New twist in SS case on discrimination

The Federal Court case of Mrs. Alleyenne Davis, a Social Security worker claiming discrimination at Woodlawn, took an unusual turn Wednesday.

James H. Anderson Jr., her attorney, filed a motion to have his expenses paid saying he is performing a task the government should do.

In the motion he told Judge Frank A. Kaufman that he, Anderson, is employed as a disability claims examiner for Social Security.

Federal statues prevent a government employee from arguing cases against the government, according to Arthur Murphy, first deputy U. S. district attorney.

Anderson claims Mrs. Davis and her witnesses were harassed and the Social Security examiner hearing the case was unqualified and it was necessary to put the matter before the Federal Court.

Capt. Swan cited in Viet Nam

Cited for bravery in Viet Nam: Army Capt. Sinclair O. Swan, has been awarded the Bronze Star for bravery in battle.

His infantry unit was in battle for four hours in the early morning of Nov. 8.

Did his mother have a feeling he was in danger? Yes indeed, she sensed it, said Mrs. Sinclair A. Swan (Charlotte) of Ruxton Ave.

The younger Mr. Swan is an Army career man. He entered service shortly after his graduation from Morgan State College in 1957. He has been in Viet Nam since July.

His wife, Miriam, and their four children also live in Baltimore.

Note: Since writing the item above about the Swan family, word comes that the senior Mr. Swan, a Carver High counselor, was taken ill in school on Wednesday. He received emergency treatment at the hospital, is now resting at home — 'much better,' says Mrs. Swan.

• • •

Cyrus (Cy) Stevenson, well-known Avenue businessman (Mid - City Hardware) has been in Provident Hospital since Tuesday, was reported (doing okey) as of this writing.

• • •

PTA Note: — Pimlico Junior High's first PTA meeting on Monday evening attracted a record crowd.

Parents and guardians were able to confer with Johnny's teachers with little or no waiting, thanks to the planning of Principal Charles Brown and his faculty.

Cuff note: More and more you see both parents at PTAs. At Pimlico, spied Mr. and Mrs. Henry Neal and Mr. and Mrs. Joel Newton.

• • •

People being kind to other people: Mrs. Beatrice Figgs of the Murphy Homes (1058 Argyle, Apt. 48), is still in Cloud 9.

Day after Thanksgiving, her sister, Mrs. Bessie Flippen and her twin daughters, Mrs. Nora Henry and Mrs. Lillian Walker came down from Burlington, N.J., with turkey dinner and all the trimmings. Wasn't that nice!

On Saturday, there was another surprise, Mrs. Helen Whims and her daughter, Frances, invited all of them over to dinner.

Among other guests, Mrs. Della Evans and her sisters, Mrs. Augusta Torrence and Mrs. Evelyn Pugh of Sparrows Point.

• • •

On Sunday, the N. J. visitors were guests of Mrs. Flippen's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Flippen in Hyattsville, Md.

• • •

By the way, many know Mrs. Figgs, mentioned above, as a member of Emmanual Christian Community Church.

She tells this reporter she has been an AFRO reader for 25 years 'ever since I came to Baltimore.'

• • •

Cuff note: Have you tasted Hauswald's new Jet bread yet? It's yum-yum-yummy.

People, places, things

Special chin-up cards to Mrs. Edna Over Campbell, principal of Douglass High School.

She has managed to maintain her equilibrium despite the series of tragic incidents which have marred as otherwise smoothly run school.

When you pack 2,700 kids in a building built for 2,000, there are bound to be flared tempers and sometimes fights and scuffles which can be fatal—as was the one on Monday.

A 16-year-old eleventh grader is dead and an 18-year-old senior is in police custody.

• • •

This parent was struck by the remark of the 18-year-old in our house, who is also a senior at Douglass.

As we hurried to the office to make sure the story was on our front page (It was), she remarked, 'Try to say something nice about Douglass. Everything isn't bad at our school . . . say something about our candy sale . . .'

We explained that it is news when a child is beaten to death inside a school, and she agreed it was, but . . . say something nice, too.

The eleven-year-old commented, 'I don't want to go to Douglass when I go to high school.'

To which the 18-year-old answered: 'Well, I'm going to send my children there... everything isn't bad, there is plenty of good at Douglass. It's just some of the people. . .'

• • •

My 18-year-old's appraisal of the situation at her school indicates to this mother that her child is growing up.

Those who indict an entire school, an entire group for the violations are immature . . . and unreasonable.

Largely because the 18-year-older spoke up about her school, this parent was there when the bell rang Tuesday morning.

• • •

We found children were moving to their classrooms and ammonia to clean a floor.

• • •

Also expected but counted out at the last minute: Mrs. Pauline Brooks, the dress salon proprietor. She was in Sinai for an arm injury.

• • •

Still in: Mrs. Albert C. Burwell (Helen). She is at home, in traction with a disc problem. (painful shoulder it is.)

Edward Williams, the school principal who gave us all quite a scare, was down with the flu but is up and about now.

• • •

So is Mrs. Albert Laforest (Jimmy).

She did not get sick, however, until after Thanksgiving, and that's a blessing because she had a houseful of guests.

• • •

About for their annual Thanksgiving reunion with Dr. and Mrs. Laforest were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mullens, Dr. and Mrs. Earl Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Davis, all of D.C.

Also here in a surprise visit: Mrs. Laforest's daughter and son - in - law, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown (Jackie), of Cincinnati and their youngsters, William Jr., and Whitney Erin.

• • •

Handsome new face in town: — Norman (Norm) Skinner of N.Y. He's with the Market Institute which is doing the public relations for the American glass industry (one - way glass bottles et al.).

You'll be hearing more about him when the AFRO's Mrs. Santa program gets in full swing.

Seied him Saidee at the AGNN's party where he squired Rosemary Garrison.

• • •

Snazzy dress seen at this party was a pink number which featured a sequined G - string down the middle of the bare back.

It was worn by Mrs. Harrison Smalley (Mary), formerly of Baltimore, now of N.Y. It was pretty on her.

• • •

Songstylist Damita Jo and her husband - manager, Baltimore's Biddy Wood, were among out - of - town guests.

She is as nice in person as she sounds on her latest hit "If You Go Away."

Take a listen to it. . . it's saying something.
