If YOU Ask ME

BY BETTYE M. MOSS

People, places and things

Like we have said before it is getting so you can't go anywhere these days without seeing a familiar face.

It was so Saturday in Bimini — the Bahama Island which Congressman A. Clayton Powell has made famous because he has made it his retreat for these past two years.

We were among a hundred newsmen — from all over the U.S. and from London, who flew into Bimini for a press conference with Mr. Powell.

It was the first time he had consented to see the press since his fellow congressmen voted him out of his seat.

As soon as we put our bags in the hotel, we started out to look around the beautiful isle — a truly wonderland with its 80 degree temperature, palm trees etc.

And, guess what! First people we spied were two Baltimore physicians —Dr. Shirley Clinton and Dr. Lawrence Zollikoffer.

They are pediatricians (baby doctors), and were in Miami for a special study of newborns. They flew over for the day.

• • •

Also on Bimini — Attorney Jean Cahn-she's the former Jean Camper of Baltimore (daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. T. Camper).

And, believe it or not, even though the island is just seven miles long and less than th[illegible] mile wide, we never met in Person.

We were either passing each other in boats or she was on shore and we were on Mr. Powell's 31-footer, 'Adam's Fancy.'

So you see it is indeed a small world.

If you think you've seen mass confusion, be in on a press conference in a small place like Bimini, where the total population is about 1,400 and people usually spend their time big game fishing. Wow

Ready birthday cards for Frank Cager, 1637 Moreland Ave. He will be 101 years old on Feb. 12.

Many know Mr. Cager as the longtime (70 years) Bethlehem Steel Co., employee, and a lifetime member of Ebenezer Methodist —that is if the print is large enough.

Mr. Cager lives with his daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Harbey. Another daughter is Mrs. Rosetta Thornton. His brother is the Rev. Eugene Cager.

Two gracious ladies, lifelong friends, died within three days of each other — Mrs. Sarah L. Sampson, the longtime school social worker, and Mrs. Marye Oliver, the teacher and wife of John J. Oliver, a member of this newspaper's board of directors.

Oddity: Mrs. Oliver (the former Marye Thompson of Somerset, Pa.), was the first teacher of her chum's nephew, Samuel Hicks. He is now a psychologist with Social Security.

Age does not keep him from watching television, shaving himself and reading Social Security.

The death of Mrs. Sampson makes no. 4 in her immediate family in six weeks.

A nephew: Albert Langley, died at Christmas time.

A cousin, George Butler, died shortly afterwards.

Mrs. Sampson died Tuesday.

On Wednesday in Philadelphia, her cousin's husband, William Coleman, former director of Wissihickan Camp, died.

His wife, the former Laura Mason of Balt.more, and out a $500 NAACP life membership back in 1958.

Older Residents may remember his first church in 1915, was called People's Union, and was located at Orleans and Ann Sts.

From 1922-38, it was called the People's Christian Church and was affiliated with the Baptist.

In 1943, the site at Caroline and Preston Sts., was purchased for $50,000 and the building was paid in full in 18 months. Remember?

IN BIMINI—AFRO photographer in Bimini, Bahamas, covering Adam Clayton Powell press conference on Saturday, spied these Baltimore physicians, Dr. Shirley Clinton and his associate, Dr. Lawrence Zollicoffer. Both are Pediatricians. They had been in nearby Miami at a convention.

Powell may testify Feb. 8

A special committee studying whether Adam Clayton Powell should keep his seat in Congress "invited" the Harlem Democrat to testify at a hearing on Feb. 8.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., told Powell in a letter that he should come prepared to discuss his legal problems in New York "and your alleged misconduct since Jan. 3, 1961, the date Powell became chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Earlier this year, at the start of the 90th Congress, Powell was deposed as chairman and then banned from his House seat pending an investigation into his "right" to serve.

• • •

POWELL HAS indicated he will testify. The Committee plans to conduct an open hearing, but under House Rules Powell has the right to insist that it be closed to the public.

Celler told newsmen after a three - hour meeting of his panel that three copies of the letter were sent to Powell—one to the congressional office he maintains, one to his New York District office and one to Bimini in the Bahamas, where he now is staying.

Bus crash scene made eerie by scattered life memories

By MAX FORD

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI)—A half-eaten apple lay in a pool of blood, and nearby was a child's bedroom slipper.

Rescue workers, firemen and wrecker crews surveyed the scene of a bus-truck crash near here as dawn began lighting the sky Wednesday.

It was an errie sight. The mangled bus, most of its roof and much of its right side completely sheared away in the collision with the parked truck, had yielded six dead and 14 injured.

As the sun rose finally, some three hours after the wreck on Interstate 26, hundreds of bystanders—many of them motorists and truck drivers who happened on the scene immediately after the wreck—stood with dazed, unbelieving expressions in their faces.

• • •

"GOD, IT'S TERRIBLE," one woman said, wiping tears from her eyes. Others talked in whispers.

There wasn't much left of the bus. It was almost cut in half by the force of impact. Most of the seats on its right side had been peeled away and scattered in a jumble on the rear by the force of the collision.

Inside hanging from a heap of metal that once was a window frame was a clothing bag containing a dark dress. There were shoes everywhere.

Lying smashed inside the bus was a pasteboard suitcase, its contents scattered and torn. Under the remains of a seat was a paper bag with a blanket and a magazine soaked with blood.

SCATTERED THROUGH the wreckage were green and yellow hair curlers. By the side of the road a prescription bottle lay intact with its yellow liquid and a note on the front, partially torn away "... times a day for cold systems. Debbie's."

The six persons killed were:

Melvin Grant, Ritter, S.C. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin J. Weaver, Fredericksburg, Ohio.

Stephen D. Bennett and Cary D. Tipton, Erwin, Tenn. and

Richard H. Thaggard, Dallas, N.C.

• • •

HERE IS a list of the injured in the crash.

At Ft. Jackson Hospital: Army Pvt. Henry C. Davis, Delbarton, W. Va., who was enroute to Ft. Benning, Ga.

Army Sp. 4 John A. Berg, Pardeville, W. Va., enroute to Ft. Jackson from a Korean assignment.

Allen W. Garner, U. S. Navy, a Gallatin, Tex., sailor enroute to join the U. S. S. Fulton.

Sandra Buchanan, Gilver W. Va., wife of Dannie Buchanan, a navy man stationed at Charleston Naval Base.

AT BAPTIST HOSPITAL: Marvin H. Rhodes, Columbia,

Annette Simpson, no address.

At Columbia Hospital: Jennings B. Cook, 147 15th Ave NW, Hickory, N. C.

Deborah Simpson, 2, (her mother is at Baptist) in for observation.
