Despite the critics you'll enjoy 'Dolly'

By LULA MACKAY

Here is a formula for those of you who have yet to see "Hello Dolly" by which you will come away from the Morris A. Mechanic Theatre feeling that the evening's entertainment was worth the money you paid for the ticket.

Forget the commanding Carol Channing of the Broadway run. After all, Miss Channing was, is and will be the "Dolly" of "Hello Dolly!"

Enjoy the charm, prettiness and the personality of the show's star, Betty Grable.

REVEL IN the beauty of the costuming, in the staging and the dancing.

Let the critics, whose business it is to analyze the performance, do their duty.

* * *

YOU WILL be entranced with the auditorium, in its deep blue and putty-red decor.

On opening night those who attended were equally entranced with the elegance of the dress of the bejeweled, be-furred and formally gowned women who made up more than half of the 1,850 audience. You will be equally entranced with the music - comedy lovers who share the show with you.

* * *

BE SURE to arrive a few minutes before curtain time, so as to visit the lounge which is now hung with the paintings of John M. Johanson, architect, for the theatre, and also artist.

Opening night, Monday, was, as I said, gala. True Miss Grable had voice trouble, but you probably will not have this to be upset by when you attend.

True you will miss the excellent talk by Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin.

He spoke of the need for culture in this city, and the need of beauty in individuals' lives, and who talked of the greatness of Morris A. Mechanic, who, he said, realized that money in itself was worthless . . . that the beauty it can bring i itsnn.s beauty it can bring is its reason for having.

* * *

TRUE, YOU will miss seeing Mrs. Morris A. Mechanic, who was lovely Monday evening in a pink - beige tent dress, embellished with crystals and beads.

Also lovely to look at was Mrs. Archie Robinson, wearing a hot pink full - length gown. In the party with her and Dr. Robinson were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haynes and Dr. and Mrs. Uthman Ray.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Roseborough and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Allen were also there. Messrs. Allen and Roseborough had worked on the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jenifer, and TV Commentator Bob Matthews were in the audience. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Perry watched the glittering crowd from the balcony of the central lobby until almost curtain time. So did Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Mackay.

* * *

EARLIER IN the day, City Councilman Walter Dixon, Dr. Saul Perdue, member of the Housing and Urban Renewal Authority, and Cliff W. Mackay of the AFRO - AMERICAN were among those attending the dedication of the theatre, and the luncheon which followed.

Proceeds fr opening night will go the Children's Rehabilitation Institute.

Scholarships for girls at Mount Providence

Baltimore area girls seeking a college education will benefit for generations to come by the generosity of a prominent county businessman.

A gift equal to $500,000 to Mount Providence, a two-year college for women, will make possible special tuition scholarships for qualified girls from Baltimore and Howard counties, as well as city applicants.

The college Board of Trustees created 100 annual scholarships which will be called the John H. Mears Jr. Scholarships in recognition of the benefactor, a Catonsville resident, whose gift to the Oblate Sisters of Providence represents one-half of the scenic property recently purchased by the Sisters as a campus site for the new college.

Sister Mary of Good Counsel, O.S.P., president of the college, announced the substantial gift to The President's Board, in conjunction with the school's five-year plan for development of a new academic center on the South Rolling Road property.

The 90 acre plot represents nearly one-half of the Manorvale Farm, homestead of the Mears family. It is situated at Gun Road, immediately adjacent to the Motherhouse of the Oblate Sisters of Providence a religious congregation founded in Baltimore in 1829.

In addition to the two-year college, the Sisters conduct Saint Frances Academy on Chase Street, and three elementary schools in Baltimore. Thirty-six other school are sponsored by the congregation. Thirty - six other schools are sponsored by the congregation, in sixteen states, Washington, D. C., and Costa Rica.

Under the new schlarships prospective students from Baltimore and Howard counties will pay tuition of $150 plus fees, per semester, considerably less than the usual $500 annual tuition. Baltimore City students will pay a slightly higher semester fee of $175.

The Mears gift will result in greater opportunities for higher education, and lessen the financial burden to the families of the 100 students attending Mount Providence each semester, as recipients of the scholarship awards.
