Mothers fight public housing

RICHMOND — A lawsuit against Frederic A. Fay's Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority and project manager, T. G. Edwards was filed in federal district court Tuesday on behalf of four Creighton Court women threatened with eviction.

The suit, prepared by NAACP Attorneys Hill, Tucker, and Marsh, charges that the women were ordered out without a hearing after being told they had violated an apparently unwritten rule against tenants' having children out of wedlock.

The legal move is apparently another NAACP attack upon the validity of the use of a 15 or 30 - day lease in public housing here, under which the authority claims it can evict tenants without giving a reason.

The attorneys won a permanent injunction against the authority in September preventing the eviction of Curtis Holt Sr., president of the Creighton Court civic group, after he had been ordered out without a hearing.
