Greatest Birth Ever Links Past, Present, Future

Moderns might not buy gifts-for-Baby story

By ROGER NISSLY

Say there are these three guys, heads of their own turf somewhere, pretty slick guys, and they're carrying all these gifts and things, gold, that they're going to give to this babe that's going to be born and it sounds like a good thing because this star they're under can't go wrong.

And they ask you to come along with gold or whatever meager gifts you have to make in adoration of the child.

You ask what's in it for you.

And they offer to cut you in on immense riches of the soul, but no cash. If you would come along, they would cut you in on some things, something better than worldly riches, saying that some things are more important than worldly riches, and just come along.

If you happened to meet these three guys cruising along this wouldn't you—cynical, sophisticated, twentieth Century man—say it sounded like the old film-flam?

Disbelievers, it seems, can survive ages

By GEORGE W. COLLINS

The small cluster of public servants — a policeman, a cab driver, bus operator, milkman and streetcleaner — was gathered around the open window of the restaurant.

Driven together by the wintry winds of late December, they had forced a loose alliance which dictated they gather at the restaurant window 3 a.m. each morning for coffee.

Following a night of wandering over a slumbering city, transporting straggling "night people," delivering milk and cleaning up the mess left by the "day people," the men had gathered to gulp coffee to fortify themselves against the chilly winds.

"Hey, look," said the street cleaner, "a light. It is almost as bright as day."

As the men turned from the window, they noticed a blade of light sweeping across the sky as if cutting away the curtain of darkness.

"Aw, it's just one of those things they send up all the time from Cape Kennedy" said the policeman, taking a big sip from his cup.

* * *

"YEAH, it happens all the time," said the cab driver. "They've put so much stuff up there it's hard to see the stars anymore. We'll probably read about it in the papers later today."

"Not the morning edition. I have the final on the track," the paper route salesman volunteered.

"Oh, well," the bus driver said reflecting boredom, "I'll see you fellows later."

* * *

AS HE turned to enter his bus, a sound of many voices rolled across the lighted sky.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will toward men," the voices were singing.

Unlike the shepherds who watched over their flock that night long ago, the public servants were not afraid.

None but the streetcleaner, that is.

* * *

THE OTHERS explained the singing as the prank of an all-night disc jockey who normally filled the airlines with sounds of "Magnificent music," the station's ad had said.

As to the voices, others assured the streetcleaner he "was hearing things."

They didn't believe him.

Neither did all the shepherds, obviously, on that night long ago.

Disbelievers, it seems, have a way of surviving the ages.

No, Virginia

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

The occasion for the celebration of the high Christian holiday of Christmas was the birth of a baby in Bethlehem.

For nearly 2,000 years, millions of people have clung faithfully to the belief that the Infant born in the manger is the Son of God, the Creator, Lord of all the universe.

Century after century the event has been remembered as one that brings tidings of great joy, the birth of the Son of the Almighty.

Will there always be a Christmas? Or will there come a day when we will have to say, "No, Virginia, there is no Santa Claus! The infant in Bethlehem was just another baby!"

There used to be absolutely no doubt, even to the most mature thinkers.

* * *

HOWEVER, today in this area of startling Space discoveries, we hear rumblings that express grave doubt.

More and more we hear bold predictions that sooner than we think the entire story of the Bible will become just another fairytale.

The suspicious grow as Space cameras, minus all emotion, flash back actual photos and hourly show us Earth where the Lord was born is but as insignificant dot among countless billions of planets.

As we view, there is fear that other planets know nothing of our Son of the Creator the one we believe threw the

With the enormity of the puzzle almost beyond comprehension, there is but one thing to do at this point, on the Eve of Dec. 25, 1966.

Before it's too late, let's cancel the space program that may result in Christmas passing from the scene in our time.

What a dark world it would be without the Legend of the Christ Child.

At the Inn that night

You see, Jack, Gus was running out of dough over in Rome, so he went word down to put the bite on by way of a head tax but first everybody had to be counted.

So all the carpenters and farmers and potters and masons and so forth had to light out for their old man's home town.

Well, I'm no bug on this genealogy bit, but my umpteenth great granddaddy was born in Bethlehem. So I sitting at the bar of the Bethlehem Palace Hotel one night in late December and there's a little brouhaha in the lobby.

Now the place has been booked solid for a week and all the other places for miles aren't like flophouses, they're so full for the census.

BUT HERE'S this guy and his wife asking for a room. They've come all the way over from Nazareth on a donkey and to top it off, she's just about ready to have a baby. Well, they should had reservations.

The assistant manager is ready to go off his rocker. Not only are the halls filled with pallets, but some schnook of a groom just evicted the last horse from the stable for a guy and his mouse.

* * *

THEN THE manager remembers a little cave on a piece of land he's been meaning to develop. The couple gets a couple bales of straw from the stable and the schlemiel who got a fat tip for putting a no vacancy sign on the horse duplex has to lead them out there.

I go along for the ride and there's an odd glow in the sky, like a shooting star, except it's not shooting, it's hardly moving. The groom and I also get a funny feeling about this pair. They're quiet and intense, like all fairly new couples, but there's something special about them.

* * *

AS WE RETURN the star stands still and I realize it seemed to follow us on the way out to the grotto.

The next day the scuttlebut says some yokel shepherds had been frightened by a bright star and heard voices.

The lady had her baby that night and somehow the shepherds were drawn to the cave.

* * *

WHEN I got back to Jerusalem, Herod was having fits, the Post was saying. It seems three Persians, or was it Indians, told him the new king of Israel had been born and he was pulling out all the stops to find hif and indulge in a little Romanesque regicide. (He was going to kill the kid.)

* * *

BUT THAT was a long time ago. Yesterday I was at the Temple and watched a kid of 12, not yet bar mitzvahed, knocked the rabbis for a loop. He really knows his onions on this religious jazz.

What brings that up is that he comes from Nazareth, too His name is Jesus. — HOSHALL.

Birth today to poor would go unheralded

If Dec. 25, 1966 were the first Christmas, it still would take years for word to get around and cause the multitudes to believe an unusual birth had occurred.

The unheralded birth of One from humble parents would cause no murmurs of excitement, that is unless Joseph and Mary were able to have the services of a press agent.

Today, even as 1900-plus years ago, thousands of people in the world are homeless and without sufficient food.

There are other thousands who, even though they have sufficient money, are unable to find accommodations.

THE BIRTH of a baby, most anywhere in the world, to parents without high financial or social status, would receive no [illegible]

Other factors of ill will, prejudice, and lack of [illegible] understanding and compassion prevail in the world of today even as then.

In truth, the entire lifetime of Our Lord could be duplicated in all its misconcepts, its ill-received efforts toward true brotherhood, its theme of Peace On Earth and Good Will To All Men — in the world of today.

Peace and Good Will gives way to war and misery. The Brotherhood of Man remains a much sought after theory. —Sterling A. Brazile.

JOBS —

Applications for these city jobs should be filed with the Baltimore Civil Service Commission, City Hall, Baltimore, Md. 21202: Assistant Manpower Development Coordinator, $9,846. Manpower Development Coordinator, $10,604. Chief of Program Development (Community Action Agency), $12,240.

'Thank you, Mary . . .'

Place? Bethlehem

"I'm so tired, Joseph. I feel like the baby will come any minute. I don't think I can go on. . ."

"Don't worry, Mary" answerd her husband, "it can't be too long now."

They had walked but a few steps, when Mary let out an anguished cry. . . "oh, oh! I believed my time has come."

Excited as any expectant father, Joseph nervously looked at his wife, and said firmly: "This is it. We must find relief for you at once. We will try this place up here. It might give us lodging."

He helped Mary sit down beside the road and hurried on to the place where he saw the light.

Moments later he returned Mary had fallen over in the road. . in great pain. . she was moaning and crying softly.

"It's all right, Mary. . . it's all right." he repeated. . "they wouldn't take us at the inn, but I'll make you comfortable. . .we'll make it. . ."

* * *

WITH THAT, Joseph lifted Mary into his arms and started the short distance to the stable. . it was there her baby was born. . .

"I will wrap a part of my gown, Joseph, I hope he won't get cold." she purred. "He looks like he will be a strong man like his daddy."

As she laid her firstborn son down in the manger, Mary's face broke into a wide smile. . .Joseph who had dried her tears of pain, also smiled. . .

In the distance they heard glorious singing. . .'Glory to God in the highest. . .unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Savour who is Christ the Lord. . .

"Joseph. . .Joseph," Mary cried happily. . ."They are singing about our son. . .He is the new Redeemer."

"And, you are His blessed mother. . .Thank you Mary," said the proud father — B. M. MOSS

Elisha heard angels singing

By Daphne Mitchell

It was a cold night on the hillsides, all the other shepherds were asleep among the blankets as Elisha kept watch over the flock, there was an eerie stillness and he whistled a tune to keep himself awake.

Suddenly he was startled as he heard voices above. He rubbed his eyes in amazement. Surely, he thought, this could not be the end of the world. The clouds had given place to what looked like angels—but angels were only a tale—they didn't really exist.

Then a chorus of the heavenly host started singing and he heard the words: "Peace on Earth Goodwill To All Men." Then a voice sounded from the sky, bright angel said, "Be not afraid. I have brought you good news. The Savior of the world promised to your people has been born tonight." This cannot be true said Elisha. The angel said in a trumpeting voice. "You shall find the babe wrapped in old clothes to keep him warm and he will be lying on a straw heap in the stable in Bethlehem.

* * *

AND THAT is how Elisha learned of the birth of a King child to Joseph and Mary the Virgin.

Later three shepherds Elisha and his two friends, whom he had awakened came in and knelt at the cradle. They told of seeing a star that had guided them to the child. The kings also confirmed their statement. Mary wept and wondered what was in store for her child.

Silently she looked up and saw the innkeeper and his wife. They had followed the king, and were kneeling in adoration. Then she remembered the warnings of the angel: "He shall be great and shall be called the son of God and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

She wept again and thought of the suffering of a king.

It comes to pass that 'decrees' still go out

In those days a decree was issued by Emperor Augustus for a general registration throughout the Roman World. This was the first registration of its kind; it took place when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.

What all this "decree" and "registration" meant in 20th Century language, is that the rulers were about to put the tax bite on the good citizens — to the first power.

And in these days, the story is the same.

The decrees are still going out for taxes.

And in addition, we are still getting that snow job about peace on earth and goodwill to all men.

Only one thing has been true from the days of camel travel to our era of the luxera of the luxury jet liner.

Those people who "decree" taxes and promise peace on earth collecting the moolah than at producing the peace. — NEWSON

Sigmas to honor Dr. John Camper

With Lula Jones Garrett

A "Banquet of Appreciation" is being scheduled by Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity for Dr. John E. T. Camper, physician, churchman and long-time civil rights worker, on the 28th.

The fraternity men are being joined by some of the organizations to which Dr. Camper has also made distinguished contributions over the years, including Frontiers, international; the Me-De-So Club of which he is a charter member; the Advisory Board of the NAACP, White Stone Baptist Church, Perkins Square Baptist Church and the Falcon Gun and Rod Club.

The testimonial will be held in the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel at six p.m. Ernest W. Lee is president of Zeta Sigma chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, the host; and the presentations will be made by Dr. Parlett L. Moore, president of Coppin State College, and first national vice president of the fraternity.

SPEAKING of banquets, the one that sparked the National Council of Women's membership drive in New York, Monday night, was not a mere ember but quite a blaze of glory.

Held in the swank Park Plaza Hotel, where cocktails and conversation in the Terrace Room initiated the evening, the beauty of the winter garden setting for the banquet led right into Christmas beauty.

From this town went Anna Claiborne, who heads the Baltimore Section of NCNW; Flossie Dodmond, a national vice president and a program participant; Celonia Walden, who with Beryl Williams will head next year's memorial drive; Helen Chamberlain and Gwendolyn Biddle.

Adding to the scene: Singer - Actress Lena Horne, chairman of the life membership drive which the banquet inaugurated, stepped right out of a couture's dream in a long gold skimmer encrusted with jewels. Mrs. Dedmond's white brocade jacket topped a long white satin skirt which was elongated at the back. Mrs. Chamberlain was in ice pink satin and crystals, and Mrs. Walden in a version of the same in green. Mrs. Clinkscale wore an oriental gown in silver with side splits to the knee and mink trimmed.

A. Phillip Randolph, who was recipient of an award, was absent and his plaque was accepted by Bayard Ruskin. Other awards went to Walter Reuther and Mrs. Lewis Goldberg.

Highspots on the program included the talk by Judge Constance Motley, and the reading of Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune's (NCNW founder) "Last Will and Legacy" by Actress Ruby Dee.

These banquets, steered by Miss Horne and co-chairman, Mrs. Gladys Zales, will be held across the country with an aim to drawing 5000 life members into the Council.

Locally, council women are deep in plans for their January 8 brunch, at which Mrs. Frances Howard, sister of Vice President Humphrey, will be speaker. The brunch, at 12:45 p.m., will be in Holiday Inn, downtown. Marion Jones is reservation chairman.

Members who will serve in role of hostesses at the brunch will include Jean Cross, Jimmy Laforest, Hortense Prise, Beari Daniels, Marion Finney, Ellen Cockrell, Christine Moore, Harriet Reynolds, Leisa Shipley and Marion Crawford.

THE CHRISTMAS offering of the Pierians (art club) was the presentation of Eugene Bell, organist, and Dorothy Myers, soloists in a recital in the Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, Saturday evening.

The artists, who presented a program of Moravian music, were later the guests of the club members at a holiday party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Mebane.

Mr. Bell, a graduate of the Peabody Conservatory, has, for the past 12 years, been organist and choir director at Brown Memorial Church. Prior to this he was assistant to Richard Ross, under whom he studied, for four years. He is currently dean of the Chesapeake Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, and a faculty member of Gettysburg College.

Mrs. Myers, who has done solo work since the age of 14, devotes her efforts almost exclusively to sacred music.

The concert was arranged by a committee of Pierians composed of Mercedes Douglass, Jewel Moseley, Lydia Mussenden and Celonia Walden. Charlotte Mebane is president of the group.

FROM THE shrimp cocktail to the piping hot apple pie their luncheon was delectable. From the elegantly gowned Washingtonians to the ultra chic Baltimoreans the guests were enchanting. These two angles alone would have set the holiday party pace . . . but then the Bon Tons added pre - luncheon cocktails and post luncheon cards to round out a thoroughly delightful afternoon.

Their party on Saturday was in the Roundtowner Motor Inn, where cocktails and cards were in the Colt Room . . . and luncheon in the Beef and Bourbon Room.

The Bon Tons, a club of long standing, is headed by Mrs. Sadie Murphy, and has as members, Mesdames Mattie Connor, Lillian Berry, Anita Thomas, Flavia Thomas, Theresa Weaver, Ruth Shipley, Audrey Norris, Xaveria McDonald and Blanche McRae.

Proving her versatility, Senator Verda Welcome took first guest prize at bridge. Second prize went to Mrs. Ella McPherson of Washington. Mrs. Camilla Sherrard was top scorer at pinochle.

Club prizes went to Mesdames Norris, Shipley and Murphy.

Guests were:

Mesdames Pansy Cox, Madge Hurst, Kate Shepherd, Louise Wesley from Washington; Mrs. Eloise Richardson of Annapolis, Md.; and Baltimoreans, including:

Mesdames Bertie West, Fannie Howard, [illegible] Tallaferro, Madge Shepherd, Catherine Adams, [illegible] Garrett, Edith Evans, Thelma Lawrence, Ada Veney, Mesdames Bea Reesby, Ethel Waters, Ida Berry, Eunice Hall, Anne Smith, E. Scott Wright, Elise Hunt, Ruby Walker, Lula Mackay, Rose Bright, Sarah Diggs, Gladys Shepperd.

Mesdames Mae Peck, Beatrice Butler, Constantia Jackson, T. Henry Waters, Gladys Derry, Pearlie Pennington, Ione Lane, Dora Hutchins, Edith Marshall.

Mesdames Gertrude Urquhart, Edna Scott, Mary Pitts, Rhea Brown, Sally Fletcher, Florence Bailey and Lena King.

Economy meals for good eating

Pears rate as a good attraction for the menu planner now when holiday and everyday fare call for variety in the fruitbowl.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, the ever - popular Bartletts, as well as the winter pears, such as Anjou, Comice, and Bosc are in plentiful supply.

* * *

MAKE ROOM in your recipe file for cooked and baked pear preparations for dessert use. For cooked dishes, pears may need a little extra sweetening.

If you like, you may substitute corn syrup, honey or molasses for sugar, measure for measure. Dates or raisins will also add sweetness to pear dishes. You'll find, too that stick cinnamon or other spices will attractively enhance the flavor of cooked pears and pear syrup.
