ral Government held that since the two agencies are involved in the war on poverty, the same director created a conflict of interest.

Mr. Smith's appointment takes the late of the state's terms of length of service of two colored executive directors. The other one is Parren J. Mitchell, who heads the city's agency.

In announcing the appointment, Gov. Tawes said:

"Mr. Smith is the oldest employee of the agency in point of service.

He has an excellent education and has been the technician in developing broad base community action committees and programs throughout Maryland.

"He is exceptionally well-qualified for this position."

IN ADDITION to a Ph.D. degree in American Institutions, a major in economics with a psychology minor, Mr. Smith has done graduate work at Temple University and the University of Maryland Law School.

A member of numerous professional, community, and fraternal organizations, Mr. Smith is married to the former Miss Ida Murphy.

They are the parents of a son and a daughter — Carl E., AND Vashti M. Smith — and live at 2084 Ruxton Ave.

Robert J. Miller, an attorney and an OEO program development officer since the agency came into existence, is the new deputy director.

Assembly opens Wed.

outside Baltimore's 4th District.

It will be the first Assembly under Maryland's reapportionment.

This will be the first of yearly 70-day sessions, a change from the former alternate 30 and 90-day yearly sessions.

The Senate will have an alltime high of 43 seats, a hike of 14 under reapportionment above the former 29.

The House remains with 142 seats, however.

THE 11 race members are seven above the former high of four.

These representatives are: Senators Verda F. Welcome, incumbent, and Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd (both D. 4th D.);

House members: Mrs. Victorine Q. Adams, Mrs. Lena K. Lee, Troy Bradley, Isaiah (Ike) Dixon (all D. 4th D.);

Joseph A. Chester Sr., Floyd B. Adams (both D. 2nd D. Balto.), Dr. Aris T. Allen, (Rep. Anne Arundel), Arthur A. King (D. Prince Georges).

The high makeup of the last session included Sen. Welcome, and in the House the late Mrs. Irma G. Dixon, Ernest D. Young and the aforementioned Mr. Mitchell.

The last election brought a representation break-through in Baltimore's 2nd District, Anne Arundel and Prince Georges Counties.

THIS NEW Assembly will have seven Republican Senators among its 43 members.

The last one had seven among its 29 members.

The House of Delegates will have 25 Republicans and 117 Democrats.

The last Assembly had 24 Republicans and 118 Democrats.

There will be four women in this new Senate. The previous one had two.

The new House will have 10 women. The last one had eight women members.

PREVIOUSLY, EACH of Baltimore's six legislative districts and each of the 23 counties had one Senate seat.

Under reapportionment, this is the new Senate representation:

Each of Baltimore's six districts — 2 seats;

Garrett, Allegany and Washington Counties — 3 seats;

Frederick and Carroll — 2 seats;

Montgomery and Howard — 5 seats;

Prince Georges — 5 seats;

Charles and St. Mary's — 1 seat;

Anne Arundel and Calvert — 2 seats;

Baltimore County — 7 seats;

Harford — 1 seat;

Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, Caroline and Talbot — 2 seats;

Dorchester, Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset — 2 seats.

HOUSE OF Delegates representation is reapportioned thusly:

Baltimore's 1st District — 6 seats; 2nd and 3rd Districts — 8 seats each; 4th, 5th and 6th Districts — 7 seats each.

Allegany County — 4 seats; Anne Arundel — 9; Baltimore County — 22; Calvert — 1; Caroline — 1; Carroll — 2; Cecil 2; Charles — 2; Dorchester — 1; Frederick — 3; Garrett — 1; Harford — 4; Howard—2; Kent—1; Montgomery 16; Prince George — 16; Queen Anne's — 1; St. Mary's — 2; Somerset — 1; Talbot — 1; Washington — 4; Wicomico — 2; and Worcester — 1 seat.

COLLEGE TEACHERS

Morgan State College is now interviewing prospective Faculty Members for appointment, September, 1967.

Qualifications: superior teaching ability, creative imagination, a real interest in students; at the upper ranks, interest and ability in research and creative work; master's degree or above (about 40 per cent of our Faculty Members hold doctoral degrees).

Morgan State has perhaps the most cosmopolitan Faculty of any college in Maryland—factors of race, sex and nationality are irrelevant. Current salary range (10 months) $6,000—$15,000.

Applications are invited in all fields, but especially Business Administration and Accounting, Chemistry, Education, English, Science Education, Speech and Reading Specialists, Sociology, Library, Physics Assistant (B.S.), Library Assistant (B.S.).

It is unusual for a College to advertise in this fashion for Faculty Members. We believe, though, that there are many qualified prospective teachers in the area, now in business and industry, elementary and secondary schools or other institutions of higher education, who would welcome the excitement of participating in the Morgan State program. If you are interested, send your resume to the President, Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md. 21212

Morgan State College accepts all students regardless of race, sex or nationality.

Democrats act wary

1956, non-committment to any political party was easy to flash that day, especially since the move to oust him found many friends among his old colleagues.

"I want you to know that the 1960 election has just been decided . . . maybe we might start a third party."

"Adam for President," rang an early supporter.

IT WAS the Democrats who in their caucus on Monday, stripped Powell of his powerful chairmanship.

CONG. MORRIS UDALL (D. Utah) urged that Powell's chairmanship should be sacrificed so as to appease Republicans who might want the full pound of flesh when Congress convened.

But on the following day Congress, in a lopsided margin commonly reserved for approving Defense Department budgets, voted by 364 to 64 to deny him his seat pending the investigation, thus negating Udall's reasoning.

Powell has no sacred cows and on the Capitol steps he castigated "Martin Loser King" and "Whitey Young."

"I want you to know . . . that what happened to me has crystallized the black masses.

"The black masses no longer respect the black leaders who support Mr. Whitey."

"This nation belongs to black people, just as much as white," the free - lance civil rights and black pride leader declared.

"We've spent 200 years here without getting a penny in salary."

HE TOLD those who had come from Harlem amidst cries of saddened protest: "I am out as a congressman . . . you no longer have a congressman."

Calling on one of the principles behind the Revolutionary War, "taxation without representation," Powell declared:

"Harlem has no representation. It should declare a moratorium on all taxes . . . no federal, no state, no city, no nothing."

Before leaving for the Rayburn Office Building across the way from the Capitol Building, the Congressman repeated, again: "Keep the faith, baby."

He closed his informal speech with a plea for unity among "black people." "Walk together," he said, adding "whether you know him or not, he is your brother."

A HEAVY set, middle - aged woman slowly made her way down the steps. To her faded, red plaid winter coat was pinned a large closeup of the Congressman, apparently clipped from a newspaper and pasted to a piece of cardboard.

Wearing this make - shift badge, she muttered vehemently to herself: "46 years of hard work."

A press conference was scheduled shortly thereafter at the Rayburn Building. It was never held.

Powell left the waiting television people in the building's hallway without a subject, as he made his way to the garage.

He walked briskly, accompanied by a number of his aides, to a waiting limousine in the building's underground parking space.

"There's my beautiful Jaguar they've all been talking about . . . it's 16 years old."

HIS VOICE pointedly reflected a disgust for the reason behind the congressional action taken against him.

The car he referred to was an immaculately kept, steel blue, sports car sedan in the classic design of a high, chrome front grill and tear-drop fenders.

Before leaving, he said that he and his staff are still on the congressional payroll.

He added, that an agreement had been worked out between him and newly appointed chairman of his old committee, Carl Perkins (D., Ky.), whom he termed whereby Powell's committee, a "dear friend of mine," tee staff would be retained for two months.

He added substance to the reports that he would not resign, and that he would fight the action against him, especially if he were unseated. He indicated that he might contest, in the courts, an action to unseat him for good.

Says prejudice is man's worst obstacle

Of all obstacles to a human being's growth to full stature, prejudice is the worse, Mrs. Frances Humphrey Howard, declared, here, Saturday.

Mrs. Howard, program liaison officer for the Agency for International Development, was speaker at the annual Founder's Day brunch of the Baltimore Section of the National Council of Women, here, Saturday.

PREJUDICE, SAID Mrs. Howard, destroys more individuals than does war. "It is hereditary, not in the blood stream, but in the stream of conversation within the home. Out of the mouths of babes come adult slanders, repeated word for word", she added.

"Shedding a prejudice is an agonizing experience. An illogical hatred nourished for hundreds of years for whatever reason finally becomes a sort of disease", Mrs. Howard continued.

"THE WHITE people of this country are predominantly favorable to the colored' demand for equality, yet many cannot shed their prejudice. When they say "The Negro is not ready yet," what they mean is "I am not ready yet", the speaker said.

In praise of the Council's founder, the late Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, Mrs. Howard said:

"It is ideas and sound philosophies such as those of Dr. Bethune that will help eradicate forever the ancient malady, the aberration called prejudice which keeps man in a vicious cycle of unreasoning, sick hate: white against black, black against white, nation against nation, neighborhood against neighborhood and man against man".

MRS. ANNA J. CLINKSCALE, president of the Baltimore Section, in introducing Mrs. Howard, read a letter from her brother, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The letter referred to Dr. Bethune as "one of America's greatest women of the 20th Century".

Dr. Bethune, he recalled, adviser to four presidents of the United Statees, was a catalyst for human welfare under the New Deal.

Mrs. Helen Chamberlain, program chairman, read the greetings from Governor-Elect Spiro T. Agnew.

SPEAKERS ALSO included Miss Ruth L. Harvey, consultant on the President's Committee on Consumer Interests, and on the staff of the Office of Economic Opportunity. Miss Harvey, an attorney, is a regional director of the Council and chairman for the Bethune Memorial Fund Drive in Region II.

MRS. FLOSSIE DEDMOND, a national vice president of the Council, discussed targets of the Council for this year. Other participants on the program were Mrs. Beryl L. Williams, who gave "A Prayer of Thanks", and Miss Sandra E. East, who brought greetings.

Special honors went to two founders of the Baltimore Section, Miss Kate Sheppard and Mrs. Juanita Mitchell; and to the first president of the section, Mrs. Mattie Coasey.

Music was by James Green, guitarist, a student at Douglass High School.

THE BRUNCH was followed by a panel on "The Significant Role of Women in Home and Community Life" which was moderated by Mrs. Brenda B. Johnson.

Panelists were Mrs. Edna Johnson of the Baltimore Urban League; Mrs. Frances Saunders of Planned Parenthood Association of Maryland; and Mrs. Sarah Browne of the Maryland State Employment Service.

They discussed consumer education, family life and marketable skills, respectively.

Mrs. Chamberlain was the presiding officer at the brunch — Lula Mackay

A spokesman at the club Thursday said Mr. Treat had been house chairman for two years, and that the annual election of officers is held in the first week of March.

His duties were hiring workers, doing the buying and keeping up the premises.

The spokesman said Mr. Treat had done a good job and would be missed at the club.
