B. J. Cooper takes Ohio reformatory post, a first

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Bennett J. Cooper, 45, Thursday became the first member of his race to head a major correctional institution in the United States when he becomes superintendent of the Ohio Reformatory at Mansfield.

Cooper will take over the post held by Marion J. Koloski who was named to head the new Chillicothe Correctional Institute.

Gov. James A. Rhodes called Cooper "eminently qualified" for the new position and said he was being promoted "because of these qualifications, not because of his race, color or creed."

A NATIVE of Cleveland, Cooper holds a master's degree in psychology from Western Reserve University.

Following 10 years in supervisory and executive posts at the Cleveland post officer, Cooper joined the Ohio Reformatory staff in July, 1957, as director of psychological services and was named associate superintendent for treatment in 1963.

Rhodes said Cooper was "treatment oriented" and since 84 per cent of those committed to the reformatory lacked work skills, his primary goal would be to strengthen the program of vocational rehabilitation.

TUNING UP — Members of the Maryland Youth Symphony rehearse under the direction of Conductor Angelo Gatto prior to their fall concert at the Peabody Institute Saturday.

Youth Symphony staging fall concert Sunday at Peabody

ADAH K. JENKINS

The Maryland Youth Symphony Orchestra composed of more than 90 students from 35 high schools and colleges in the state of Maryland will present its fall concert on Saturday, Dec. 3 in the concert hall of Peabody Conservatory, under the direction of Angelo Gatto.

Regis Iandioria, 19 - year-old violinist who is studying with Louie Persinger at Juliard, will be the guest soloist in the Mendelssohn Concerto in E minor.

The orchestra will also present Berlioz's "The Roman Carnival" and Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, closing with "Russian Sailors' Dance" (Gliere). The Youth Symphony of 85 musicians from public, private and parochial schools was founded by Mrs. Joseph Sherbow, chairman of the executive board of directors of the organization, in conjuction with Mr. Gatto.

Weekly rehearsals are held in the West Hall of St. Ignatius, at Monument and Calvert Sts., with a special training group of 40 students having a special rehearsal two hours earlier. As these trainees advance, they are promoted to the symphonic group.

Collaborating with Mr. Gatto is the assistant conductor Willis Keeling and Benjamin Durrant, instrumental specialist from the Department of Music in the public schools.

The Youth Symphony, which gave its first performance in June of 1964, has since performed a series of ambitious programs, all from standard symphonic literature.

* * *

MR. GATTO, who is a composer, violinist and teacher, brings to the local program a broad and extensive Symphony.

He has conducted numerous music groups in Pittsburgh, including the International Opera Company, the Civic Symphony, the Alleghany (Youngstown) Symphony and the Gatto String Ensemble.

At present Mr. Gatto is on the music faculty of Morgan State College where he also directs the Morgan - Community Opera Theatre and Symphony Orchestra and has organized the New Chamber Orchestra under the auspices of the Johns Hopkins University.

Directors of the Maryland Youth Symphony are Mrs. Sherbow, Mesdames Rudolph Marburg, Ben Reubens, Harrison L. Winter and Edwin Perkins Jr.; Miss Virginia Reneicke; Ray F. Robinson, Dr. Ernest Beuding.

Advisors include Dr. Charles Kent, director of the Peabody, Dr. J. Marion Magill, supervisor of music in the Baltimore public schools; Thomas R. Lawrence, supervisor of music for the Baltimore county schools; Brother Anthony Josaro, S.M., superintendent Baltimore Catholic Schools; Frank J. Dixon, assistant superintendent, Baltimore Archdiocesan schools;

Dr. Elliott W. Galkin, head of the Goucher music department; Dr. R. Hayes Strider, head of the music department at Morgan State College; and Oleg Lobanov, manager of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra.

* * *

AMONG THE outstanding students in the symphony are Barbara Benson, concertmaster; Christine and Carol Mussendor, bass violinist and violist; Katherine Russell, French horn; and Roberta Winborne, bass violinist.

Interest in symphonic music has resulted in over $10,000 being spent in the schools for instruments which are loaned to the pupils for instruction classes and ensemble playing during and after school hours.

Tickets for Saturday's concert may be obtained at the Peabody ticket office, the music departments of the local Catholic schools and on the night of the performance.
