Prayer Of The Week

Send us forth each day, O Lord, believing in the goodness of this world, seeking it without ceasing, recognizing it when we find it with great joy, sharing it with others. Bless us, help us, grant us kindness and peace, this day, Amen.

Unqualified Candidates

The AFRO gathers there is some apprehension as to whether the colored people of Baltimore might elect unqualified candidates for public office, and whether colored people will vote solely on the basis of race.

We will probably elect some bums and roll up a good majority for some fellows we like.

But it will be to the extent that the general population does the same thing.

WE CAME to this state on the Ark and the Dove 300 years ago.

Many of us have lived here these three centuries, free, black, 21 and of repute as decent as any other people. We may be tempted as are Catholics, Protestants, Jews, Italians, Irish or Germans to vote for our candidate and see him succeed.

A HALF century ago we elected Hiram Watty, Harry Cummings and Warner T. McGuinn to public office.

None of them was charged with conflict of interest, excessive charges for paving contracts or corralling the city's insurance business.

Fact is that Marylanders like U.S. Senator Hiram Revels nearly a hundred years ago couldn't get elected to public office here, but other states were happy to have us as judges and congressmen, and we suspect, as dogcatchers.

IN THE last election there were some 30 colored candidates for public office, all of better than average intelligence and all with more than high school education.

We did not discover any nuts among them. Nor do we expect to be entirely free of "far outs" in the future. Times would not be normal if we did not produce our share of crackpots.

In charity we shall not mention some perennial candidates for office on the other side. It is not necessary to do so. They spoke for themselves.

OUR SYSTEM of government succeeds because the average citizen can be depended upon to make the right choices.

We modestly confess colored people as voters will make the city average and, as always in the past, produce some super citizens like Ben Banneker, Harriet Tubman, Frederick Douglass and Thurgood—Thurgood Marshall, that is.

THE EVENING SUN intimates that we may be better served by an able and imaginative white councilman or state senator than by a mediocre one of our own race.

This, we think, is poor advice no matter what its source — counsel which we should ignore and wish had been left unsaid.

The decision as to how any citizen shall vote is one for him alone to make. No one should seek to make it for him.

If Adam Has Immunity

A California congressman, one Lionel Van Deerlin, wants Adam Powell barred from taking his seat in the House.

Powell, he says, refused to obey court orders requiring him to pay damages or go to jail in a law suit.

Powell, fighting what he calls his immunity to arrest or conviction while he is in Congress, has not exhausted all lawful channels of appeal.

Mr. Van Deerlin argues that Powell could not be accepted for army enlistment, nor would he be accepted by Selective Service.

Therefore, if the armed forces will not take Powell, neither should Congress.

Stupid argument.

Adam Powell is too old to be drafted or to enlist.

Drafted For What?

Secretary of Labor Willard W. Wirtz declared this week that neither a military draft lottery nor a deferment system is the answer to our youth problems.

The nation's method of selecting young men for military service is a small part of a larger need.

That need is a fair and effective method of distributing the opportunity for youths "to make sense out of their lives."

THE QUESTION of whether a college education should be interrupted by a call to military service is not important to a family denied a college education in the first place.

Many dropouts have to play a bingo game in seeking a job.

The secretary's recommendation is establishment of community opportunity boards to be composed of an educator, doctor, minister, businessman, labor leader and a boy and girl aged 16 to 21.

As part of a national system, young people would be required to register on reaching 18 or quitting school.

There is as much need to require every American youth to "register" for living as well as for fighting.

The board could not dictate or compel youngsters to follow one course or another.

But acting as the youngsters' agent, it would seek to assume every American has the opportunity to spend his or her critical years in getting ready for what comes afterward.

We would then be moving toward a situation in which it would be normal to enter employment two years later—using those years for preparation — instead of leaving it two years earlier when there is (so far) nothing to do.

Secretary Writz's reasoning is excellent. His recommendation should be examined with care by all of those who must exploit new means of dealing with problems of young people.

Senator Welcome In Charge

Who is running the 4th District Democratic Club?

There were pre - election complaints that it was running itself and in all directions at the same time.

If this be true, it has been remedied now.

In the quiet, early evening hours last week the club held an election of officers.

The result, a new slate supported by Senator Verda Welcome is in control.

The opposition was taken by surprise and offered no resistance after the Welcome nominee for club president was elected 43 to 39.

The Welcome strategy that worked began with a campaign several months ago that brought in and indoctrinated new members.

The nominating committee's slate was not accepted and the voting for officers was by secret ballot.

Many organizations about to go to pieces can be saved by new members and the judicious use of Roberts Rules of Order.

There are 7 other clubs in the 4th District and 9 in the 2nd, each with its own leader.

Working agreements among the clubs will probably determine winners in coming elections.

Robinson's $100,000

The Baltimore Baseball Club, world's champions, will raise the price of stadium tickets next year.

It was expected. You can't have the best team in the world without paying more for it.

First off, there are rumors of Frank Robinson's $100,000 new salary. He is the most valuable player in his league, hit the most home runs, knocked in most runs and recorded the highest batting average.

Besides Frank Robinson, there are others who are due extra pay—Brooks Robinson, Boog Powell, Luis Aparicio and Russ Snyder.

It may seem immodest of us to be discussing how much pay Frank Robinson shall ask of Oriole owners next year, but it is the usual thing with the stars, whose good years may be limited.

Mickey Mantle draws $105,000 with the Yankees and Willie Mays $125,000 with San Francisco, Hank Aaron, $65,000 with Atlanta, Maury Wills, $70,000 with Los Angeles.

Eagerly attentive to all of this talk is Uncle Sam. He collects a tax on every ticket and from Robbie's $100,000 (if he gets it) Uncle will take $43,450 in income taxes.

Jackie Robinson got his start in professional baseball. Sports writers estimate his holdings worth one and one half to two million dollars.

We haven't said anything about football where Joe Namath will earn $400,000 over four years with the New York Jets.

And basketball, where Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell pick up $100,000 a year, Oscar Robertson, $80,000 and Elgin Baylor, $75,000.

The real front on the cake comes from professional prize fighting.

Cassius Clay's purses last year totalled two million dollars.

Floyd Patterson, who seems to be a better handler of money than any other fighter except Gene Tunney, is said to be worth from two and one half to four million dollars.

Number Of Mixed Flight Crews On Major Airlines Increasing

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Colored airline pilots and stewardesses still are a rarity. But the number of integrated flight crews is growing — though slowly.

American, the first big airline to hire a colored pilot in 1964, now has six. That is the top number for any airline, and several of the major ones have no colored pilots.

Colored stewardesses have been on the job longer, and their numbers are increasing at a faster rate than colored pilots, a UPI survey shows.

UNITED AIRLINES is the pacesetter. It has 30 colored stewardesses, and 3 in training, out of a total of 3,000.

According to airline spokesman, the big problem in recruiting colored pilots is finding technically qualified applicants.

The airlines draw most of their manpower from the armed forces. "But qualified colored pilots seem to prefer to stay in the service and make it a career," the spokesman said. A pool of qualified colored pilots outside the military is non-existent.

But if a colored pilot does have the qualifications—a minimum of around 800 hours flying time on multi-engine jets — he can be considered a prize. "Right now four airlines are competing for one colored pilot," an airline source said.

SOME OF the major carriers still have all - white cockpits. National is one. Brandt another. But that airline said the reason has nothing to do with discrimination — just a lack of qualified applicants.

None of the airlines queried said there was any problem integrating its personnel either with the flight crews or the passengers. "There were some crank letters and very minor incidents, but on the whole it did not create a ripple," is the way one airline source put it.

Delta, whose routes cover the deep South, is training six colored stewards. As yet it has no colored stewardesses. United has three colored pilots on its 4,600-man roster.

Trans World, Pan American, and Eastern each has one colored pilot.

The colored stewardess is becoming more of a common sight.

UNITED'S TOTAL is the largest. American has 22 flying, three more in training, and another three applications have been accepted, a spokesman said.

Pan Am has eight out of a total of 2,733, and Eastern has a total of 19. National and Delta have none.

Several of the airlines have been recruiting on college campuses for colored stewardesses. One carrier even sent a recruiting team to several women's job corps centers.

Airline officials point out that the biggest employment gains by colored persons have been made in the non-flying areas.

THERE NOW are colored sales representatives, ticket agents, reservationists, as well as mechanics, baggage handlers and floor sweepers, an airline source said.

One source said that total colored employment in the airline industry ranges from three to five per cent, or in the neighborhood of around 8,000 men and women.

Curtis On 'Operation Champ'

Readers are invited to submit letters for publication. All letters must be signed but signatures will be omitted if requested. Letters should be no more than 300 words in length. Address them to "Our Readers Say," Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN, 628 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore.

Dear AFRO:

I take this opportunity to attempt to answer some of the many questions put to me relative to (1) the Western Police Youth League, Inc. and (2) Operation Champ.

I am no longer the associate director of the Western Police Youth League, Inc. or the assistant city project director of Operation Champ. I am in no way associated with either.".

To answer at least some of the specific questions of which I have some knowledge, I would say that:

1. Operation Champ was a federally sponsored program.

2. Operation Champ was sponsored through the Community Action Agency of the City of Baltimore.

3. The program was to run from June 20, 1966 to Sept. 2, 1966.

4. To my knowledge, Operation Champ does not have the financial backing of the Baltimore City Police Department.

5. As originally written Operation Champ did not cost the taxpayers of the City of Baltimore any money. (Other than what is usually paid through federal income taxes).

6. Operation Champ may or may not function in the summer of 1967.

7. There is no longer any gymnastic equipment purchased through Operation Champ at the Harlem Park Recreation Center, (Calhoun St. at Harlem Ave).

8. The Instant Program Truck was donated by the Delivery of Baltimore, Inc.

9. The Harlem Park Recreation Center is no longer the headquarters for Operation Champ.

10. John A. Faulkner is the director of the Harlem Park Recreation Center.

11. The Harlem Park Recreation Center is under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Recreation which is a city agency.

12. I am not now or have I ever been a member of the Baltimore City Police Department.

13. Yes — I was a member of the Governor's and Mayor's Police Advisory Committee on Community Relations.

14. I do not know who the third party contractor is for Operation Champ at present.

15. I do not know how Flag-Football Champions are chosen under this program or how many teams actually participate on Saturdays.

16. Funds for Operation Champ came from the Federal Government through what is commonly known as the Anti - Poverty Program.

17. I do not qualify to sit as a member of the local Community Action Agency.

18. Please do not call me. Thank you.

Sanctions Rapped

Dear AFRO:

Thousands of Baltimore's school children have been historically subjected to an "inherently unequal," and chronically inferior education.

At this very crucial time, just after the majority of pupils in school today are colored youngsters, who bring with them the scars of 350 years of racial bondage, the Baltimore City Public Schools are suffering from its most critical shortage of instructional and resource personnel.

Tens-of-thousands of "disadvantaged school children" must overcome overwhelming odds in getting the minimum requirements to compete successfully in the rapidly automating job market.

The application of "sanctions" or "blacklisting" increases the burdens of our disadvantaged children to such extent until the vast majority will be rendered more unfit in confronting the stiff competition offered by the more advantaged children, who are much better equipped educationally to negotiate the complexities of an automated and technological society.

This is not a condemnation of teachers who are aroused about insufficient salary increases. We should applaud their collective militancy, and stand ready to join them in any type of constructive social action so long as their methods do not heap burdens on innocent children who are much more over-burdened than those of us who have gone through college.

We 'fortunates' must not ignore the magnitude and severity of this spreading crisis another day. Without delay we must assume our rightful responsibilities, and object to the misuse of "blacklisting" which will reduce the "educationally deprived" to a dastardly state of decay.

I am not happy about expressing my alarm about the lack of PSTA and MSTA officials to offer their members more constructive alternatives through which they could redress their grievances. It is irreconcilable that thousands of teachers, especially Afro-American teachers, would deliberately handicap their own pupils.

Even if the leadership is too insensitive to be concerned about their shifting of responsibility to the delicate shoulders of the kids, it is not realistic that the most selfish teacher could remain aloof to the consequence of "sanctions."

How many teachers of overcrowded "inner-city" classrooms have asked that "placement agencies" begin encouraging teachers to remain outside of the challenge of reducing the sizes of their over-populated classes?

"Is 'professionalism' so sweet, and 'higher salaries so dear', as to be purchased at the price of 'additional educational neglect of our beautiful children'?"

On Non-readers

Dear AFRO:

For a long time I was greatly disturbed by some people who boasted of not reading the AFRO.

I am not angry with these people anymore, after considering that a number of these people are poor readers or cannot read at all.

It seemed hard for them to digest that there were some of us, who were not interested in the affairs of any of us.

A family that doesn't keep regularly informed of the issues and of progress that is made is heading down a one way street.

So, if any of the AFRO readers have a friend who is ashamed to admit that he is a very poor reader, I will be glad to render without cost any help that I can offer.

I can't believe that some of us are opposed to the progress that the AFRO has been most instrumental in advocating.

PAUL D. MCALLISTER

Japanese Santas

Dear AFRO:

It is very seldom that people get a chance to offer a helping hand that will be remembered for a life time. The men here at Yamada Storage Annex have this chance.

We help support a small orphanage located near the base here in Kokura, Japan. It is operated by a few French and Japanese Nuns and a very old priest. It cares for 57 children, ranging in age from 2 to 16 years old. They are mostly girls. These children won't know the true spirit of Christmas unless we at Yamada offer that helping hand.

There are only a few of us here at this isolated station, and we do what we can to help. The men have given much of their free time to chop fire wood, and do maintenance on the houses that shelter these children of God. We don't make much money, but we give what we can each and every payday to make these children's lives a little brighter.

We have started a project we call "Operation Santa Claus," which has the purpose of providing a Christmas these children will never forget. We plan to bring the children to the base for a Christmas Day Party. You might call it "Parent for a Day."

This can never be completed unless some of our friends and neighbors offer their helping hand. If any of your readers can help, please send a gift or a donation to my commander. His address is: Commander, 6348th MMS UMR No. 2, APO, San Francisco, 96529.

Thanks for your consideration in this matter. I hope the residents of Baltimore can help us make this a memorable occasion for these 57 children.

School 122

Dear AFRO:

Mrs. I. Lake's class of School No. 122 would like to thank the people at the AFRO for the kind and polite way that we were guided through the building.

We learned many interesting things about a newspaper. We are now drawing illustrations in our classroom.

Thank you for giving us so many suggestions that will help us to work better and learn more.

Councilman Parks et al Move Up

By MAX JOHNSON

Councilman Henry G. Parks Jr. moved up this week to a higher commanding power in his 4th District—and in city Democratic circles.

Up with him went his political sidekicks — Lloyal Randolph, the Abramsons, Helaine and Murray. Del. Abramson is chairman of the city's House delegation.

It came about with the organization of the city's new Democratic State Central Committee.

They created the post of vice chairman — and named Mr. Parks to it as second in command.

Mrs. Abramson and Mr. Parks are members of the committee elected under banners of Sen. Verda F. Welcome's 4th District Democratic Organization — banners that now wave faintly over their heads, and those of Messrs. Abramson and Randolph as well.

AND THAT is some of what this is about — an untimely ruffling of these persons' feelings with that shakeup of officials last week at the 4th District Democratic Organization.

First, let's take a look at the new Democratic State Central Committee — and some of what it can do.

It consists of 18 members — with three elected representatives from each of the city's six districts.

The committee is empowered to fill city party vacancies in the General Assembly.

For example — this means Mrs. Abramson and Mr. Parks can together name replacements for any such vacancies that occur in the 4th District's delegation.

The committee is empowered also to submit to the Republicans' Governor-elect Agnew a list of recommendations from which he must choose the Democratic member of the Board of Supervisors of Elections.

The law allows the governor to use his own discretion in naming the three-member Board of Liquor License Commissioners.

The committee, further, is empowered by law to be the governing body of the Democratic party here.

All of which puts Mr. Parks and the city's Democratic State Central Committee in a more commanding position than may be suspected by cursory attention.

HERE ARE the new members and other officials by districts:

1st — Dominic Mimi DiPietro, John G. Ling (secretary), S. James Stankowski.

2nd — Robert L. Dalton, Thomas P. Kelly Jr. (treasurer), D. Chester O'Sullivan.

3rd — Frank J. McQuade Jr. (chairman), Thomas F. McNulty, Lawrence R. Kelly.

4th — Mrs. Abramson, Mr. Parks (vice chairman), Richard Goodman.

5th — Edward Azrael, Jacob E. Miller, David Sherman.

6th — Angelo Agro (sergeant at arms), John J. Hines, William J. Meyers.

MR. McQUADE, the new chairman, is an official at the Supervisors of Elections — under Mr. Randolph, acting chief clerk there.

He replaces the Pollack faction's Maxwell Alpert, in an election that saw the Pollack group's membership on the committee cut from six to three.

Back of the maneuverings that set up the new Parks post were the minds of Marvin Mandel, Speaker of the House, Mr. Randolph and Mr. Abramson, among some others.

All of which gives undisputable evidence of a strong combine of new thinking, new purpose of action by this new committee.

It would appear this is a combine for party leaders to bring to their bosoms quite friendly-like — rather than oust as club officials.

IF ALL of this sets up some sort of lesson — it must be this:

In this big business of politics — extreme care should be exercised in bucking old pros and young old pros.

They can spotlight silly, untimely moves of amateurs to quite often embarrassing degrees.

In short — if you don't know what you're doing, the pros can make things rough for you.

POETS' NOOK

RIP VAN WINKLE—1966

Wake up man-wake up!
Governor Wallace has been elected to the presidency
There is a mass exodus to the north pole—
Wake up Rip! lest you become a hostage.
Hitler rose in the very same manner
With oratory inspired by Satan himself—
Evil—man I mean evil —
Even the rattle snakes are rattling in complete terror.
Cicero, Ill. is now the United States
Capitol.
The move was by unanimous vote.
And the Supreme Court's exalted
chamber,
Is now Wallace's personal torture
chamber,
There is so much confusion and turmoil,
That Smoky Bear has set countless brush fires—
And the good boys are wearing black hats,
And to prove his loyalty to president
Wallace,
The Lone Ranger has shot Tonto in the back.
White America was heading down
bigot's boulevard,
A one-way street, where God stands at the far end—
It was written, and it came to pass—
Fire and brimstone, rained on all the continent,
Until the last rebel yell, vanished in the rubble.

AFRO Credo

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself—

Whether it has kept the faith with the common people.

Whether it has no other goal except to see that their liberties are preserved and their future assured.

Whether it is fighting to get rid of slums to provide jobs for everybody.

Whether it stays out of politics except to expose corruption and condemn injustices race prejudice or compromise.
