Forest Park High School's basketball team furnishes Johnny Heggins in profile today.

The well-built young Forester cager is described as a quiet boy of exemplary behavior, a good jumper who drives well and will be a fine prospect for college ball once he masters his moods.

"John has a tendency to get down on himself," declares coach Warren Serwartz. "He puts up 100 percent at all times but is inclined to make mistakes. When he does, he finds it hard to readjust as readily as he should."

ACCORDING to Schwartz, Heggins "is a good jumper and he's strong. This helps to make him a capable defensive player. His shooting could improve, but it may be that this will occur when John learns how to control his moods."

Heggins is reported to be a 7g-80 student and genuinely interested in obtaining a college education. He tells the AFRO he would like to enter Morgan State College.

Johnny is the son of Andy Heggins and his wife, Mrs Clarice Heggins. There are two brothers, Andy, 14 and William, 13.

He says he has his mind set on becoming a teacher of history or science. Although he swims as a hobby, young Heggins competes only in basketball on the varsity level.

The Heggins family attends St. Mark's Baptist Church . . . LACY.

Bed is built for Ernie as he awaits surgery

Dr. Harold G. Scheie of the Dr. I.S. Ravdin Division of University of Pennsylvania Hospital said Terrell would undergo surgery which is expected to "result in complete repair of the injury."

ture would cause double vi-

THE "BLOW out" fracsion from the time it was incurred, Dr. Scheie said.

"A less serious condition of moderate edema in the retina of the left eye also is present," Scheie said in a statement. The edema was described as a swelling of the retina. There was no indication how long Terrell would be in the hospital.

Scheie said the "blowout" fracture was in the bony structure underneath the eyeball and inside the facial structure.

TERRELL AND his camp have contended that the injury resulted from Clay's rubbing his face against the top rope in the ring in the third round and from thumbing of the eye by Clay.

Scheie said the "probable cause was a sharp impact directly on the eyeball."

Terrell underwent examination at the hospital after a plane flight Wednesday night from Houston, Tex., site of the title fight. He wore a patch over his left eye and dark glasses as well when he entered the hospital. Terrell said se had double vision without the patch over the left eye.

THE HOSPITAL staff had to get an extra large bed-for the 6-foot-6 Terrell.

He waited in his room while it was erected. He was put to bed immediately and fell asleep for the night within minutes.

Hurt priming Bears for All-Eastern

NEW YORK — Although he refuses to come right out and say as much, it is fairly obvious that coach Eddie Hurt is concentrating or readying his Morgan State College track team for the All-Eastern championships, February 25, at Baltimore's Civic Center.

"We're not ready by any means," the wily Morgan mentor confided as he arrived here today (Friday) with a 6-man squad for the United States Track and Field Federation games tonight at Madison Square Garden.

"THIS ISN'T meant to be an excuse for our showing to date; it is simply an explanation. I think the boys deserve it.

"They haven't had the work they need; consequently they're not ready for the competition we usually take on during the indoor season," Hurt went on. "There have been too many obstacles for us to overcome.

"I'm sure there's nothing wrong with us that can't be cured by work.

"WHEN WE came back from the Christmas vacation, we looked forward to getting in some drills at the 5th Regiment Armory, but we had trouble with dates. We got in only 2 or 3 times in January.

"We were able to get outdoors a couple of days during the recent good weather; then we had examinations, then registration and then bad weather. I think, though, by using this meet tonight (the Federation championships) and next week's New York A. C. games, we might be a little nearer to form by the end of the month."

Hurt's "end of the month" could well mean the All-Easterns, which are slated for the 25th.

DESPITE THE lack of readiness on the part of his Bear foursome, Eddie plans to go for the mile relay feature here. And in that, Morgan will clash with such fleet quartets as Maryland State's Johnson C. Smith's unit, the perennially-strong Villanova aggregation, etc.

If nothing unforeseen develops, Hurt will run with Lenny Moore, Willie Stewart, Ed Hayes, the stellar punt-returner of the championship football team, and Tim John son, the only veteran anywhere near his true form, according to the coach.

Backing up this quartet will be Fred Hunter and sophomore Earl Wake, a product of the fine cinder program at Sollers Point High School. . . . LACY.

'He never scratched me,' says Clay after victory

HOUSTON (UPI) — "He never scratched me. It was a great miracle."

With this, a somewhat serious and subdued Cassius Clay, now the undisputed world champion, summed up his unanimous 15-round decision Monday night over dethroned World Boxing Association titlist Ernie Terrell.

"The only thing I regret is that I didn't knock him out," said Clay, calmly in a low voice.

THE CHAMPION was asked to evaluate the bout.

"He's not really a boxer," said Clay. "All he's got is a left jab. He hit me low a lot. He tried to sneak in some blows. But he never scratched me."

Clay conceded that Terrell "has a lot of courage. You would have to have a lot of courage to stay in there 15 rounds like he did."

Asked if he would fight Terrell again, Clay, who prefers to be called Muhammad Ali, raised his voice and said, "I'll fight anybody. I don't care who."

DURING THE eighth round, Clay talked almost constantly to Terrell. Asked after the fight what he was saying to him, Clay said, "I just kept asking him, 'What's my name? What's my name? What's my name?' But he never said a word back."

Terrell had refused to call Clay by his Muslim name before the fight.

AT ONE point Clay admitted that "I hit him with my best and he just wouldn't go." The champion praised Terrell's courage and stamina but was not too complimentary about his fighting ability.

Clay was asked if Terrell's left jab hurt him.

"He used his left," the champion answered. "But he just couldn't find me. I am just too fast — I told you. It's impossible to hit me with a left jab. No one will ever be able to. They're going to have to find somebody a lot faster than that."

CLAY SAID he was disappointed in Terrell.

"I heard he was a good boxer. He was holding and clinching a lot. But I'm happy I won," he said.

Clay was asked why he did not use his shuffle. He said he was advised by his manager "to quit playing and cancel my shuffle. He told me this morning — no more shuffles. He's the boss.

"IT WOULD be good to have a clean, quick knockout," Clay said thoughtfully. "But it also is a good test to be able to fight good with him for 15 rounds and win all of them. I did it without a scratch. That's a great miracle."

Clay said Houston is now his home for good.

"I've found a home — I'm a Texan now," he said with some feeling.

D.C. likely ABA city

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leon Charney, A new York attorney, hopes to bring pro basketball back to Washington, D.C.

Charney has signed a tentative agreement with the new American Basketball Association to field a team in Washington next fall. Teams already in the ABA are New York, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Oakland, Anaheim, Houston and Dallas.

SEVERAL prominent baseball and theatrical personalities and a group of real estate investors are backing the franchise along with Charney.

The Washington Capitols were an entry in the National Basketball Association and met with a good deal of success in the standings until the team was disbanded Jan. 9, 1951.

THE 28-YEAR-OLD attorney, who handles several theatrical and sports accounts, hopes to find a suitable arena in Washington for his team as soon as negotiations are completed. He also intends to go to England to try to sign Bill Bradley, a former Princeton All-America who left eye.
