WORD FOR THE GRAPEVINE

Carter, 'numbers judge,' to be out rest of year

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Lottery cases will be placed back on the Criminal Court trial scheduled next week.

According to Charles E. Moylan States Attorney, Judge Joseph Carter, known as the "numbers judge" will be out-rest of the month-long dollar racket.

Taken suddenly ill two weeks ago, Judge Carter underwent operation and is at his home recuperating.

Cases will be heard by Judge James K. Cullen until J. Harold Grady will take over.

Last week, Mr. Moylan denied lottery cases had been postponed during the police department investigation in progress.

He said they awaited advice from Judge Carter as to his wishes how they should be scheduled. Judge Carter is chief of Criminal Court judges.

NOTED FOR handing out sentences and fines to persons found guilty of lottery violation, Judge Carter had heard all numbers cases since January, this year.

At the end of the James Jackson "Beau Jack" trial two weeks ago when he found four defendants guilty of lottery conspiracy, he issued his now famous request for the Police Commissioner to make an extensive probe of the multi-million dollar racket.

Main point to stress, according to the jurist, was the case of the Missing Warrant that disappeared from Beau Jack's possession during the 1500 Pennsylvania Ave. raid in August.

At AFRO presstime, no break had come in the Police Department investigation. However, figures show a step-up in Grand Jury indictments for lottery since the Beau Jack trial Oct. 17.

Between Oct. 4 and Nov. 7, 27 persons have been handed indictments for lottery violations.

Meantime, Alan Murrell, attorney for Beau Jack has filed a motion for an appeal of the verdict which found him guilty of conspiracy.

Beau Jack and others found guilty are expected to go to trial on lottery violations coming from the raids late this month.

Spartan habit seen Bear omen

NORFOLK, Va. — Norfolk State College, if for no other reason than the pattern of their performance, is giving coach Earl Banks and his unbeaten Morgan State College eleven something to think about here tomorrow (Saturday).

"They have a good team," says Banks of the Spartans, "but I think we should be able to handle them. Except for one thing. That's their habit of winning every other game.

• • •

"THEY LOST last week (to Virginia State) and, if the pattern continues, this is their turn to win one. And it's our turn to play them.

"Look at the record," Bank goes on, "and see what I mean. They lost to Virginia Union, then beat Elizabeth City. Then A and T beat them and they came back the next week to whip Hampton.

"Last week, Norfolk got beat by Virginia State. This week, we have to contend with them. I don't like the omen."

• • •

IT MAY BE that the Bear mentor is genuinely concerned about the Spartan contest, but as he admits Morgan "should be able to handle them."

Against common foes, the merits of the two teams are not to be compared.

Morgan trounced both Virginia Union and Hampton.

The Spartans bowed 32 - 17, to Union, a team the Bears smothered, 66 - 7. Norfolk's margin over Hampton was six points, 33 - 27, Morgan steamrollered the Pirates, 69-0. . .LACY.

Charged with inciting to riot and conspiracy to riot are Paul Cordle, Edward Francis Hindle, Joseph Carroll, Charles C. Lynch and Richard D. Norton.

Among 28 witnesses to be called by Charles Moylan Jr., states attorney and his assistant Frank A. DeCosta Jr. is the small boy, who was accosted by whites while walking with his dog. Dennis Alexander, 500 block N. Chester St.

Also to appear as state's witnesses are former Acting Police Commissioner George Gelston, Deputy Commissioner George Deuchler, Lt. Col. Frank J. Battaglia.

MCIPR head denies muzzle

"I wouldn't have a desire to make policy statements without the approval of the commission."

George T. James, 37-year-old social worker who was named Wednesday as executive secretary of the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, was commenting on what had been called a "muzzling edict."

Suspicion of a muzzle on the administrative head of the civil rights agency was rooted in the fact that on other occassion MCIPR, chairman William C. Rogers has registered displeasure with statements issued by Mr. James' precedessors Parren J. Mitchell and the Rev. Herbert O. Edwards.

Mr. James succeeds the Rev. Mr. Edwards who resigned as of November to take a similar position in Rhode Island.

Both Messrs. Mitchell and Edwards, outspoken foes of inequality, often issued burning indictments against segregation in places of public accommodation without prior approval of the commission.

• • •

MR. JAMES said the impression that he will be muzzled is a misinterpretation of the edict, although he admitted it was issued by the commission before his appointment.

"I do not feel it will handicap me. I do not feel it is anything new. I wouldn't have a desire to make a statement without the commission approval," he said.

He pointed out that the edict will apply to press releases involving commission policy, and repeated his contention that it will not adversely affect the conduct of the affairs of the agency.

"I see my job as enforcing the public accommodations laws and Fair Employment Practice laws. It is my responsibility that they are complied with throughout the state.

"We will try to work out solutions through mediation. If that fail, we will take the matter to court."

Mr. James is a native Marylander and product of county and city schools and graduate of Morgan State College and Howard University with a master's degree in sociology.

• • •

HE IS a former city probation department employee and was working at the D.C. Training School in Lauren when he was appointed.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. James Sr. of Baltimore and is married to the former Miss Florence Parham. They have two children, Wesley, 14, and Jill Patricia.

AID recruiting Baltimore workers for 'the other war' in Viet Nam

Ernest A. Diggs, a Marylander, is one of a team of Agency for International Development officials in Baltimore to recruit manpower for "The Other War" in Viet Nam.

The "other war" is how President Johnson categorizes the fight U.S. civilians are conducting in Viet Nam aimed at bettering the conditions of the people of the embattled nation.

Mr. Diggs, a provincial administrative officer from MD, returned to this country from Viet Nam's Mekong Delta region a few days ago with a firsthand account of how great the need is for trained personnel from this country.

The 50-year-old native of Westminster told the AFRO at, "I think our role is equally as important as that of the military war. I think we are really showing some progress. I think that with time and patience, we'll win our war."

Herbert F. Hodge, Far East Public Affairs chief, pointed out that more than 2 million refugees in the war torn country urgently need help.

There is no age limit on workers desired ("we want young people no matter how old they are") but those chosen will have to be capable, interested and dedicated, the officials explained.

A RECRUITMENT headquarters will open Monday, Nov. 14, at 401 Water St. (on the first floor) and will operate between 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. daily through Friday, Nov. 18.

Student tells how he was shot in school

"I turned, the gun was in my face. I ducked.

"He shot. The bullet got in me the neck.

"I jumped up ... told Duckett he was shot in the head . . ."

Kirk Martin, 17, was one of two Douglass High School students shot Tuesday morning in the crowded school cafeteria.

Released from Lutheran Hospital Wednesday, Kirk was telling the AFRO about the incident, which leaves the second student, Samuel Duckett, 18, in critical condition with a bullet still lodged in his brain.

A third Douglass student, Michael T. Grimes, 17, has been ordered held in $5,500 bail on charges growing out of the shooting.

In Northwestern Municipal Court, Grimes was charged with intent to murder, possession of a deadly weapon, and unlawful discharge of the gun.

The hearing was postponed to Nov. 30.

• • •

FACTS IN the case indicate the shooting was not intentional.

It occurred shortly before 11 a.m. and left the school in an uproar.

Several of the girl students became hysterical. One failing to respond to emergency treatment at the school, was removed to Luthern Hospital for further treatment.

Martin, described as a model student, appeared for his AFRO interview with patches of bandages on his neck where the bullet had entered and made its exit.

A 12th grade student, Martin said he was passing a group of boys at a table when he spied a shiny object in the hands of one of them.

"I thought it was a cigarette lighter," Martin said.

"He took bullets from the magazine, then put the clip in the gun," the injured student related.

"I heard him say 'watch this,' and saw the gun point-

Robbed couple to court: 'Crooms wanted us dead'

A minstrial was declared in Criminal Court Thursday afternoon the third day of the hearing for Pedro Finley Crooms and Ellis R. Douglas in the alleged robbery of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burman last May.

The jury of 12 men and a male alternate was dismissed by Judge James A. Perrott and search for another panel proved unsuccessful since most other available persons had left the courthouse.

The new trial may be set for the first week in December if the court docket allows a three-day hearing.

During two separate days of testimony, Mr. and Mrs. Burman described the horror of the two-hour ordeal when they were handcuffed and threatened with death at gunpoint Sunday, May 29.

Their assailants were identified as Crooom, 44, 2500 block Druid Park Dr., and Douglas, 21, 2000 block Madison Ave., in the service four years as a paratrooper.

Both the husband and wife testified Crooms directed Mr. Douglas to kill them. Burman testified "It it hadn't been for Douglas's efforts to save us we would have been dead." Crooms wanted us dead."

• • •

THE BURMANS told the court the total money missing from his pants pockets and her bureau drawer was nearly $ 2,000. Jewelry was also missing.

Both denied any former connection with Crooms or Douglas. Under defense attorney's questioning, Mr.

Body Found After Fire But Aged Woman Was Slain

Arson Squad investigators reported late Thursday night that what was first believed to have been a 71-year-old victim of a fatal fire at 1645 W. North Ave. turned out to be murder.

Mrs. Lucky Fields' body was retrieved from a burning building shortly after noon Thursday and pronounced dead on arrival at Provident Hospital.

During postmortem examinations, police reported that it was determined that Mrs. Fields had sustained several stab wounds.

The body was taken to the Medical Examiner's office for an official determination of the cause of death.

At presstime, Det. Sgt. William Rawlings was questioning suspects picked up shortly after the fire later today, police reported.

No information on Mrs. Fields' survivors was available late Thursday.

Hate rally crowd put rope about neck of beaten youth

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

One of the highlights of the States Righters trial in progress in Criminal Court today (Friday) was the Wednesday afternoon testimony of the boy with the black dog who was attacked by a mob of whites during the July Patterson Park riots.

Both the state and the defense rested Thursday. Final arguments go to the jury this morning (Friday). A decision is expected this afternoon.

The youth, whose attack on the street near the park was shown in front page news pictures around the world is Dennis Alexander, 16, 4600 block Pimlico Rd.

According to his testimony from the witness stand to a crowded courtroom, he was chased, dragged to the ground, stomped and kicked by about 25 white youths.

However, the climax of the youth's account of his experience during the evening of terror came when he stated.

"A boy put a rope around my neck."

Calmly answering questions of the prosecutor, States Attorney Charles E. Moylan Jr., he revealed members of the Baltimore police department, in the area over 500 strong, arrived at the scene just in time.

The white youths fled and the police removed the rope from his neck.

• • •

THEY PLACED him in a police car and drove him to the home of his aunt on North Chester St. he stated. He was staying there for the summer during his employment at a nearby crabhouse, he said.

The flogging of the youth took place on Orleans St. near Patterson Park Ave., he told the court.

His dog, a 140-pound Newfoundland, was also kicked and beaten with bottles, he stated.

Describing the scene, he also revealed his small cousin, a 10-year-old was walking with him when the mob was sighted coming toward them from Patterson Park.

He stated there were screams saying, "There's a n——. Don't let him get away."

He said he possibly could have escaped but stayed long enough to let his cousin get away and thus fell victim to the attack.

Sustaining a cut on the head, he was treated at home by relatives, he testified.

• • •

YOUNG ALEXANDER's testimony is a portion of the evidence placed before the court and jury of six men and six women by the state to show the riot was incited by States Righters.

States Attorney Moylan and his aide, Frank DeCosta Jr., ask that the members of the white supremacist group on trial be found guilty of several charges including inciting riots, riots, profanity, cursing and swearing on public streets, disorderly conduct, disturbing the peace in a public park, conspiracy and other charges growing out of the occurences between July 22 and July 28.

Tape recording of the talks in the park, films, both silent and sound made on the scene of the riot, testimony from high-ranking police officials, including Acting Police Commissioner Gelston and the Rev. Herbert Edwards, eyewitnesses, were made a matter of record as states evidence.

On trial are Joseph Carroll, Charles Conley Lynch and Richard Berry Norton.

Rep. Powell faces new jail threat

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., Thursday was ordered to report next Wednesday Nov. 23, to begin serving a 30-day jail sentence for criminal contempt of court, arising from his failure to pay a $164,000 libel judgment.

Supreme Court Justice Matthew M. Levy signed the order for the arrest of the controversial congressman, depriving Powell of his congressional immunity and the legal loophole which heretofore had made law officials powerless to arrest him on Sundays.

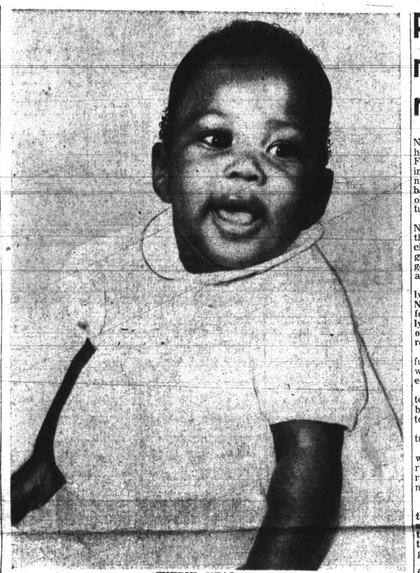
The order instructed Powell be served with the order personally, or by registered mail, at his home in Manhattan; at his Washington, D. C. office, or at "his abode in Bimini, in the Bahamas," where Powell is reported to be now.

• • •

POWELL'S ATTORNEY, Henry R. Williams, previously filed a motion before the Appellate Division of Supreme Court, to be heard Nov. 22, seeking a stay in the imposition of sentence on the grounds Levy lacked jurisdiction to try Powell for criminal contempt.

Powell has evaded paying the libel judgment for more than three years, He was convicted of referring to Mrs. Esther James, a Harlem widow, as a "Bay woman," or a collector of graft for crooked police officers.

Previously, since, the libel suit was a civil judgment, Powell had enjoyed congressional immunity. Also, since civil contempt papers cannot be served on Sundays, the only time Powell is in New York City, he was protected from arrest.



CHERYL NEAL
20-month-old child found drowned by parents

Parents find note upon return home

When Mr. and Mrs. James Neal returned to their neat home in the 1500 block Friendship Ave. from visiting a relative Wednesday night, they discovered their baby daughter, 20 months old, had drowned in a bathtub.

The young couple told Northeastern District police that they had left their only child in the care of the baby's grandmother while they were gone from the house from about 8 to 11 p.m.

When they returned shortly after 11 p.m., Mrs. June Neal, 25, told police they found their daughter, Cheryl, lying face - up, unconscious on a bed in an upstairs bedroom.

The child, still wet, was fully dressed in pajamas which were also water soaked, according to police.

"I tried to give her mouth-to - mouth resuscitation," a broken - hearted Mr. Neal told the AFRO the next day. "But you could see she was turning blue."

By 12:05 a.m. the baby was pronounced dead on arrival after an ambulance rushed her to Union Memorial Hospital.

• • •

ACCORDING TO police, the Neals found when they returned their home that the front door was open and the baby's grandmother was gone.

Inside, Mr. Neal said he found a note on the coffee table, saying that she was on her way to the bus station to go back to her home in Bluefield, W. Va.

Police detained the grandmother, Mrs. Damella Leasure, 57, at the bus station and are holding her for questioning.

"We had just gone to visit a brother - in - law for a few hours," Mr. Neal, a chemist, said Thursday. "We are both terribly upset."

He added that the grandmother had been visiting with the family for about a month.

MR. AND MRS. NEAL are both graduates of Bluefield State College in their hometown of Bluefield, W. Va.

Mrs. Neal is a physical education teacher at Hampstead Hill Junior High School.

The couple was married two and a half years ago in June. Mrs. Neal graduated from college in 1963, two years after her husband's class.

They settled in Baltimore several years ago. Mr. Neal said, after he was released from the Army, having served as a specialist at Edgewood Arsenal.

• • •

POLICE SAID the grandmother had been released from a mental institution in Bluefield about a month ago.

Dr. Charles Petty, of the Medical Examiner's Office, stated Thursday that the case has been officially ruled "a drowning from our point of view."

Tough to predict pupil outbursts'

How disturbed are our children?

A student goes berserk at a public school in Baltimore, A Mesa, Ariz. youth kills five people in a beauty parlor. Or, jumping on a fellow student, a youngster becomes so enraged he cannot hear commands from authorities to stop fighting.

How disturbed are our children?

At least 25 percent of the nearly 200,000 students enrolled in an urban school system, such as Baltimore's need extensive psychological help, estimates Dr. Paul Yaffe, former supervisor of educational services for local schools.

• • •

NEWLY APPOINTED director of educational testing services for the schools, Dr. Yaffe has always spoken persuasively of the psychological disturbances which hamper pupils' responses to educational situation.

"As high as 20 to 25 percent cent of the pupils need help of some kind, and if they don't get it, it will affect their ability to learn," he said in an interview Wednesday.

The least maladjusted 15 percent of this figure need services ranging from the help of a psychiatrist to that of a social worker to that of a family counselor.

"As for the other 10 percent, a general figure, they experience a deficiency of (inner) controls to a serious enough degree to warrant extensive evaluation and treatment as well," Dr. Yaffe

Mickey Speaks found guilty of narcotics; bail $50,000

William Henry Speaks, 2300 block Eutaw Pl., was found guilty Thursday before Judge Joseph R. Byrnes of narcotics law violation. He was placed under $50,000 bond and remanded to city jail pending motion for a new trial.

Mr. Speaks, 30, is widely known as "Mickey."

According to testimony before the court, he was arrested July 23 hiding in a closet at the Eutaw Place address.

When asked out by police officers, he emerged carrying a golf bag and a black suit case.

The golf case was without clubs but held a total of $925, the arresting policemen said.

Also in the bag was the $25 the officers were looking for in the first place when they came upon Speaks.

The cash was the amount of marked money one of the plainclothesmen had given a woman on the premises for "a date."

Minutes before when they raided the house suspected of prostitution they arrested Misses Helen Harper, 23, 600 block St. Paul; Sonia Leach, 17, and Audrey M. Malenoski, 19.

All were found guilty of disorderly house and prostitution and sentenced at earlier trials.

Also discovered were narcotics, uncut, and cutting materials worth $58,000. Included were 4,000 empty capsules, spoons, measures, scotch tape, glassing bags, cooking paraphernalia.

Speaks is under Federal Court indictment for narcotics violations and the government has seized his two Cadillac cars and one buick auto.

On Wednesday, Frank DeCosta Jr., who prosecuted for the state when Beau Jack and the others were found guilty of lottery conspiracy, told the AFRO these particular cases are being held out until Judge Joseph Carter returns to the bench.

According to John Henry Lewin, also an assistant in the states attorney's lottery division, the jurist known as "the numbers judge," will preside in Supreme court when recovery from a recent operation permits.

However, Mr. Lewin said, he will return to Criminal Court long enough to preside at the Beau Jack trials, "the second or third week in Jan-
