TESTIMONIAL

Mrs. Derry turns table on guests

By BETTYE MOSS

Affable Mrs. Gladys Holland Derry, retiring Baltimore school principal, turned the tables on her hosts at the testimonial dinner in her honor on Friday evening.

She used the occasion to elite her fellow workers, her teachers and her husband for their contribution to her successful 40 years in the classroom.

The testimonial, held in the ballroom of the Sheraton - Belvedere Hotel, was sponsored by the faculty of Samuel Chase Elementary School No. 135.

• • •

MRS. DERRY'S table - turning climaxed the affair. She said:

'I have been associated with the Baltimore School System since I was five years old and my mother grasped me by the hand, registered me in the first grade at Biddle St. School.

'. . . one of the greatest joys for me tonight is that my first grade teacher is present tonight, Mrs. Georgia Boston.'

Then she lauded the 'wonderful committee, the faculties of Schools No. 104, 103 and 101,' where she also served, observing:—

'They are truly dedicated individuals, exerting every effort for the welfare and development of the pupils in their care.'

She singled out her husband, Dr. Harold Derry, a platform guest, for his 'continued devotion and loyalty.'

• • •

THE HONOREE also used the occasion to give a final lesson to her associates. She reminded them:—

'We are living in a world where rapid change and progress are the keynote of the hour.

'If you would meet these challenges you must stand ever ready to continue study in order that your teaching program will be more effective.'

MRS. GLADYS H. DERRY
'She turns the tables at her testimonial'

As to teachers' role with children, she advised: 'It will only be through your expert training and sane guidance that they (children), will be able to meet and overcome problems and obstacles.

'Despite all your efforts and training,' she cautioned, 'you will not be successful unless you reach the parents and interpret for them the aims and objects of the school.'

• • •

LESTER B. WALLACE presided at the testimonial. Wilbert Merchant extended the welcome, and presided at a humorous 'This is your Life' skit.

Her minister, Father Donald O. Wilson of St. James Episcopal Church, and the Rt. Rev. Cedric E. Mills, Episcopal bishop of the Virgin Islands, and former minister of St. James, offered prayers.

The Teachers' Chorus of School No. 135 sang. Mrs. Charlotte P. Swan gave piano selections, the honoree's favorites.

• • •

OTHER PROGRAM participants were her former teachers, principals, school officials and friends. They were:

Mrs. Edith M. Thomas: 'Her understanding of human frailties, is an inspiration she gave us.'

Miss M. Rosalind Allen: 'She had the ability to keep attuned to her students' problems.'

Mrs. Margery Prout: 'I am grateful for having an opportunity to work with her.'

• • •

TEACHERS, MRS. Alma A. Adams, Mrs. Leanna Ferrell, Mrs. Maryann Torain and Mrs. Marie Berry, remembered her as a master teacher, and for her love freely displayed.

Mrs. Edith V. Walker, assistant superintendent of schools recalled her 'patient' work with boys and girls;

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Houston R. Jackson, as an 'excellent teacher, outstanding principal, who never had a new school but enthusiasm and desire to provide gave superior service;

Mrs. E. Romaine Jones, area director, who hailed her as 'a teacher of teachers;' and as one whose a good instructional program for children was infectious, whose 'interest, persistence and dynamic personality,' brought happiness to many.'

• • •

MISS HERMIONE E. WHARTON, a retired teacher and lifetime friend, presented the gift on behalf of the testimonial committee.

She recalled their friendship begun in high school in 1913, and has continued through the years.

She repeated dinner guests with stories of the experiences of 'my friend,' who 'impressed faculty and students alike with her own high ideals and her warm and affectionate personality.'

• • •

OTHER PLATFORM guests included J. Percy Bond, and Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Moss, both members of the Board of School Commissioners.

Mrs. Gladys H. Stewart was chairman of the program committee.

In addition to those named, other members were: Mrs. Ruby Lewis, Mrs. Betty A. Pierce, Mrs. Beasie A. Richardson, Mrs. Juanita C. Blackwell, Mrs. Lillian S. Layton, Mrs. Regina D. Logan, Mrs. Charlotte B. Polson and John Nelson, who was absent on account of the death of his mother and Mrs. Ruth H. Fauntleroy.
