At Mahoney headquarters, teens chanted: 'Two, four, six, eight'

By ROGER J. NISSLY

Alabama's Gov. George Wallace captured 43 per cent of the vote when he appeared here in a primary in 1964 and claimed victory.

George P. Mahoney polled little over 40 per cent Tuesday, but he could not claim even a "moral victory."

From the beginning in his campaign headquarters at the Sheraton-Belvedere Tuesday night, the home-is-your-castle rooters seemed to sense he had lost.

The results, at first all wildly favorable to the candidate's seventh try for office, hardly caused a stir among some 100 stalwarts in the early hours.

A polite smattering of applause greeted such unofficial results as 344 to 52 and 261 to 65 in favor of Mahoney phoned in by precinct workers.

• • •

THE GATHERING, outnumbered at times by newsmen, cautiously cheered the first Associated Press count putting Mahoney ahead 1,054 to 566.

When the early official count turned against Mahoney, the totals were duly posted on the grand-total board, but were not changed the rest of the evening. At that point Mr. Agnew led 140,406 to 125,514.

By then ABC-TV had already declared Mr. Agnew the winner.

A man wearing a double-breasted suit started at one of the three TV sets with the volume turned low and intoned, "I don't believe it."

• • •

THE CROWD which later grew to about 200, not knowing the election had just been lost, sat through most of the evening silently watching the big board with the unchanging early reports from three counties and the city.

The silence was broken only by a wandering group of pre-teen Mahoney workers, who shouted "two-four-six-eight, who do we appreciate? Mahoney! Yea."

A matronly lady advised them to "real loud, say it."

One group broke the wake-like atmosphere by periodically shouting "Regan won" or "Maddox is ahead" and then cheering to liven things up.

A wandering guitar player with the unfathomable legend "7/6 Boss Newspapers" on his derby hat and "MAHONEY" on his instrument, sang made-up verses about Mr. Agnew's campaign money:

"They gave me some millions to take back with me.

"I should have taken them and gone out to sea."

• • •

UPSTAIRS ON the third floor, the losing candidate's campaign managers watched the TV reports which were far ahead of those posted in the ballroom and hopefully decided to wait until all the votes were in.

Campaign manager Paul J. Reed Jr. appeared in the ballroom to advise the crowd "don't be discouraged."

A man knowingly told his wife, "They take precincts and they project them. It's not over yet."

The disembodied voice of the guitar player drifted over the P-A system with "Give My Regards to Mahoney" to the tune of "Give my Regards to Broadway," then one line of "Everyone wants Mahoney," when his mike was shut off.

Around 10 p.m. victorious Attorney General-elect Francis Burch and Comptroller Louis Goldstein appeared to lend some quiet joy to the affair.

Then the atmosphere subsided to that of a morgue again, with the crowd dwindling and about half of them waiting for Mr. Mahoney's concession speech.

Even John Pica, councilman from the Third District, jokingly suggested to Mr. Reed that "I'm going to introduce open housing legislation. It's the mandate of the people."

Finally the 64-year-old millionaire businessman, defeated for the seventh time in 17 years, did appear at 11:30 emotional and sad-faced.

In a short, rambling speech he thanked "all the ones that did a magnificent job for me in this election. . . . the ones that worked 24 hours a day . . . to help me to be a successful candidate."

Graciously he congratulated "Mr. Ted Agnew for his magnificent victory. I wish him well. I wish him good health."

Hoping that the Democratic officers will "cooperate with Mr. Agnew thoroughly," he also offered to be at the administration's "beck and call."

He announced to the "members of the press, "I those with cameras, the radio stations" that "I have no feeling of bitterness."

• • •

THEN AFTER answering one question whether he would run again ("I would much rather not commit myself"), he seemingly oblivious of the other microphones thrust at him, turned to leave the platform.

As he was leaving, someone lumped on top of a chair to shout, "We'll never have forced housing!"

By 11:40 it was over.

'Watching' Schools For 25 Years

By STERLING PAIGE

Twenty-five years of 'watching' Baltimore Public Schools came to a close last week for Sampson D. Ruffin.

Mr. Ruffin, Area Supervisor of Operations since 1954, was honored at a retirement testimonial on Friday.

In attendance at the surprise luncheon were Assistant Superintendents Dr. Houston Jackson and Dr. Saul Perdue; also Associate Superintendent of Administration, Dr. M. Thomas Goodeke.

• • •

MR. RUFFIN first entered the school system as a custodian in 1941.

A well-known hotel worker for years, he was seeking the regularity of hours and the security not found in hotels.

The custodian job paid a salary of $1000 per year.

"R was not the matter of money," Mr. Ruffin said, "I felt that it was a job in which I could advance, even with my little formal education."

• • •

THEN followed 11 years of self-imposed study and job-required hard work.

He took a high school equivalency course and earned a certificate at City College.

Mr. Ruffin earned certificate after certificate, diploma after diploma — ever increasing his abilities:—

Engineering, Carver Vocational Evening School — 1951 Building Service Employees, Teachers' College at Columbia University, N.Y., — 1952; Boiler Plant Operations, — 1953; Swimming Pool Operators' and Managers Course, College Park — 1967; School Temperature Control Maintenance — 1958.

And, finally, an instructor's certificate from the Building Care and Operations Workshop at Frostberg State College — 1964.

HE WAS soon promoted to chief engineer in charge of Dunbar High School.

Here, he supervised the work of the two engineers employed in the school.

In 1952, Mr. Ruffin was assigned to the Division of Operations as Supervisor of Plant Engineers, with his office at 3 E. 25th St.

There, he was one of three men in charge of engineers in all Baltimore public schools.

• • •

ANY SCHOOL with heating, ventilation, cleaning, or maintenance staffing problems was handled by the supervisor who got there first.

This was often the conscientious Mr. Ruffin, who never shirked duty and responsibility.

Two years later, he was named Area Supervisor of Operations.

From that time up to his retirement last week, he was one of eight area supervisors who served the four school districts.

• • •

THE 31 school buildings under his wing in the Northern District included City College, Mergenthaler, Eastern High, and Hampden Junior High.

Between 250 and 300 men were under his direction.

Areas of heating, cleaning, ventilation, and staffing were the responsibility of Supervisor Ruffin.

"The Area Supervisor serves as liaison between school principals and the Department for things that needed to be done to the buildings," he explained.

IF A problem occurred at a school building, no matter what the time, the Area Supervisor was called.

"I received more calls between midnight and 5 a.m. than at any other time," Mr. Ruffin recalled.

"We were always on call 24 hours a day."

It was also his function to supervise and rate all employees under his jurisdiction.

Recommendations for promotions were made by him.

• • •

"THE CARE of swimming pools was in our hands too," he said. "Pools require special knowledge for proper care and testing to meet the City requirements."

Care of school grounds was another responsibility.

In later years, Mr. Ruffin served as instructor for in-service training of employees.

He was also often called upon to participate in workshops throughout the State to assist in the training of employees.

At such times, he was "loaned" out by the Baltimore Public School to company systems and received numerous commendations for his assistance.

• • •

MR. RUFFIN was born in Waverly, Va. He lives at 2417 Druid Hill Ave. with his wife, Erminie.

He has been a member of Metropolitan Methodist Church for more than 30 years.

He is a 32rd degree Mason and is Past Master of the Joseph L. H. Smith Lodge, Prince Hall Masons.

Active in many civic organizations, he has served on the Board of Governors of the Men's Beneficial Association the past 33 years.

• • •

WHAT WAS the most satisfying event in his career?

"When I was chosen, a few years ago, to conduct and serve as a consultant for a workshop for the Board of Education of Calvert County," Mr. Ruffin said.

"I learned they had been looking around the State for someone and selected me."

• • •

WHAT IN his 67 years stands out most in his mind?

The news of the assassination of President Kennedy.

"I was at school in Mt. Washington when they told me. It was the greatest shock of my life," he recalled.

As for a career such as he has followed, Mr. Ruffin feels the school system jobs offer excellent opportunities for a good future.

"You can go all the way to the top — as high as your ability can carry you," he said.

• • •

"IT IS a wonderful thing for men with little formal education and no specialized training. Especially for those between the ages of 40 and 55 years."

He labeled the jobs "secure employment — but you must be responsible and dedicated," he added.

• • •

IN HIS retirement, Mr. Ruffin expects to have more time now for his church work

"I will be even more active and fraternal activities.

"I will be even more active in my business interests (real estate)," he said.

Mr. Ruffin is a Republican but "I worked hard to defeat Goldwater."

"We can't always stick to party lines — sometimes you must go by the man."

He also worked hard, Mr. Ruffin said knocking on doors and campaigning to help defeat George P. Mahoney.

Just like all good Republicans did. And this time he had help from good Democrats.

Fire at School

A small fire at the 74-year-old Henry Winter Davis Elementary School 125 was confined to a basement storeroom Monday afternoon.

Nevertheless, said principal Milton V. Murray, the 440 school children were evacuated from the school in less than a minute and a half.

The fire was held under control by a member of the staff until the fire department arrived, according to Mr. Murray.

Located at Pennsylvania Ave. and Dolphin St., the School, was earlier used as a colored high school.

Fire investigators are investigating the possibility that the fire was started by a student.
