we urge vote No on Question A and vote YES on Question B. Pass the word around among your friends and neighbors. . 'for the Nov. 8 election.'

On the matter of the NAACP membership drive, the Bulletin said: We are trying to help get memberships for the NAACP. This is the father of all civil rights groups, and has done a great job through the years in destroying hate and prejudice and protecting us against if whenever and wherever it shows itself. The minimum membership in the NAACP is $2. We have envelopes in the Rectory.

Baltimore Symphony Society debuts at Morgan; 500 applaud

ADAH K. JENKINS

With a distinguished intercultural audience of over 500 in attendance the Northeast Baltimore Symphony Society made its bow Sunday on the local music scene with a concert by the Baltimore Symphony in the Carl Murphy Auditorium at Morgan State College.

In the new surroundings the Berlioz overture to the opera "Benevenuto Cellini" seemed to acquire luster and dramatic punctuation in the grand style which the French master delighted to use.

Ginastera's "Concert Variations" for the smaller chamber orchestra, also proved more gratifying on second hearing. It's modern suggestions, a la Gershwin jazz and blues, combined with South America rhythms, elicited hearty applause.

Charmingly youthful Mayoko Yamane, as guest soloist, gave the Beethoven Concerto in C Minor an authoritative interpretation. Whether it was the particular instrument she preferred or this is her own style, she seemed to use a strongly percussive touch, even in the slow, lyric movement.

However, Miss Yamane's fleet fingers produced a brilliant performance that, combined with the musicality orchestral support earned hearty commendation.

The zestful humour of Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel" and a delightfully melodious encore concluded the concert.

• • •

IT IS to be hoped that a complete shell for the stage will be provided for future concerts, which will be a double benefit for conductor and performers, and visually for the audience.

The exhibit of "Arts of Africa" in the auditorium lobby attracted many, including some residents of the area who were making their first visit to the college.

The Northeast Symphony Society joins the Eastern Shore, Howard County and Greenbelt Sonfiles in "bringing the message of good music through Maryland's major symphony orchestra".

The series at Morgan bids fair to become one of the most popular of the season, with this additional concert program:

Thursday Dec. 1, with Kalman Banyak, violinist and new concertmaster; Friday, March 3, conducted by Elyakum Shapira (soloist to be announced) and Wednesday, May 3, with Jeanette Walters, soprano.

ADDITIONAL subscriptions for the balance of the concerts at a reduced price may be placed with Mrs. Catherine Adams, CL. 4-1941 or Charles Flynn, ID. 3-5553. No seats are sold for single concerts.

Rev. Paige on Sunday Sermon

The Rev. Walter E. Paige pastor of the Faith Baptist church, will deliver a sermon entitled "Christian Missions and World Brotherhood" on Sunday Sermon on Nov. 6, at 9 a.m. on WBAL-TV 11.

The choir will be under the direction of Mrs. Celia McLeod. Presented in cooperation with the Maryland Council of Churches.

20 foreigners due BURHA study

The Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency will be host next week to 20 representatives of nine nations in Asia, Africa and South America, who will be given five days of orientation and training as part of an Urban and Regional Planning Workshop sponsored by the Agency for International Development.

Philadelphia, Washington and Norfolk are included as training cities in this year's workshop which began Oct. 5.

BEAUTY CULTURISTS MEET — Leaders and officials of the 14th annual regional conference of the Middle Atlantic Region No. 2 of the National Beauty Culturists League, Inc. met last week, Saturday and Sunday, at the Military Park Hotel, Newark, N.J. to discuss problems of the beauty culture field. Pictured above are Mrs. Pauline Berry of Trenton, N.J., state president; Mrs. Estelle Campbell of Washington, D.C., assistant superintendent; Mrs. Ruth Matthews, of Washington, D.C., regional superintendent; Mrs. Luna Jones, Newark, N.J., general chairman of the conference; Mrs. Florence B. Reid, Norfolk, Va., recording secretary; Mrs. Cleolis Richardson, Philadelphia, Pa., state president; Mrs. Maude Gadson, New York, 1st vice president; Mrs. Dorothy Troas, Baltimore, Md., regional educational director; Mrs. Margaret C. Mitchell, Baltimore, general secretary and Maryland state president. Mrs. Marvin Calloway, Buffalo, N.Y., state president. Persons attended the conference from six states.

Oriole brass to be honored

The Maryland Professional Baseball Players Association announced Wednesday that Jerold C. Hoffberger, board chairman of the Baltimore Orioles, and J. Frank Cashen, Oriole executive vice president, will receive special recognition at the 14th annual "Tops in Sports" anquet here, January 13.

Both will receive plaques for their outstanding work in helping to bring the first baseball world championship to Baltimore.

HOFFBERGER AND Cashen will join Oriole slugger Frank Robinson as head table guests at the banquet, which each year attracts baseball personalities from all over the country.

Robinson is slated to receive the association's coveted Babe Ruth crown and will be honored as the Orioles' Most Valuable Player" in 1966.

Christianity over morning coffee

How would "Christianity over morning coffee" sound? Many housewives and night workers may be looking for such a discussion hour, unable to meet at night.

On Wednesday, Oct. 5, 10:30 a.m. in the Catholic Information Center, 320 Cathedral St., a new series of "Information Classes" on Catholic Christianity will begin.

The Rev. James F. McCabe, C.S.P., director of the center, will conduct the 90-minute sessions for any adult seeking knowledge or insight into Catholic beliefs and practices. Two women co-instructors will assist him during the 15-week program.

No cost or obligations are requested and free parking is provided.

J. C. Myers

Joseph C. Myers, 40, 1121 N. Monroe St., an employee of the American Smelting and Refinery Co. for 18 years, died Saturday at University Hospital.

Funeral services were held Thursday at the Herbert E. Nulter Funeral Home.

Burial was in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Mr. Myers was born in Baltimore. He attended the old Douglass High School and was a member of Sharp Street Methodist Church.

He was the only child of Mrs. Ada Adderly and Sterling Cobley, who survive.

IN ADDITION to his parents, Mr. Myers is survived by his wife, Mrs. Cloteius S. Myers and his stepfather, Charles Adderly.

Five sons, Joseph, Michael Andre Mark and Ricardo Myers; five daughters, Misses Yvonne, Barbara, Deborah, Denise and Cheryl Myers, all of Baltimore; and a granddaughter, Michelle Anderson, also survive.
