CHOIR ON RECORD

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. — The Elizabeth City State College Choir under the direction of Miss Evelyn Johnson has just cut a 12-inch, 33-1/3 long playing record for its Diamond Jubilee.

Benny Cunningham, 103 years old, says: 'life has been pretty good'—

"I'm feeling fine I can walk as straight as you and I don't need a cane either . . . Life has been pretty good to me" . . ."

Benny Cunnighamn, 103 years old yesterday (Thursday, Dec. 15) was talking to an AFRO reporter. He lives at 1313 Kenhill Ave., with a daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Young.

Today, his 14 sons and daughters, their spouses, his 32 grandchildren and his 97 great-grandchildren have gathered at his home to give him a grand birthday party.

* * *

MR. CUNNINGHAM, a retired farmer, born in Union County, S.C. in 1863, has lived in Baltimore since his retirement in 1942.

"When I came to Baltimore one of the first things me and Matilda (his wife who died three years at age 94) did was register up to vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He added, "Down where I come from colored people couldn't vote

MR. CUNNINGHAM was 79 years old when he cast his first ballot.

"I thought Mr. Roosevelt was doing a fine job for everybody, and I liked him." He's a registered Democrat and has voted for Truman, Kennedy and Johnson. "I like him," he said of LBJ.

How about the last gubernatorial election: "Agnew" had a special reason for voting for him. I didn't like that other fellow, Mahoney. THERE'VE BEEN quite a few changes in the world since he was young man, Mr. Cunningham agrees. Most important have been the younger generation.

"I think they're GREAT!" he declares "and I just love to watch them dancing on TV".

Whatever he thinks of the so-called Teenage Problem? Mr. Cunningham says: "Well, I don't think there's so much a teenage problem as there is a Parent Problem."

"Teenagers are sons and daughters, and they are reared pretty much the way their mothers and fathers decide they ought to be reared.

* * *

MR. CUNNINGHAM has seen to it that many of his children finished high school, and his daughter, Mrs. Young, a college graduate. His oldest son, the Rev. C. C. Cunningham, is the Presiding Elder of the AME Church, Columbia, S.C.

One of the modern contraptions that Mr. Cunningham enjoys most is "That television set," which he watches daily.

"I never miss the wrestling matches."

He is an avid spectator, fan, and enjoys the Oriole games.

"They showed them this year."

Of the Colts, he said "they're still a good team, but trying to maintain an image instead of winning games."

* * *

UNLIKE MANY of those who have passed the "Century Mark" Mr. Cunningham has never had a drink in his life.

His one vice is smoking.

"I've smoked a pipe since I was a young man. And that's too many years to count."

He loves all kinds of vegetables, and especially enjoys chicken dumplings, apple pie, beef stew.

* * *

MR. CUNNINGHAM rarely gets an opportunity to see his grandchildren and great-grands but by Christmas he feels certain that he'll have seen all of them and for the young ones he'll have a word about Santa.

* * *

"PARENTS OUGHT to tell their children about Santa Claus because for children Christmas without Santa Claus is not really Christmas."

"My wife and I taught all of our children about Santa. In fact, on Christmas Eve after we put them to bed, we had to go up and change them around from room to room, so that in their excitement they wouldn't frighten Santa's reindeer."

* * *

IN HIS native Union, S.C. Christmas was a pretty special occasion to the Cunningham family.

"Every Christmas Eve all the children hung up stockings for Santa to fill and we even left something for him to eat before going on to the next house."

Mr. Cunningham remembers that after the "happiest day of my life" (the birth of his first son) one of his first worries was "What in the world is Santa Claus going to bring this little fat boy for Christmas."

Seeing that Santa visits the Cunningham children isn't a problem for the lively gentleman anymore.

The table has turned, now Mr. Cunningham is wondering if Santa is going to visit him."

"I want," he says with a touch of glee in his voice a pocket watch for Christmas. So I can keep up with the time."—A.R.

TRIPLE HEADER — A trio of Richmond (Va.) residents have established what Social Security officials believe to be a "first." Richard Thomas, 97; Mrs. Nancy Thomas, 86, his wife, and Delma Prior, 65 her son by a prior marriage, all qualified at the same time for Social Security Old Age benefits. Officials believe it is the first time three persons from one family have ever been certified for benefits at the same time. (Photo by Ken Y. Tomlinson, Richmond Times Dispatch)

Pay boosts for 5,400

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The governor's office Wednesday ordered pay raises for about 5,400 persons engaged in state housekeeping activities.

The pay hikes will cost about $1.25 million between now and July 1 and $2.5 million in the second year of the biennium.

About 11 job classifications will remain below the $3,000 annual level for starting workers.

INCLUDED IN the group with starting pay below $3,000 annually are grounds laborers, elevator operators, trades laborers, food service workers, maids and janitors. Laundry workers and seamstresses.

Fifteen job classifications will be pushed between the $3,000 annual starting range under the raise order.

"Competitive salaries throughout the state show our agencies and institutions at a disadvantage," the governor's office said in a memorandum on wage changes.

"STATEWIDE SALARY surveys indicate that our average salaries for much jobs as janitors, carpenter, boiler foreman, and cook vary from $500 to $1,500 below competition.

"The broadening coverage in the federal minimum wage law and the increase in the minimum rate will deteriorate our competitive position unless present scales are adjusted," the memorandum said.

Under the revised pay range, maids and janitors and laundry workers will make $2,520 annually, the lowest bracket in the beginning range. The current beginning pay for maids, janitors and laundry workers is $2,112.
